A spokesman at Atkinson Morley's Hospital, which specializes in brain surgery, said Moss suffered a severe head injury with additional damage to the right shoulder and broken joints as well as a fractured rib." He added that no operation is contemplated.

Moss, 32, who has survived some 20 crashes in his career, cracked up Monday before a huge Easter holiday crowd of 100,000 watching a 100-mile international race for Grand Prix cars at Goodwood track.

Most V-8 cars spun off the track at more than 100 miles an hour and he had missed the wreckage for half an hour while rescuers with hacksaws and bolt cutters struggled to free him.

He was given pain - killing drugs and lifted clear, still conscious with his face masked in blood. Moss was taken first to a hospital near the crash. He was later moved to Atkinson Morley's, where he lapsed into unconsciousness.

Moss has been Britain's most spectacular racing driver for years. But in the world championship had always finished him-self in the fateful mastery of the sport. His career has been jinxed by mechanical breakdowns.

Monday's crash came after he set a new lap record of 105.37 miles an hour. Eyewitnesses thought it was caused by a bursting which jammed open the throttle.

The daring auto racer has never let his luck or his crashes deter him from returning to the sport. After breaking both legs and several ribs in a smash two years ago, he admitted on television:

"I'm frightened of death—but I don't think of it while I'm driving.

He has been separated for two years from his wife, the former Katie Molson of Montreal, who now lives mainly abroad.

Flyers, Comets All Even

EDMONTON (CP) — Edmonton Flyers are back on even terms in the Western Hockey League final series, thanks to a two-fisted third-period rearguard action.

The Flyers scored three goals in 3½ minutes of the late period in defeating Spokane Comets 7-5 before 5,782 fans Monday night, a victory that matched Spokane's two wins in the series. The fifth game in the best-of-seven series will be played in Spokane Wednesday night.

The scoring touch first appeared in the last period of the third game, here last Thursday night as Flyers netted eight goals in the last 20 minutes of the game in winning 11-2. The Comets won the first two games in Spokane, Wash., 4-3 and 9-4.

Don Pulle and Warren Hynes each scored two goals for Edmonton Monday night. Singles were by Leo Lucyk, Ed Joyal and Billy McNeill. Max Mel-nyk, Colin Kilburn, Gord Strat-ton, Bev Bell and Norm Beaudin scored for Spokane.

Win Western Final
Smokies In Cup Finals

SASKATOON (CP) — Trail Smoke Eaters forged into the Allan Cup final series for the second time in three years when they shut out Saskatoon Quakers 8-0 Monday night to win the Western Canada senior hockey championship.

The Smokies captured the best-of-seven series 4-2 and open the best-of-seven title series against Montreal Olympics Thursday night. All games will be in Trail, B.C.

The Smoke Eaters met Chatham Maroons in the final two years ago and were beaten.

Trail goalie Lorne Kendall, who fired two goals for the Smokies, was the last period of the Eagles' west to Dave Russell, Howie Hornby, Hal Jones and Gerry Penner.

Kendall was Trail netminder Seth Martin, who was the first two games in Spokane, Wash., 4-3 and 9-4.

Trail took a 4-0 lead in the first period although Martin made 13 saves compared with seven by goalie Johnny Sofiak of the Quakers.

CHARGE MURDER

PRINCE RUPERT, B.C. (CP) David Myers, 20, Monday was charged with entering a Vancouver, B.C., gambling club operated by transparent screen two weeks ago. RCMP said Myers was arrested here Saturday night and charged with entering. Walter Enders, 50, Police declined to say whether or not any trace of Enders has been found.

Stream of Ships Now Going Through Locks

MONTREAL (CP)—A steady stream of ships moved through the 185-mile St. Lawrence Seaway today after the giant inland water system finally opened to traffic Monday.

The resumption of traffic was greeted with sighs of relief from shipping officials when the two weeks have seen vessels delayed by labor and mechanical problems.

Traffic is expected to be normal by Wednesday.

The waterway had been scheduled to open April 15, but opening was delayed until repair of a crack in the Eisenhower Lock.

The honor of being the first vessel to complete the uptowner trip belongs to the German freighter Transpacific She had previously gone through the St. Lambert, Cote Ste. Catherine and Beauharnois locks—which had opened on schedule—and anchored in Lake St. Francis below the Beauharnois Canal. She entered the Iroquois Lock, the first upbound ship in the system, at 7:40 a.m. EST and then sailed through into the Great Lakes.

She was followed by the Saarstein and the Troubridge.

Most of the waiting ships were ocean-going freighters, anchored in Lake St. Francis. Several lake ships, which had wintered in Montreal and other St. Lawrence ports, also were on hand.

Claim Woman Borrowed From Elderly Patients

TORONTO (CP) — Creditors of a nursing home operation were told Monday she borrowed from elderly patients to get the money to pay off debts and buy property.

Mrs. Lexie Whyte has declared herself bankrupt and claims to owe only $6,000 to her mother Mary Page, counsel for the trustee in the bankruptcy case, told a creditors' meeting it was "one of the most flagrant bankruptcies."

Mr. Page said Mrs. Whyte claims to owe only the money she was awarded April 2 in damages resulting from a traffic accident which left her crippled.

Lawyers are searching deeds to find out what Mrs. Whyte owns eight properties, two of which she has sold since the accident, and whether to start criminal proceedings or a civil action, Mr. Page said.

Mrs. Bertha Hall of St. Catharines told the meeting she visited Mrs. Whyte at a Toronto nursing home several years ago and lent her more than $12,000 which was never returned.

Creditors have already filed more than $35,000 in claims and more are expected from pharmacists, fur shops, jewellers, finance companies and a funeral home.

Would Like French Taught In Kindergarten

TORONTO (CP)—All kindergartens practising in Ontario should be French, John E. Bullford, of the Toronto board of education, said today.

Addressing the kindergarten section of the annual convention of the Ontario Educational Association, Mr. Rutherford said: "The important things a child learns in kindergarten are not mathematicism, are international, that there is no reason to have to learn them in English.

"This would make children bilingual if French conversation were carried on," he said.

Mr. Rutherford said: "Quebec basics would teach in their own French tongue here and the English would be taught in Quebec."

Helmet Saved Miner's Life

TORONTO (CP)—The doctor who has treated Russell Baskin since he was brought out of days ago in the underground rubble at the Macassa Gold Mine at Kirkland Lake says the miner's helmet probably saved his life.

Dr. Antonio Nicholai, who accompanied the 34-year old driller on an eight-hour ambulance ride from Kirkland Lake to Ontario community to a hospital, said today Mr. Baskin is in satisfactory condition.

The injured man was brought here in case facilities are required to treat kidney trouble, sometimes a result of long periods underground.

However, Dr. Nicholai said Baskin, victim of a 54-hour entombment at 6,000 feet, suffered a fracture of the right shoulder, concussion of the left eye and bruising of the kidneys.

Baskin was wheeled on a stretcher past a throng of newspapers into Toronto General Hospital at 8 p.m. His face, although thin, showed no sign of severe pain.

Dr. Nicholai said the pressure of the rockburst pushed Baskin's head forward, creating an air pocket. If it were not for the helmet, his head would have been crushed.

Hardest Animal to Train, House Cat Says Trainer

By GENE HARRINGTON

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP)—If you were giving grades for rapid learning, which would come first, the chicken or the chimp?

The chicken says Keller Breland who, with his wife, has trained more than 6,500 animals of 38 different species to play the piano, basketball, shoot cannons, dial phones and water skis.

The psychologist says the comparative advantage of chickens is to simple responses. The chimps are still champions when it comes to mastering the complex patterns such as those required on space rides.

Breland-trained performing animals have fascinated millions from coast to coast.

Perhaps you have seen them at Marineland—either in Florida or California — featuring the unbelievable porpoise performances, or at Hot Springs' so-called 50 Zoo, where a rooster dances rock 'n' roll, a hog stuffs coins in a piggy bank, and a cosmetic bunny smooches a rabbit-doll.

Mr. and Mrs. Breland have learned a lot about responses of animals since they started in Minneota in 1947 with "eight chickens and a prayer."

Now Breland says in all seriousness "I wouldn't hesitate to sign a contract today to produce a thousand while rats to play tiddly winks."

The teaching technique is the same for all animals, Breland says.

"The essence of the method consists of first conditioning the animal to approach the feeder when the feeder sounds and strong a little food. After that, one simply waits until the desired behavior occurs and then rewards the animal.

"The animal soon learns to associate the proper behavior with the sound of the feeder."

It works so well on the Breland's 600-acre farm near here ais California — featuring that workers are training animals on a mass production basis.

Once an animal learns a behavior pattern, such as a chicken running the bases after hitting a home run, it never forgets it—it will never forget it.

The hardest to condition? He nominates the house cat.

Income Tax Explained

Written and designed for the taxpayer who is not in a position to employ the services of a professional accountant or visit an Income Tax Office.

By C. A. MILLER
Former Supervising Assessor
Income Tax Dept.

Each year there are a large number of taxpayers who have taken up residence in Canada during the year They have been advised that a single man has a tax exemption of $1,000 and a married man $2,000 plus $250 for each child under 16 years and $500 for those over that age.

In numerous cases these taxpayers mistakenly believe that their income for the period they resided in Canada does not exceed the exemption applicable to them, they are not required to file tax returns for the first year. They have not been advised that the above exemptions are for a complete year. A taxpayer has resided in Canada for a full 12 months.

A taxpayer not residing in Canada for the full 12 months of the year is entitled only to the exemption applicable for the number of days of Canadian residence. To determine exactly how much exemption applies, the taxpayer should divide his normal exemption by 365 days and then multiply the result by the number of days he was in Canada. This give the exemption allowable in such cases.

The above should report on his return only the income he received while in Canada for the residence in Canada. The above applies only to those who are taking up residence in Canada for the first time It will not apply to Canadians citizens who are temporarily employed outside Canada, while his wife and family resided here. Cases of this type will be covered in a future article. Persons leaving Canada during the year will also be dealt with in a future article.

Question 1 — I am single and came to Canada from England. I was told the first $1,000 income I had in Canada I did not earn that much during my six months here, do I have to file a return?

Answer — Yes. The $1,000 exemption is applicable only when you have been here for a full year. You state you were here only for 6 months, so your exemption would be for half the year, which is $500.

Question 2 — I am a U.S. citizen. I came to Canada per-manently. I want to work at my Canadian branch. What income tax will be charged? Is it my salary for the full year or the portion earned since I came into the country?

Answer — Report only your Canadian salary, and take personal exemption for that period covered by your Canadian earnings.

Prince Charles Father's Polo Prowess

LONDON (AP) Prince Charles is following his father's hoofmarks onto the polo field.

While Prince Philip was playing Sunday in the first match of the season at Windsor, the 13-year-old heir to the throne was taking a lesson in the game.

Hundreds of spectators watched Philip's team, the Life Guards, defeat the New Farm team 4-3 in the first round of the Cumbermere Cup competition.

Charles, decked out in black riding hat, sweater, and jodhpurs, collected a pony from the paddock.

In a far corner of the field the young prince pulled his pony well down, lofted a ball out before him, and cantered in. Balancing his stick like an expert, he smacked the ball away in an accomplished offside shot.

He did well with a couple of backhands but nearly came a cropper when his pony made a shot under the pony's head.

"Hold on, Charles," yelled his 11-year-old sister Princess Anne.

Charles quickly regained his balance and rode on. The Queen smiled

Farmers' Union Wants Plebiscite On Marketing

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Farmers' Union during the week asked Ontario farm products marketing board to call a plebiscite on the provincial hog marketing plan.

The plan has been running almost since last year now, after many years of strife and arguments, but the OFU wants another vote before the levies collected by the hog organization for the purpose other than marketing plans—grants to the Ontario Federation of Agriculture and farmers' share in the Allied Meat Enterprises Cooperative Limited.

The co-operative is the producer - packaging organization. The plan was submitted by the OFA, the marketing board and the co-operative.

The OFU asked that a vote be held before the hog marketing agency collects its fee in 50 cents from the present 40 cents per hog.

The critician suggested to some observers that the OFU was afraid that the organization would have to be on the union's terms. It was suggested that the Ontario Federation of Agriculture and National Farmers' Union, parent organizations of the OFA and OFU, move to-wards organization.

In a statement issued by the OFU it said the hog producer is announced it had "no time for any further fraternizing until the federation abdicates a definite desire to change the structure of the co-operative.

"Farmers will not solve this (the farm) problem by building organization societies, but rather should build a direct farmer producer organization where farmers meet to make and control policy."

The OFU is a dues-paying organization.

PICKETS DRESS UP

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Women pickets wearing Easter bonnets paraded outside the strike-bound plant of J. Reich Company Sunday. "This is sure some way to spend an Easter," one woman picket said. Some 1,800 workers struck the food processing plant's at a July 1 late month in a contract dispute.

Successful Living

(A Canadian Social Worker Helps with Human Problems)

Asking For Foster Child

DEAR DORIS:—I am a young married couple—family are grown up and married—and I feel I would like a foster child, preferably a boy. My doctor's report was favourable the child is 7 months old. We have five or six years old, and obedient—COULD LOVER.

DEAR CHILD-LOVER: — If you get a foster child, it will be more because he needs you than that you need him—though there are satisfactions both ways.

DORIS CLARK

He will not be ready-made "obedient". If he's doing that at home, better stay put. But the youngster with quarrelling parents or bullying ones may need help to become the little model you dream of. A foster parent is a part-time psychologist-social worker, co-operating with professionals.

If you can give love and patience and a rare breed of understanding, and your husband will do his share in this too, contact your child caring agency about getting on the list for a foster child.

DEAR DORIS:—Since my letter to you was printed, I have been swamped with earnest and sensible inquiries for information regarding TOPS. (Take Off Pounds Sensibly.)

I stopped counting at 47 and my files are still growing — two or three a week. As a result of these inquiries I now have new clubs in the following areas: Peterborough, Lindsay, Regina, Sioux Lookout, Thompson (Man.) and Lethbridge.

I appreciate the opportunity you have given me to spread the news of TOPS.—JEAN P. FLATT, Regional Director, Tops Club.

DEAR JEAN—I'm delighted and so are the overweights you have inspired to slimming. In short, we think you are TOPS!

DEAR DORIS:—How long should a wife stand by an alcoholic husband and suffer? He won't work, he is strong and big and healthy, but very lazy; spends all his spare time in beer parlors.

We have two children. We live in a dingy basement suite. We have been working for a long time, supporting us all, but am ready to throw my towel in and call it quits.—

What is your advice, Doris?—MRS. P. M.

DEAR MRS. P. M.:—Sometimes the only cure for the disease called alcoholism is a full-scale revolt. Loyalty is getting you nowhere.

He must know in no uncertain way that the worm has turned. Whether this means self-assertion or actual desertion you will have to find out.

Try conversation first, with a definite ultimatum laid down.

DEAR DORIS:—I have a sister who has an awful temper and is irritated at the slightest thing. She's twenty and I am thirteen. She exaggerate to the point of really lying. Before she went on a trip over a year ago, we were very close. Now she is unbearable. She starts fights and tells her side of the story to my mother with a few facts left out.

I can't get a word in edgewise for I'm sent to my room with my mom's words following me. I get blamed for everything my sister does.

At school I am quiet and sort of a bookworm because I have to handle all my troubles myself. A year ago I was happy but now I have no real friends. I don't let my temper go at those fights but I cry myself to sleep. How can I show my parents I have many feelings and troubles?—HOMELESS.

DEAR HOMELESS—Is big sister getting all the spotlight? This can happen with no one realizing it but you.

You can't get the past back because both of you are changing. Your sister thinks life is getting grown-up when she detaches herself from you. When she really gets more mature she will come to you for friendship. Meanwhile, I would suggest you get a couple of your own who is closer to your age.

What are you doing to show that you are growing up too? Do you carry your share of household chores? Are you willing to cook? Who washes the dishes? Show your mother and dad that you can share the load at home.

Then one time when you are not angry with anyone, ask your dad for a chance to talk with him and show him your side of things. Write to me for a little paperback which will help you to think out your difficulties during these growing-up years. (Be sure to enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope next time.)

If You Live in England, You Get Used to Things Like This

By RONALD THOMSON

LONDON (AP)—The notice on the door of the city hall in Kent was brief and to the point: "the evening of clairvoyance on Tuesday has been cancelled owing to unforeseen circumstances."

If you live in England, you get used to things like this.

There is a town around some where who believes rattlesnake coaches should be bolled—yes, boiled—and a station keeper who vent the spread of dandruff.

Then, within the city canals is situated in a road which is blocked at both ends.

The chief council of a London borough council posted a memorandum saying: "Owing to the shortage of staff, officials are advised to take advantage of their typists between the hours of 12 and 3 o'clock."

The weekly magazine New Statesman has been compiling a record of such oddities and recently published a collection of them.

TORONTO STORAGE

One of the classics is an order issued by the admiralty dealing with the storage of torpedo warheads:

"It is necessary for technical reasons that these warheads should be stored with the top at the bottom and the bottom at the top. In order that there may be no doubt as to which is the bottom and which is the top for storage purposes, it will be seen that the bottom of each warhead has been labelled with the word 'top.'"

Deepan announcements in newspapers provide some of the best fun. From the seaside comes sort of Margate came this one:

"The council has adopted a new slogan, 'Here's life in the Margate air,' which now is being stamped on envelopes containing reminders that annual cemetery fees are due."

In the north of England one paper reported:

"Cookery week was sent to a Bridgend School canteen. Teachers waited it and did not like the smell. The head manager sniffed it and pronounced it satisfactory. The town medical officer sniffed it and declared it good, then ordered it to be destroyed because the two may people had complained."

SEVEN DEADLY SINS

The church column in another newspaper announced: "The minister intends to preach a series of sermons on the seven deadly sins, starting with lust."

Letters to the editor often produce significant thoughts. The Newcastle Journal printed the following from a reader:

"In view of the great expense and necessary secrecy involved in firing rockets at the moon, I suggest that future attempts should be made on the dark side of the moon. There would be a better chance of hitting this target rather than hitting the thin crescent present at the time of the latest moon rocket."

A plaintive note came in a letter to the magazine Reveille:

"My wife has a habit of peeling potatoes in bed. I feel this is unnecessary and unhygienic but how can I stop her?"

Marital difficulties naturally crop up in the week's mail.

The law society reports that a man who instituted divorce proceedings later withdrew the application because his wife got to hear about it."

Judge Temple Morris granted a divorce to a woman who said her sons assizes, saying her husband beat her a better "which reader not have been sent to a dog."

Cruelty by means of violence always adds to the interest.

In the divorce court in London, Harry Lee Hunter, ruled that a wife who threw "almost anything within reach" and struck at her husband was not cruel because on nearly every occasion she missed.

Officialdom is never out of the way for long. Says the mayor of Lincoln:

"There is no housing shortage in the town. This is just a rumor put about by people who have nowhere to live."

Sweden Boasts Air Force That Packs Major Punch

By DICK SODERLUND

STOCKHOLM (AP)—Sweden, a proud neutral at peace for 150 years, boasts an air force that packs a major punch.

It is this air force, numbering about 1,000 jet planes in the first lines of combat, that this Scandinavian kingdom within radar-range of the Soviet Union is counting on to keep it at peace.

Gen. Stig Noren, chief of staff of the Swedish Air Force, says: "A big power can probably beat us, if using all its vast resources, but we believe that in case of an attack the enemy big power would be forced to limit its attacking strength here considerably.

"... It is not at all improbable that our strength in the air may have already sometime saved us from an invasion."

The Swedish Air Force, regarded as the world's fourth or fifth strongest behind the United States, Soviet Union, Britain and possibly France, is on a 24-hour alert.

Backing up the air patrols is a network of modern radar stations along Sweden's 1,700-mile long coastline with a range that extends beyond the Soviet border.

ROCKET EQUIPPED

"Not even a goat could slip through unnoticed," an air force spokesman said.

In twos and fours, on runways or in underground hangars dug into solid granite bedrock, Swedish pilots sit out their round-the-clock five-hour shifts

Aussie Yacht Wins 2 Trials

SYDNEY (Reuters) — Gretel, Australia's challenger for the America's Cup, convincingly defeated the chartered American trial yacht Vim in two of three official trial races off Sydney Monday.

In the first trial, sailed over 15 miles in a seven-knot northeast wind, Gretel won by more than three minutes, though challenged strongly on the windward leg.

Gretel then won the second trial—over a seven-mile course with the wind increasing to 10 knots—by 30 seconds.

Vim won the third trial, over six miles, by one minute.

Though Gretel won two of the three races, there was insufficient wind rough water today to really assess her qualities against those of the American boat.

Another series of trials is due to be held Tuesday.

Canadian Destroyer Saves 850 of Enemy in Last War When Ship Is Torpedoed

One of the strangest sea stories of World War II is that of the Canadian Destroyer HMCS St. Laurent and the part it played in rescuing over 850 people after the torpedoing of the Andora Star. It is strange because these people, huge, dead bloated bodies in the water were the enemy.

The Andora Star, a converted luxury liner, appeared in the cross hairs of the periscope of the U-47 early in the morning of July 1, 1940 en route from Liverpool to Halifax). She carried a strange cargo of 1,500 German internees being deported from England to Canada to prevent any fifth column activity should Germany invade now that France has fallen. She also carried German and Italian prisoners of war, kept in their place by barbed wire blocks and overseen by 20 men of the British army guards ready to deal smartly with any attempts to take over the ship.

Ironically enough hundreds of German lives might have been saved that morning for the last torpedo in the tubes of the U-47 had been U/S. It was only a couple of hours before U-boat ace commander Gunther Prien raised the periscope to have a quick look around be that the torpedo had been repaired.

It hit the thin sides of the Andora Star amidship and immediately flooded the boiler room. That there should be panic goes without saying. Those who weren't trapped beneath decks and in their bunks tried to fight their way through the barbed wire. A good number made it topside only because the inspecturable guards beat a path for them. Once on deck there was more panic. POW's attempted to lower the boats and their inexperience led to the loss of many of them and the loss of many other lives.

The Canadian destroyer St. Laurent under the command of Commodore Harry George Dewolf of Nova Scotia, who was later to become Vice Admiral, Chief of Naval Staff, was on escort to the British battleship Nelson bound for the Mediterranean. The St. Laurent was dispatched with all possible haste to the scene and warned on its arrival by the Captain of a Sunderland flying boat that the area which lay ahead was indescribable.

Indeed it was! Hundreds upon hundreds of oil blackened blobs floated lifelessly on the water or clung weakly to the sides of rubber rafts. The crew of the St. Laurent set to in rescue work, hampered by the fact that most of the victims were too weak to help themselves and had to be hauled aboard by ropes. It was slow work and all the time there was the danger that the St. Laurent would be picked up by an enemy submarine and meet the same fate as the Andora Star.

The irony of the event was beginning to strike home to Commander DeWolf and the Captain of the RAF Sunderland. Should the St. Laurent be attacked she would probably not have been able to fight because of all the Germans and Italians she had taken aboard. When the Captain of the Sunderland was notified of the identity of the survivors, he put it as well as any person when he messaged back: "How bloody funny".

HMCS St. Laurent made it to Greenock where the prisoners and internees, some of them partly recovered by this time and reinforced with dollops of pusser rum, left the ship to be turned over to the army singing "There'll always be an England," the only fitting way that they could find to pay for their lives.

Liquid Vaccine Will Be Given In Peterborough

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Peterborough may be the first Ontario city to have a mass polio immunization program with the new Sabin oral vaccine.

Dr. James Anderson, city medical officer of health, said Monday the liquid vaccine—fed to adults on a sugar cube and to infants by spoon—will not be made available for general use until May 7.

A mass immunization program will be carried out in city schools and factories and at five public centres May 15 and 16. Plans are also under way to carry out mass immunization in Northumberland and Durham counties, with a combined population of 80,000, during the week starting May 14.

Oshawa and Ottawa will start their programs in June.

Dr. Anderson said Salk vaccine "gives immunity in the blood stream while Sabin treats the places where the virus breeds—the intestinal tract of man, in other words it gives added protection."

"We feel the combination of the two could eradicate the disease of poliomyelitis without any confusion," he said.

The Sabin vaccine is being made available free of charge to the provinces by the Dominion health department.

There were 22 cases of poliomyelitis recorded in Ontario last year.

Deadly Sirex Timber Wasp Threatens Timber Industry

MELBOURNE (Reuters)—An insect with a wing-span of less than two inches, the deadly sirex timber wasp, is threatening Australia's "$225,000,000 softwood timber industry.

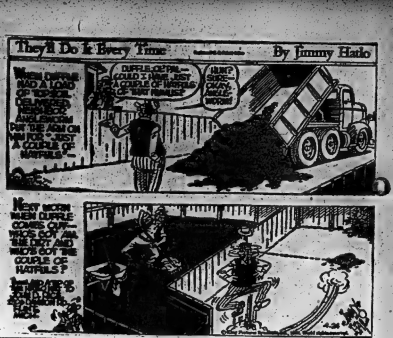
Sometimes called hornfalls, sirex wasps can kill a healthy pine tree in two months, rendering it useless for commercial purposes.

Already the wasps have caused millions of dollars of damage in New Zealand and Tasmania.

One of the ways authorities here are fighting the pest is by calling in its natural enemy, the parasitic ibalia wasp.

Although the pest first reached Australia 37 years ago from Europe, the first serious outbreak did not occur until recently in the Dandenong foothills, about 20 miles from here.

Adult sirex wasps are gaudy blue insects with splashes of black and yellow. They are usually one to 1¼ inches long with a wing-span of 1½ to two inches.



FREEZE PINES

The pine tree, basis of the softwood timber industry, is the favorite nesting place of the sirex, which bores in and lays its eggs in living or newly-felled pine trees.

By isolating outbreaks quickly and by destroying or treating infested timber, forestry officials hope to wipe out the potentially disastrous pest.

Other steps include the use of methyl bromide gas, which instantly kills the larvae, pupae and freshly - hatched wasps, spraying of insecticides, and burning of dead wood.

A more dramatic method being used now is the release of parasitic ibalia wasps in affected forests. The wasps destroy sirex eggs.

Focus on Health

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Topics this week: Borrowed hearts, vacationing hearts and insurance for red blood cells.

THE LIVING HEART

There is new evidence that the heart may live on for a time—even after the body is dead.

It has been proved, at least, with the hearts of guinea pigs, Cornell University doctors have been able to revive the hearts of guinea pigs dead for up to 15 minutes.

"The results suggest that there is a definite, probably short, period of time after death that a heart can be removed (from a human being) and still function," reported Dr. S. Frank Redo and Dr. Frank Glenn.

Should doctors ever solve the problem of transplanting one person's tissues into another's body, there is the hope that the hearts of newly-dead persons might be used to replace diseased hearts in the living. Major obstacle to this, however, is the fact that the human body tends to destroy or reject tissue not its own.

VACATIONING HEARTS

Can the heart be removed from the living body, repaired and then replaced in the body to take over the task of living again?

Many scientists are working on new techniques toward that end. Now it is reported that surgeons have borrowed the hearts from dogs for up to two hours, then replaced those hearts in the living animals.

The dogs, kept alive in the meantime by a heart - lung machine, showed no apparent ill effects.

The Stanford University surgeons who performed the operations said the technique may be helpful for some of the 15,000 babies born each year with heart problems that cannot be repaired with the heart in the body.

RED BLOOD INSURANCE

Each red blood cell carries a tiny insurance policy to make certain more red blood cells are produced, researchers report.

The insurance policy is a tiny molecule called Hemin, found in the skin of each blood cell.

An injection of Hemin boosts red cell production some 30 per cent, reported Dr. John A. D. Cooper, Noe Altschuler and James R. Brown of Northwestern University.

The biochemists discovered that red blood cell production can be boosted by a whole battery of compounds related to Hemin and now they are trying to find out how they coax the bone marrow into producing more cells.

U.S. NUCLEAR COUNT-DOWN STARTED

Offered Bribes Up To $85,000 Says Witness

Crime Commission Hears New Evidence

TORONTO (CP)—A lawyer's attempt to have gambling bosses Joseph McDermott and Vincent Rizzuto represented directly at the royal commission on crime inquiry was delayed today by the Ontario appeal court deferred until then the

A three - man panel of the court split Friday morning on an application by lawyer Walton C. Rose to have the court rule on whether he can cross-examine commission witnesses and call his own.

Besides the two prominent gamblers, Mr. Rose represents an unidentified "Mr. X," who has been "served" by commission in a secret session recently.

SITS ONLY FEW MINUTES

The court today sat only a few minutes, ordering the adjournment at the request of commission counsel Roland F. Wilson. Meanwhile, commission hearings quickly and quietly resuming later today after a morning recess for the court hearing.

Mr. Rose has filed with the commission affidavits from Mike Dermott and Feeley declaring cross-examination of witnesses "is necessary and essential to show many allegations made against them before the commission are unfounded.

Under a commission ruling last week, Mr. Rose now is permitted only to submit questions to witnesses through Mr. Wilson.

In court today, Mr. Rose said Dermott and Feeley "have been depicted as "a pair of spiders in a web" trying to "weave and spin" everyone with whom they came in contact.

The commission heard new evidence Tuesday of connections in 1956 between Ontario's gambling industry and persons in the legislature, the attorney-general's department and the provincial police force.

It also heard that an OPP set-up gambling squad member in 1954 and 1955 was offered bribes up to $85,000 by a former squad member and a Windsor gambler for protecting gaming joints.

FEARS AMERICAN COMPETITION

It heard, too, that organized gambling in Ontario was assisted by government officials, policemen, police administrators, and by elected or appointed government officials.

Police Chief W. J. Strubb of Peterborough, in former gambling squad member, mentioned his "betrayal" and also his feeling he was left alone by the squad between 1955 and 1956 when "matters got too hot."

Sprightly Octogenarian Now Honeymooning at Niagara Falls

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—William H. Pinnock, a sprightly octogenarian who founded the St. John Ambulance Brigade in Canada, is honeymooning here with his 72-year-old bride.

The newlyweds, widow and widower before their marriage, settled on the Canadian side of honeymoon spot following their wedding Saturday in the Anglican church at Burford, near Brantford.

Mr. Pinnock, 83, indicated his marriage resulted from a "meeting of minds and enterprise" spirit that made him a pioneer in volunteer first aid work during his youth in England, South Africa and Canada.

Mrs. Bridgeman, a farmer, shoemaker and county constable in Bracebridge for some 30 years, has lived in Burford for more than 40 years. His first wife died last year after almost 50 years of marriage.

The new Mrs. Pinnock, formerly Mrs. Coral Higgins of London, Ont., was widowed when her husband, who also served twenty years, had been friends for several years.

Mr. Pinnock's son Aldred of London was best man at Saturday's wedding and Mrs. Pinnock's daughter, Mrs. Daisy Middleton of London, was matron of honor. The newlyweds spent tentative plans to live in London.

The South African war broke out in 1899, a year after Mr. Pinnock's first marriage, and Pinnock's appealed for volunteers to treat the wounded in the field. Mr. Pinnock says he was the first man to volunteer; and his group was the forerunner of the Royal Army Medical Corps.

Among his most precious possessions is a certificate dated Jan. 8, 1901, and signed by Queen Victoria, thanking him for his work in South Africa.

Mr. Pinnock moved from England to London, Ont., in March, 1908, with his wife and son. Eight months later, he and a few friends, with the backing of local doctors, organized the first St. John cadet classes in Canada at London.

Mr. Pinnock became the first St. John Ambulance Brigade

Fort Churchill Rocket Range To Be Rebuilt

OTTAWA (CP)—The United States defence department will soon put up about $2,000,000 to help Canada resume its role in space research.

The sum will be spent for the reconstruction of the rocket range at Fort Churchill, Man., destroyed by fire last year.

Canadian defence officials said today the contract will be let by the U.S. government within three weeks. The establishment is scheduled to be completed by November.

Operation of the rocket facilities has been transferred from the Air Army to the U.S. Air Force, under terms of a new Canada-U.S. usage agreement.

The new establishment was set up in 1957 as a joint project of the International Geophysical Year. Informants said the U.S Army has no further need of the range and is being turned over to the USAF for aerospace research.

WILL CO-OPERATE

Scientists of the Defence Research Board, the National Research Council and Canadian universities will continue to cooperate with the Americans under the new agreement. Defence scientists have instrument-packed rockets will provide information that could lead to a system for detecting intercontinental ballistic missiles at launching or in flight.

Rockets fired from Churchill will be comparatively small—50 feet long at most—but they will be capable of soaring up to 150 miles. They include the Canadian Black Brant II and the American Nike-Cajun, Aerobee and Javelin.

While the Churchill installations are being rebuilt, IRBM satellites will continue their research work at the Wallops Island rocket range in Virginia, in cooperation with U.S. space experts.

Vocational Training Courses Described as Booby Traps

TORONTO (CP)—Vocational training courses in high schools were variously described Tuesday as a means of keeping toe-agers at school and a booby-trapped lure that might deprive capable students of a university education.

The divergent views were expressed during a panel discussion held in conjunction with the annual conference of the Ontario Educational Association. The subject was Ontario's recently announced three-stream high school curriculum.

G. C. Cameron, vocational-secondary Line Sault Ste. Marie, said the program's emphasis on vocational training will reduce the school dropout rate.

Mr. Cameron said a "middle-of-the-road" student will give up school if they are exposed to much academic education.

"Vocational training is the carrot that will keep them at school," he said. "Increased academic training will drive them out."

He approved of a trend toward dropping Latin instruction in favor of more vocational training.

Harold Klinck of the Ontario School Trustees and Ratepayers' Association disagreed. He said stepped - up vocational training programs may divert potential university students to vocational training.

"I hope the carrot won't be too attractive," he said.

Mr. Klinck also described as "suspect" the suggestion that university entrance standards should be raised.

A second panel called for increased federal participation in all phases of education.

Air Marshal C.R. Dunlap Named Chief of Air Staff

OTTAWA (CP) — The retirement of Air Marshal Hugh Campbell, 54, as chief of the Air Staff was announced today by Defence Minister Harkness.

His successor is Air Marshal Clarence R. Dunlap, also now serving as deputy chief of operations at the Supreme Headquarters of the Allied Powers in Europe.

The announcement said Air Marshal Campbell's future plans were not immediately known.

DOB 1901

A native of Salisbury, N.B., he joined the RCAF in 1931 and is the first graduate of the Second World War, he was the RCAF's director of training Training Plan.

In 1942 he became director of air staff at RCAF overseas headquarters in England and two years later returned to Canada as assistant to the chief of air staff.

At the war's end, he gave up that post in Ottawa and ultimately became commander of North West Air Command, based at Edmonton, Alta., and as NATO representative of the Canadian forces, and in 1952 was named to the Joint Canada-U.S. air division in Europe.

He was assigned to S.H.A.P.E. as vice air deputy in mid-1955 and in late 1956 was appointed deputy chief of staff for operations, the same post now held by Air Marshal Dunlap.

Born in Sydney Mines, N.S., Air Marshal Dunlap entered the RCAF in 1930 and in pre-war years he was engaged in aerial photography and later specialized in air armament. He spent the first three years of the war as director of armament for Ottawa.

Late in 1942, he went overseas to take command of the RCAF station at Leeming, Yorkshire—a station in the No. 6 Canadian Bomber Group. He moved to North Africa in 1943 as commanding officer of a bomber wing controlling three squadrons of Wellingtons then directed strategic and tactical bombing in Sicily, Italy and Sardinia.

Returning to England, he took command of a medium bomber wing—that then was part of the newly-formed 2nd tactical air force and flew on 35 operational sorties before commanding the wing, which scored heavily against German V-1 and V-2 rocket sites in France and ground forces.

After the war, he became deputy air member for air staff at RCAF headquarters in Ottawa. He was the RCAF's representative at the Bikini atomic bomb tests in 1946.

He was appointed commandant of the National Defence College in Kingston in 1951, a post he held three years before becoming chief of the air staff. He went to Europe in his present job in June, 1958.

U.S. Spaceship Will Hit Moon On Unseen Side

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—As the sun rises Thursday on the desolation of the lunar landscape, U.S. spacecraft Ranger 4 is expected to plunge from the black sky on to the surface of the moon.

Scientists say it will strike the unseen back side of the moon at 5:49 a.m. PST (8:50 a.m. EST), exactly 63.913 hours after it blasted off from Cape Canaveral—carrying sensitive television equipment and the hopes of U.S. space and lunar experts for a close-up look at the moon.

The hopes were shattered when a timer failed to activate a sequence of manoeuvres that would have brought Ranger's television eye into play as it neared the lunar surface.

HEATHMAN WILL APPEAR UNDER MENTAL ACT

Lodged in Jail In Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP)—Charles Heathman, who twice in the last week said he killed 16-year - old newsboy Donald Ottley, was arrested and brought here Tuesday under a warrant alleging he is mentally ill and too dangerous to be at large.

He was lodged in a city jail and is expected to appear in police court today on a charge under the Mental Hospitals Act.

Heathman, 36, was returned from Seattle after a search was launched early in a statement he made to the Vancouver police.

He went to Seattle for a holiday with $500 paid by The Sun for his account of smothering the boy to death at Vernon, B.C. 18 months ago.

U.S. immigration authorities said Heathman, twice sentenced to hang for the murder but later acquitted by the B.C. Court of Appeal, did not conduct a deportation order issued on Monday he failed to declare a criminal record when he arrived in the United States.

After his arrest in downtown Seattle, Heathman told a Vancouver Province reporter and television cameraman "confession" was true.

He made many other devel opments in the complicated case Tuesday.

HOPES FOR REWARD

Robert John McMichael of Victoria, whose call to police led to the arrest said he hopes to collect a $1,000 reward for the tipoff.

At Vernon, the mother of Donald Ottley launched a campaign to have Heathman executed again. Mrs. Ada Oliver, the boy's mother by her first marriage, circulated a petition in hope authority under which a new trial, denied in the case of double jeopardy under which a man cannot be tried for a crime of which he has been acquitted.

Sun publisher Donald Cromie, replying to news of the petition, confession story was handcuffed at his staff "acted as responsible, public - spirited intelligent citizens" throughout.

Mr. Cromie said the man was in effect "seeking both a public trial and a fair trial" and his contention in his own words and a public trial "he will get and he has had all and he is now compelled to stand by them."

CONFIRMS PAYMENT

The Sun confirmed that it had paid Heathman $500 to get him psychiatric treatment and in sworn statement Mr. Cromie said:

"His confession, I believe, is a public document that you can, tain to be validated if, after publishing it, you let the 12-hour free period pass and you followed that dreadful story to go to the police immediately.

"Had we forced the authorities to act or question him and he had thereafter refused

95 Tons of Water Carried Aloft By U.S. Rocket on First Test

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (CP)—The Saturn booster was launched successfully for the second time and was deliberately blown up today after it reached the peak of its mission—carrying water into the upper atmosphere.

With a tremendous roar and spurt of flame, the rocket rode 1,300,000 pounds of thrust to an altitude of 65 miles. There a signal from the ground detonated explosive charges that ripped the vehicle apart spilling the water into the near-vacuum of space in a bonus experiment.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration announced several minutes after the 9 p.m. EST launching that the flight was completely successful.

Observers at Cape Canaveral saw the water quickly form a huge cloud of ice-like ice particles which spread several hundred feet across a clear sky.

The great mass remained seemingly motionless in the air for only a few seconds, then spread apart and quickly vanished.

But the time the explosive charge was fired—about 6 minutes after launching, the 162-foot Saturn had completed its main mission—a check-out of the booster itself.

The eight powerful engines in the first stage functioned for about 115 seconds, pushing the 463-ton vehicle to an altitude of 85 miles. At this point the engines shut down as planned and the rocket coasted upward to the 65-mile apex—a maneuver occurred some 50 miles southeast of Cape Canaveral over the Atlantic.

Then dummy upper stages were filled with water and, despite the weight of the upper assembly to be carried on future Saturns.

It was this 23,000 gallons of water which was spilled into the ionosphere in a secondary scientific experiment.

By tracking the cloud and recording its action scientists hoped to gain further knowledge of the upper atmosphere.

Kennedy Gives Approval For New Test Series

No Super-Size Blasts Will Be Detonated

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. nuclear count-down is under way.

The first explosions of the new test series could thunder out in the remote Pacific at any hour.

President Kennedy gave his final approval Tuesday for the series of tests' shots in the atmosphere. The Atomic Energy Commission then announced that the tests would begin "as soon as operationally feasible."

This meant, said one AEC spokesman, the first shot will be triggered any time in the next few days, as soon as the weather, the weapons and the elaborate experimental facilities are "go."

REPEATS WARNINGS

Kennedy's authorization for the tests to proceed came in a day of appeals and warnings against resumption of testing. U Thant, acting secretary-general of the United Nations, in India's Prime Minister Nehru urged the great powers to refrain from testing. In Moscow, Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko repeated warnings that Russia would conduct new tests unless the United States abstained.

HOPES FOR REWARD

In Tokyo, about 100 left-wing students charged the high wall around the U.S. Embassy today, protesting the decision to resume nuclear testing.

Two hundred policemen stopped them in their tracks 50 yards from the closed embassy gate. A brief, fierce free-for-all left said nuclear banners smashed and lying in the street.

Joint Task Force Eight, an organization of more than 12,000 men, actually began preparations Nov. 2 when Kennedy said the United States was going ahead with standby preparations for resumption of atmospheric tests.

TEMPO INCREASED

The tempo of the preparations has increased since Kennedy announced March 2 that the U.S. would be ready late this month unless Russia agreed to a foolproof system for banning nuclear tests.

Swarms of military men, AEC experts and scientists descended on the hitherto lonely islands of Christmas and Johnston, west of Hawaii.

There, the task forces have erected the facilities for hurling thermonuclear warheads into the edge of space, dropping them from planes, launching them by torpedoes and depth charges—and, equally important, trying out new explosive recipes for nuclear weapons.

Pilot's Wife Much Improved,

WASHINGTON (CP) — The wife of former U-2 spy pilot Francis Gary Powers is reported to have recovered from what police described as an overdose of sleeping pills last Friday but cause of the overdose is still locked in mystery.

A spokesman for the Central Intelligence Agency where Powers is still employed said Tuesday the matter is a personal one and that the agency will not comment on it or conduct any investigation.

Freed from a Soviet jail last February in a Russian-American spy swap, Powers, 32, has been living with his 30-year-old wife in a suburban Alexandria, Va., apartment. They have no children.

Police in Alexandria, where the case originated, said that at the request of the family they have agreed not to disclose any further information about the incident than that there will be no further investigation.

CITY AND DISTRICT NEWS

ASKS FOR MORE CARE WITH GRASS FIRES

Fire Chief Gerald Yance has requested citizens to show a little more thought and to exercise close control over any grass fires they light, since the presence of fire trucks and men at such fires must necessarily reduce the amount of fire protection available throughout the city to valuable property.

The Belleville Fire Department has handled almost 50 grass fires since last Friday morning with 14 such outbreaks requiring attention yesterday and five more having been extinguished by 11.30 o'clock this morning.

Three Share $27,195 Award By Court Here

Total damages of $27,195.80 arising out of a November, 1960, motor vehicle accident on No. 37 Highway north of the city were awarded yesterday to three plaintiffs by Mr. Justice L. A. Landreville at the current sittings of the Supreme Court being held in the Hastings County courthouse.

The damages were assessed against Ernest Coleman, the late George Wilbur Sherry, who was killed in the accident.

Highest damages went to Marjorie Dianne Merry who was awarded $14,500 general damages and $759 special damages. Alfred Stanley Merry was awarded $1,000 general damages and $3,857 special damages, and Jacqueline Jenkins, $7,500 general damages and $1,079.80 special damages.

The three plaintiffs were all occupants of the second car which was southbound toward Belleville at the time of the accident.

Mr. Kenneth G. M. Ross appeared as counsel for the three plaintiffs, while Thomas Lally of the law firm, Barrett and Lally, acted as counsel for the Sherry Estate.

Sewer Rodding Machine Kept Under Cover

A relatively new approach by the city public works department to sewer rodding operations is causing more than a little interest on the part of local residents as they see a rather strange "down to earth" covered wagon being hauled along the street.

The vehicle is a special plastic covered trailer which conveyance housing sewer rodding equipment.

City Engineer Malcolm Turnbull says the plastic covered trailer protects the men and equipment from all kinds of weather, thus allowing 16-hours-a-day operation.

The outfit is manned by two men and hauled by a small jeep.

Early June Starting Date For Paving

Early June is the scheduled starting date for the 1962 city paved streets program, of repaving and providing new surface for a number of other city streets.

The June 14th the city will continue its ongoing program of topping sections of five streets with Dix-Seal surfacing, while in July hot mix re-paving will be done on sections of Dundas Street East, and on Coleman and West Moira Streets.

Street sections to which Dix-Seal, a three-quarter inch semi-penetration topping paving about five years will be applied are Parlee Ave. from Dundas to Bridge; Herchimer Ave. from Bridge to Victoria; Prince of Wales Drive; North Park from College to North Park Gardens and Dundas West from Coleman to Sidney Street.

The hot mix paving will be done on highway arteries, Dundas East, from Church to Bleecker Ave., and on Coleman and West Moira from the Lower Bridge to the Upper Bridge.

fered to buy him a $60,000 motel property in Chatham and a $25,000 home in Toronto in return for "the officer's help."

The jut-jawed former OPP corporal said Finnegan in 1954 was on-duty when a place in Sandwich Township outside Windsor called the Border Cities Press Club, the predecessor of a later Roseland Club run by Frederick Feeley, Jr.

He explained Finnegan told him he had been forced to sell the club because the interests of cause of unfavorable publicity in Windsor Star and it needed help to get the club open.

He was offered the motel, house, operating expenses and a "lion's share of the gambling club's revenue if he promised help in "keeping a game or two open," said Shrubb.

WARRANTS OFFERED

The police chief said he turned down the offer.

Shrubb said he also turned down a deal mentioned in an approach early in 1955 by John D. Cronin, a former anti-gambling squad sergeant who rejoined the OPP as a constable in 1954. Cronin said he had "serious evidence and was reported to have cleaned up on Toronto's Bay St.

Cronin had told him McDermott and Feeley were running a club at Cooksville near Toronto and were going to open up another at Fort Erie, Ont., in Niagara premises—and Fort Erie.

Shrubb said Cronin told him that Shrubb's name was being used—just how was not specified—by an OPP man in Fort Erie borough who would "condone" an offer.

Previous evidence has come before the commission that Frederick Allen Metzinger, in charge of the OPP district centred there, had provided tipoffs gambling raids. The OPP inspector has denied this before the commission.

PROVIDES RECORDS

Shrubb also provided records of long distance phone calls from Cooksville and Fort Erie. Credit used by Feeley in 1958, when a number of calls were interested in the Frontier Club at Fort Erie and were placed to the Fort Erie apartment at Niagara Falls closed down.

These records indicated, among others, a call to the Ren. Club in Montreal of the late James Maloney, then Progressive Conservative member of the Legislature for Renfrew South and later mines minister; four to the home of Mrs. C. Jolley, 1953-59 Progressive Conservative candidate in Niagara Falls and two to the suburban Toronto home of a man whose name Shrubb said he did not know but who was related to publicity agent and a former staff member in the attorney-general's department.

Records also mentioned calls to Insp. Stringer in Peterborough.

Shrubb revealed that Mr. Maloney was the man described in previous testimony only as an unnamed legislative member who had been required to help bring a provincial franchise for a lucrative service station.

OFFERS A MOTEL

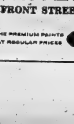
He testified Feeley, after unsuccessful bribe offers, had proposed to set him up in a "legitimate" partnership in this enterprise. The deal never came off.

One of the phone calls on Shrubb's list went to a number listed in the name of a former secretary at OPP headquarters. Earlier evidence has shown that the dapper Feeley had ties to date OPP employees.

Other testimony from Shrubb disclosed a feeling of suspicion that confidential information was being leaked out of the OPP at high levels.

Dumped Refuse, A Dead Animal Along Highway

Two Thurlow township residents have each paid fines of $25 and costs of $3.50 following guilty pleas to charges of dumping refuse along a township sideroad near Canniffon.



Appearing before the township constable James Logue on April 12th and pleas of guilty were entered by the accused before scheduled court appearances.

Township officials said the carcass of a dead animal, (either a steer or a cow), had been dumped along the sideroad. The dead animal was said to have been killed after the owners learned it was diseased.

'Wishful Thinking' to Feel Castro Will Be Thrown Out Of Power Kiwanians Told Local Kiwanians were advised that it was a lot of "wishful thinking" to feel that Cuba's Castro will be thrown out of power either by his own people or by the Communists supplying him by the Red Militia.

Justice Leo Landreville, yesterday afternoon at the club's weekly dinner meeting in the Kiwanis Centre.

Cuba's new order is obvious disorder, the Ontario Supreme Court justice advised as he related some of his personal observations and conclusions about the political situation in Latin America with especial reference to Cuba and Mexico, of which he has first hand information.

The country, its people and its visitors are subject to a heavy propaganda program with banners and signs erected everywhere and the Cuban radio fare consisting mostly of political speeches, he said. Although the only commodities which appear to be in ready supply are weapons and war materials from Russia and Czechoslovakia, with food fats being unavailable and most other commodities in short supply, the people appear to support Castro.

At political rallies the people shout and cheer, although certain segments of the Cuban society are quite well organized and have even a degree of enthusiasm for attendance at these meetings, the speaker advised.

"Cuba is the centre of much propaganda activity in Latin America," Justice Landreville said. This is very well designed and planned and is taking effect in such countries as Mexico, where recent indian itrialization and nationalization moves have paralleled the Castro policies in Cuba. The Communists are preaching for a new revolution, the speaker said. In a land where there are many contrasts between wealth and poverty, education and illiteracy, health and disease such propaganda finds some favor, he observed.

It is necessary for the democratic countries to create a current favorable to the democratic form of government to show the people of the underdeveloped nations that the free countries' strength lies in the production of food and clothing not the fabrication of armaments, he suggested.

Canadians should be able to give leadership in this direction he urged, pointing out that although the methods of the Communist revolution may not meet with approval the need for the revolution to take place is understandable." The major need is to maintain the lives of human beings, he said, not to be concerned about the social system in which they live," he said.

Due to their background, Canadians have developed the characteristic of being able to understand and appreciate other people, whose backgrounds and ideas may differ from theirs, the speaker suggested. This quality has become a distinction between Canadians and their neighbors to the south, he advised, and could well form the basis for Canadian leadership in propagating the benefits of the democratic system.

Justice Landreville was introduced by Kiwanian A. O. Dyrdalla and thanked by Tom Carruthers. He spoke to a capacity audience thanks to inter-club visits from the Kiwanis Clubs of Bowmanville, North Peterborough and South Peterborough. District Governor Harold Anstey was also present for the meeting.

President George Hume presented the awards for the three best bird-feeder stations at the recent Guide-Scout Hobby Show to Wolf Cubs Gordon McCreary (first), Bob Ledolph (second), and Joe Scott (third).

Will Present Film of Cruise At Auditorium

A most interesting presentation for the entertainment of Belleville residents is being made this Saturday evening at the BCIVS auditorium in the person of Lt. Commander Jack Braidwood, RCNR (Ret.) under the auspices of the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club to raise funds for the Junior Sailing program for local youngsters this summer.

Mr. Braidwood is presented as a Russian interpreter aboard the first Royal Navy Ship to visit, HMS Ocean, in the White Sea during the First World War and served in the Royal Canadian Navy during the Second World War.

Although Mr. Braidwood has sailed all his life and has seen much waters as the Gulf of Finland, the Caribbean and the Far East he still considers the Bay of Quinte to be his first love for fine sailing.

He will be presenting a film of his cruise to such places as Bali, Tahiti, Pitcairn Island, Juan Fernandez and the Galapagos Islands aboard the brigantine "Yankee". This is the only film of its kind in Canada.

Mr. Braidwood is donating his services so that all of the receipts for his show can be used to promote Junior Sailing for boys and girls in Belleville. Curtain time for the "World Cruise of the Yankee" is 8.30 p.m., with the doors opening at 8 o'clock.

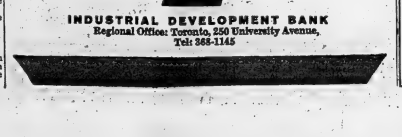
Troubled Liz Visits Hospital After Quarrel

ROME (AP)—Elizabeth Taylor, the troubled Cleopatra, was arrested Tuesday at a Rome hospital after an Hagler scandal style tiff with Richard Burton that was expected to have ended in a violent quarrel.

Attendants at Salvator Mundi Hospital said the 30-year - old film queen had come there for treatment and had remained some several hours later. They said her condition was not serious but wouldn't say what was wrong.

A secretary at Miss Taylor's villa said she went to the hospital to "see about another baby." He said she did not have food poisoning, for which she had been treated at the same hospital two months ago.



The secretary also denied a report by an Italian news agency that Miss Taylor had slopped to see a doctor in Orbetello after she left Burton at Porto Santo Stefano and drove back to Rome alone Monday night.

Rome newspapers reported that Miss Taylor stormed out of Porto Santo Stefano and raced back to Rome after a violent quarrel with Burton, her leading man in Cleopatra and her constant companion since she announced she was sure that she would divorce singer Eddie Fisher.

Burton returned to Rome alone Tuesday.

Her Life Goes to Bow-Wows Due Dog-Gone Phone Chaos

When the new 1962 Bell Telephone directory comes out it won't be any too soon for Mrs. Milton Schmidt of Angelina.

The reason is that ever since the telephone company changed her number several months ago she has had number troubles.

Ordinarily a change of telephone numbers doesn't cause too much inconvenience, but with Mrs. Schmidt it was different.

She got the number listed in the book for the Belleville dog catcher and ever since has been pestered with calls from irate city residents wanting dogs picked up, and from dog owners seeking dogs already in the dog pound.

In fairness to the phone company, it should be said that when Mrs. Schmidt notified them of her troubles they were quite prepared to give her another number.

But in the meantime, Mrs. Schmidt had notified her out of town friends of the change of number and they didn't feel like going all through that again.

But now she feels she might have made a mistake after all. The bothersome phone calls are still being received every day and the new telephone directory has still not been delivered.

City County Partnership For General Hospital Is Advocated by Committee

Formation of a partnership or some other similar relationship between the city of Belleville and the county of Hastings should be developed with respect to the Belleville General Hospital.

This is the conclusion arrived at by a special committee consisting of elected members from the city and county councils following several weeks of consultation and discussions on hospital requirements for Belleville and the Hastings County area.

The special committee has discussed ways and means of financing additional hospital facilities and has made a recommendation for consideration of the hospital board.

The need for full co-operation from all members of both councils has been stressed if such a large venture required to provide the necessary additional hospital service for the Belleville area is to be successfully carried out.

The requirement is either a large addition at the existing hospital site, or selection of a new site and a start made on a new hospital.

Both of these alternatives will be urgently pursued during the coming weeks, and hopes are entertained that definite plans for additional hospital facilities will be adopted in the near future.

Members of the special committee of elected representatives considering the hospital problem included Warden Harold Varty and Reeves Jack Brower, Thomas Burnside, Harleigh Hamilton, Earl Sager, and Norman Shannon with clerk treasurer Carl Bateman representing the county and Mayor M. E. Ellis with Aldermen Ross Bailey, Ben Corbet and George Hobbart representing the city council.

FALLOUT LIMITED

Any fallout that comes down fairly soon from the new tests is expected to be limited mostly to a world-wide belt ranging from about 2,000 to 3,5000 miles wide in tropics latitudes.

The government said that no super-size explosions—like the 58-megaton shot in the Soviet series — would be detonated. This has lead to speculation the U.S. series might be limited to blasts no larger than 10 megatons the equivalent of energy yielded by detonation of 10,000,000 tons of TNT.)

Kennedy had summed up the reason for resuming atmospheric testing like this way.

"A nation which is refraining from tests obviously cannot match the gains of a nation conducting tests."

But at the same time, Kennedy expressed belief that Russia's series last fall did not provide the Soviet Union with superiority in nuclear power.

Conflict of Interests

Last winter three Toronto men ran for positions on the Council of Medora-Wood Township, in the Orillia area. They were elected. Court action resulted in them being unseated. The Ontario Municipal Act stipulates that to qualify for office a candidate must live within five miles of the township.

The Orillia Packet and Times thinks that the Municipal Act "has fallen far behind the times" and should be amended. It even goes so far as to suggest "the setting up of a polling booth in Toronto or any other municipality where at least ten per cent of the township voters reside."

"Permanent residents presumably fear that the city members of council would manipulate all proceedings and proposals to their own advantage, meanwhile ignoring the needs of those with township homes," says the Packet and Times. "Such an eventuality is unlikely and, in fact, a council member who is not a permanent resident is less likely to be influenced in his decisions by local politics, family feuds and all other considerations which play a part in township politics than is the man whose entire life is lived on the shadow of the township line."

This is a rather strange argument. It would appear to be equally correct to say that cottage owners presumably fear that permanent residents would manipulate all proceedings and proposals to their own advantage.

The blunt truth of the matter is that permanent residents are more likely to understand and give consideration to the needs of cottage owners than are cottage owners likely to understand and meet the needs of permanent residents. The permanent residents, in most cases, have a vested interest in seeing that cottage owners—their presence brings summer business to the township and further growth of the summer colonies offers the prospect of their owners lifting a larger part of the municipal tax burden off the permanent residents' shoulders. On the other hand, when summer residents outnumber the local population four or five to one" it would be a naive person who would suppose that all the needs of the permanent residents would be properly considered unless they were provided with some privilege in respect to the municipal franchise.

No matter what may be said about the rights of cottage-owners, it is indisputably true that good municipal government is not as important to them as to permanent residents. Some special consideration may be warranted because of the high taxation of taxes paid by some townships by summer residents, but this should not be stretched to the extent of eliminating entirely the present residence limitation for council membership.

The Packet and Times notes that the Municipal Act allows summer cottagers to cast votes for a local resident as their council representative and, in townships like those mentioned by the Orillia paper where the cottagers outnumber permanent residents so heavily, any person they selected would be almost certain of election. This should be a disturbing prospect for their interests, while still protecting permanent residents from all the potential evils of absentee government. If it is not, perhaps the Municipal Act could be amended to provide that, when the assessed value of property owned by non-residents is a certain proportion of the total, one or even two of the council members could be persons residing beyond the five-mile limit.

High Cost of Selling

The U.S. Post Office has been running some $850,000,000 in the red annually. Congress has decided to do something about this. It plans to raise postal rates. First-class mail would pay 5 cents, as in Canada, instead of the present 4 cents. Third-class mail would be raised from the present 2½ cents to 3½ cents. A surcharge of one cent apiece would be placed on magazines and newspapers carried as second-class mail.

Magazine publishers have protested, not so much against the surcharge as against the increase in third-class mail rates. Publishers of the Atlantic Monthly, a publication of high prestige, maintains the increase may force it out of business. The reason: It estimates the cost of obtaining a new subscriber at $1.53 in third-class postage last year. The increase would raise this cost to $2.14 in postage, and to this, of course, must be added the cost of printing and mailing all the literature so mailed.

We cannot help wondering whether magazines who flood the mails with so much promptly discarded third-class mail ever thought of trying newspaper advertising as a substitute.

Guide to Irish Phrases

Ireland of The Welcomes

English is spoken in Ireland a fact which is deceptive to visitors from Canada, England and other English - speaking countries. The words are the same in Ireland, but they may not mean the same.

The following list of Irish phrases has been put together to help visitors: A bad road includes as getting lost in bogs, getting drowned or getting into politics, or all.

A step down the road . . . Two miles down the road, across a stretch of bog, fall into a lake, climb over a small mountain, and you'll finally get there with luck.

A wee bit of trouble down the road . . . Anything from a fire or an earthquake to a revolution. At all costs, be certain the tourist should stay out of wee bits of trouble down the road.

Whatever you say yourself, Sir . . . a term for being happily almost archaic. It used to be, and still is in some parts of Jarvey's form of answering when asked the cost of the journey. There, Sir, I'll not be charging it if you have the courage.

A hard match . . . A sporting term originating in Munster rugby circles but now widely used to describe any ball game in which the object of both sets of players is to find out how much the other fellow's flesh and blood can stand. Hard matches are always greatly enjoyed by everybody, not least by both sets of players, but touring and visiting teams should first ensure that they have the right number of the term before they get involved in one; otherwise they might just think that it is a game being nasty.

I haven't a word to say against him myself . . . But it's generally grave out about him that he's a rotten bad bowler and a poor batter and so are all belonging to him.

A fine woman . . . Any Irish female over five and a half feet tall, weighing over twelve stone and aged over forty-five.

A fine girl . . . An Irish female of similar statistics but aged less than forty-five.

A comfortable woman . . . (Physically) Any female with more than average plumpness . . . (Financially)—Any female with a bit put by for the rainy day.

An odd way . . . Local term to describe a certain shrewdness, sharp-tongued, indestructible elderly female peculiar to the city of Dublin.

That wud . . . . . It is conversation with your hostess you should happen to mention the name of another lady and the immediate and hearty response is "That wud!", then you can be certain you are not speaking of your hostess' greatest enemy.

A patriot . . . Everybody.

A traitor . . . Everybody else.

A public-spirited representative . . . anyone of our crowd who brings in big new scandal about their crowd.

A rotten lot . . . Anyone of their crowd who brings to light some scandal about our crowd.

An eloquent speech . . . Any body of three or more members committed to a political purpose.

A demonstration . . . The three or more members meeting in public.

A robber . . . Anybody who has got further in life than you.

A waster . . . Anybody who has failed to stay up with you.

A gentleman . . . Anybody who tries to do something better than you're doing it.

A mouth . . . all people hate.

ers other than oneself.

I've been had over for you . . . Can you lend me a fiver?

Will you have one drink with the United Ireland? . . . Will you come in here for a few drinks and none of your business and then we'll call on Old Joe that has a good thing for the second at Baldoyle and then we'll go on down to the dogs and sure we might as well make a night of it after that. I know a place where you can drink until two in the morning.

A bop . . . an informal flannel dance normally running from eight to twelve in which anybody is free to ask anybody else to dance.

Dress dance . . . a formal dance at which evening dress is obligatory and at which the intentions of the male must be confined to his own partner or party.

Hooley . . . A round-by-the-dressers all-stops-out affair which can easily be gate-crashed and which ends only with the break of dawn of the interference of the neighbors.

Party (formal) . . . A formal party is where you get invited for a certain time and a certain place. If the party is not visible when you get there then you should go in search of it. Most Irish parties, formal or informal, start a bit, losing members here, gaining members there, before they finally settle in for the morning. The only thing you can be certain of with a formal Irish party, is that since somebody sent out invitations for it, it must be going on somewhere.

Party (informal) . . . An informal party is where nothing is planned but everything seems to happen. Informal Irish parties have neither beginning, middle nor end, terrible means of support. The tourist should be prepared to find himself stuck in the middle of one at any time of the day or night.

Has Praise For Hansard

St. Thomas Times-Journal

Most people will have heard of the Hansard reports, but comparatively few have read them. Hansard, as it is commonly called, is officially described on the front page as "House of Commons Debates," and its full name is "The Hansard" — an exact, verbatim record of the proceedings in the House of Commons and in the Senate as well.

Harold R. Winch, CCF member for Vancouver East, rising to make a point about the previous day's debates in the Hansard report, said, "We write a big part of the Hansard report . . . For the third time in eight years I have to ask for a correction in the record. That is why I say we have a marvelous staff working on it."

Other members have their corrections to make, but—Mr. Winch's experience as typist of the Hansard men can be proud of their achievement. The House of Commons is a speaking institution which means for difficult hearing, but the reporters get it down complicated by more than one member speaking at once. Speakers also have the habit of all into their remarks before the Hansard man can see who they are.

Hansard men take turns in the recording of the debates in the Commons. But unlike the MPs they cannot escape from down and go outside for a breather until a relief reporter comes in. In many cases down the words of a quite casual speaker, and the speaker may storm ahead at 200 words a minute or more.

Hansard men are the crackerjack shorthand writers.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

SOURCE OF MUCH POWER

Are you filled with self confidence or are you filled with a haunting sense of insecurity and frustration? Confidence is the result of mind conditioned by one's reliance on him self. It is a feeling of assurance and self trust. Men of mind cannot, or course, go to an extent where it becomes a matter of inferiority. The person all swelled up with a sense of his own importance is ridiculous in the eyes of his fellows and a terrible liability so far as his own future prospects are concerned. But normal self confidence, belief that one is able to do in his life what needs to be done — this is wholesome, normal and something which we should all possess. Let us always take the position that no matter what we have to confront, we will be able to handle it. And this confidence should arise from the realization that we have plenty of power and profit if we will only use it. Most of all do we need to remember that when we have done our best there is a God who presides over the universe who will reach down and guide us and give us the lift we need.

Let us not grow discouraged amid the trials, sorrows, perplexities, and problems of life. God did not create us for failure but for achievement.

Self confidence in the best sense of the term is justified in every normal life.

One way for the airlines to start making a profit would be to stop serving meals and liquor on short trips, in order to lusty a "first class" ha...

I flew by jet-from Chicago to Pittsburgh and back last week. The trip took about an hour each way. Going, the two stewardesses served a full meal and highballs for most of the hour; returning, the two stewardesses served a full meal before we landed.

Apart from the fact that these young ladies should have more useful services to perform than to ply us with food and drink, the maids, there is simply no reason on earth why anyone should want a cup of coffee or tea on a flight so short.

But we insist into the jet age, most airplane flights are two hours or less, and passengers should be taken up and brought over to the destination as quickly as possible, with no frills.

Moreover, the whole silly scheme of dividing big planes into "first-class" and "tourist" sections — with the first-class passengers getting the same large premium for a bigger bit of food — should be junked as an obsolete idea.

More and more companies are forbidding their executives to take first-class reservations on company business, as a result of which more and more of the jets I have ridden lately have been crammed to the cattle class, while relatively deserted in the first-class compartment. Obviously, a better arrangement would be to make all flights first-class during the busy hours, arriving at awkward hours. In this way, at least, the first-class passengers would feel that they were getting some of the benefits for their several extra payment.

Transportation has become so important in modern America that the archaic and anarchic methods of regulating the railroads' passenger service cannot be tolerated in the new era of expanding air network. No more than 10 per cent of all Americans have ever ridden a plane; to a stirred more customers it is necessary to offer something beside champagne flights, delicious "first-class" accommodations and blaring great agents.

Certain Types of Tumors Should Not Be Removed

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: What is a fibroid tumor? How is it different from any other tumor? I have one in the womb, but my doctor advises against its removal. — Mrs. H.L.

I presume your doctor said not to remove it now, but to wait and see whether it grows or becomes necessary. This is par for the course. The reason for you to be either surprised or puzzled.

A tumor occurring in any part of the body is composed of the same type of tissue as is normally present there. The wall of the womb (or uterus) is made up of fibrous and muscular tissue. Hence a tumor in this tissue is a "fibroid tumor," a very common occurrence.

However, should a cyst (or tumor) develop in the ovaries, which are of a quite different type of tissue, then it will be an "ovarian tumor."

Fibroids can be little, the size of a pea or smaller. They can also be big, growing to the 30 or 40 pounds. There may be one tumor or many. There have been cases of a hundred.

On the inner wall of the uterus fibroids are most likely to cause bleeding than when on the outer wall. In either inside or outside, fibroids may (or may not) cause symptoms or problems. Pressure symptoms are painful menstruation, infertility in some cases, difficulty in doing so, miscarriages, or lesser consequences. It is indeed rare that a fibroid needs to be detected in the course of routine pelvic examination even though no symptoms are present.

Fibroids aren't removed automatically just because they are present. The question is whether or not they are doing any harm.

Menstrual hemorrhage or intermittent "spotting" are definite removal — which in general may mean hysterectomy.

Rapid growth of a fibroid is another sign indicating that it should be removed. Pressure, not cancerous in themselves, may also be likely to become cancerous. A fibroid, however, and that is one good reason for removing it when it is growing rapidly.

If one of these tumors, even though benign as is usually true, becomes fairly large, the sheer size can be a mechanical pressing on the bladder and rectum. This may be a factor in urine (a factor in kidney infections) or pressing on the bowel causing constipation.

So there are a variety of reasons why a woman with a fibroid tumor is wise, where no such troubles result, the fibroid can be allowed to rest in peace, and simply watched in case it ever shows signs of acting up, in numerous cases after menopause a fibroid may stop growing or even become smaller, and nothing need ever be done about it.

Dear Doctor: Is it possible to get pregnant while on a diet and taking diet pills? And if so would it harm the baby? — Mrs. K.M.

Certainly it's possible to become pregnant, diet or not. Diet is the "reducing pills" and your diet will have no bearing. I can say only this, emphatically: it depends on the medicine, the nature of it, and your physical condition. And you doctor advises. • • •

Dear Dr. Molner: I was told that olive oil will dissolve gall stones. I have them. What do you think of this? — L.L.

I'm sorry you have gall stones. If I knew of one case in which anything had dissolved gall stones I would say so. But I don't.

How to get rid of leg cramps and foot pains? The answer may be simple. Write to Dr. Molner in care of this paper, Box 1-Times Syndicate, P.O. Box 158, Dundas, Ill., for a copy of the Leg Cramps and Foot Pains," enclosing a long, self-addressed, unstamped envelope and 10 cents to cover cost of printing and handling.

Complains of Dust On East-End Roads

Editor
Ontario Intelligencer
I wish to air my grievances with respect to the intolerable condition of the roads in the east end of the city.

Surely considering the aggregate assessment gleaned from ever increasing property owners in the newer area, the city fathers can do something to the ever present dust problem. With the situation as it now stands, we are compelled to constantly dust throughout the house, only to find everything covered within the next hour. As far as keeping windows clean, we couldn't even start on them. It just impossible to do anything about it.

By far the most disheartening situation is the condition of our lawns upon which we have spent hundreds of dollars and in equal proportion of time only to have the grass turn to white dust from the dust.

I will not take time here to elaborate on the holes in the road as I am sure the owner are not too different from other sections of the city.

Could we be enlightened as to what road services we can expect this year if at once they have taken over the roads from the respective sub-dividers. If the city does come up with a solution, could they arrange to spray it on our east end roads?

Homemaker.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE REALIST

The editor who gets a manuscript or article that is far from attention that it can't be done is usually right. He usually gets less it be that the individual imagines he is depicting what he sees, creates what he sees, rather as the object itself actually is.

If this is anywhere near the truth then, of course, we are always sure to be disappointed in opposite — for no two eyes ever see the same thing in the same way.

But if an artist or writer, is able to make us feel that he or she writes about or depicts in a picture, then, we are brought very near to the realist.

My kind of realist is that artist who will neglect the detail and is attracted to his or her picture every time one sees it. And that author who so writes that one is fascinated by the lines and pages which keep one's eyes open far into the night.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

"There is so much graft and corruption being talked about in the newspapers that I wish they'd said a very well-to-do man of my acquaintance, "that it is becoming nothing else to be rich. Everybody thinks you got it by foul means."

The man to whom he was speaking, across the table in the Ritz dining room, is a director of a big bank, a lawyer who has been looking after wealthy men all his life, is keeping them out of the hands of a variety of ways.

"Most really rich men," said he, "don't show it. It is just you ballitch, or sawwich, who can't resist putting on the dog. Back in the bad old days, around 1900, the thing to do was when you gained wealth was to build a garden, surround it with brick preferred, and have a grand gravel drive, and plant curved gravel driveway, and a horse and carriage. You sent your children to the best finishing school, and you went to Europe once a year for the pickled. You had a silk hat. Your wife had emeralds, and you had a fifty-dollar cigar with a man today have skinny wives, and no silk hat. They live in apartments, and have old, run-down summer homes. Only when they get arthritis do they buy a limousine. Their daughters are beatniks. Really rich men never look rich nowadays, and don't eat rich. Times have changed for the truly wealthy."

school trustees, agreed new sources of revenue soon must be found to meet rising education costs.

L. R. Cullen of the Iroquois Falls public school board charged newspapers had overplayed Quebec's refusal at the Canadian conference to surrender its provincial education rights. To overcome French-Canadian resistance to federalism is this field, he proposed that bilingualism be reserved in English-speaking schools.

O. T. Sigsworth of Toronto said provincial autonomy in education is retarding Canada's development. He suggested creation of a national education office as a first step toward massive federal involvement.

Dr. R. W. B. Jackson, research director of the Ontario College of Education, said federal funds are available for research into almost any subject but education.

Linguistics was the theme of two speakers at Tuesday's sessions.

Professor Charles Carpenter Fries, retired professor of English at the University of Michigan, said applying the science of linguistics to teaching English in the early grades could cut a year from the time it takes a child to learn to read.

W. E. Hartwick, former principal of Toronto's Runnymede Public School, told the group primary section there are five main reasons some children are unable to spell:

Poor enunciation by the teacher; poor pronunciation by the teacher; insufficient knowledge of a word's meaning and use; the number of syllables; and the fact 46 sounds in the English language are spelled in 166 different ways.

Mr. Hartwick has written several spelling guides for elementary school students.

New Y.M.C.A. Plans Are Finalized

At a meeting of the board of the Belleville Y.M.C.A. yesterday, the president, Mr. Bruce MacKenzie announced that the Y.M.C.A. will proceed with the new building in 1962. Completion is estimated for early April 1963. The Y.M.C.A. will occupy the present premises until this time.

Plans are now being finalized with the architects and a start on the building is planned for this summer.

The Y.M.C.A. has already collected well over $200,000 and this fund is growing daily. This is the largest sum ever pledged in Belleville outside the hospital fund. Residents of Belleville who have not as yet contributed to the new Y.M.C.A. will have an opportunity to do so.

The new building will consist of Y.M.C.A. executive offices, a swimming pool, three locker rooms for men, ladies and boys, a steam bath, a general exercise area, spacious lounges with plate glass exposure to the swimming pool, and social and general purpose rooms.

The new structure will be located on a six-acre site on the south side of Victoria Avenue between Herchimer and Farley Avenues. This area is efficiently served by bus from all areas of Belleville.

The new building is planned as a family recreation centre and will be one of the finest of its kind in Ontario.

Tourist Booklet For County, City Off Press

The 1962 edition of the Highlands of Hastings, outlining the various attractions in the city of Belleville and in Hastings county, is now off the press.

The new tourist booklet published by the job printing department of the Ontario Intelligencer, will be of particular interest to tourists visiting the Bay of Quinte and Hastings area. Hiting as it does many of the more attractive resorts and vacationing areas.

The historic backgrounds of Belleville and of Hastings county are included within the profusely illustrated booklet which also describes the many points of interest for visitors.

The Highlands of Hastings is published by the Belleville Chamber of Commerce in cooperation with the councils of the city of Belleville and the County of Hastings.

Salvation Army Appeal Starts Next Tuesday

The local Salvation Army Red Shield Appeal for 1962 gets underway next Tuesday, according to the statement issued today by Major John Carter, local Corps Officer. Several meetings of the advisory board have been held under the chairmanship of Mr. T. Thompson, and at a most recent meeting Mr. Frank Donnelly was again appointed chairman of this year's campaign.

Feverish activity has been the key note for the past couple of weeks with a view to building a strong organization to handle this year's appeal. The local and district objective has been kept to a minimum of $11,000 and it is hoped to fulfill the objective it will be necessary to enlist the aid of as many interested citizens as possible, in every capacity up to and including the most important work of canvassing.

Any person or persons who feel that they have the time and would like to assist the Salvation Army to continue their most needed efforts in this area could either drop into the Headquarters at 256 Pinnacle St. or telephone WO 8-8634 and leave their name. It is hoped the campaign can be concluded successfully within the first two weeks of May and the Salvation Army appeals once more for the continued generous reception and support which has always been given to them by the people of Belleville and district.

Oshawa Man Wins First Round Of Fight to Save Old Elm Tree

OSHAWA (CP) — Robert Edward Rockburne, 56-year-old cottage contractor, has won the first round of his single-handed battle to save one of Oshawa's oldest elm trees.

The tree is on a site in central Oshawa where the Kinsmen's Club plans to build a $100,000 community centre.

Rockburne arrived to protest down the tree, Tuesday they found Mr. Rockburne sitting under it.

"This tree is historical, it's older than Oshawa," he told them. "You'll have to cut it down over my dead body."

He refused to move. But the workmen started cutting one of the limbs away.

Mr. Rockburne then left, but returned minutes later with the mayor and several prominent citizens who said it was rotting and would die anyway in two or three years.

Deputy Police Chief Duncan Ferguson argued that the tree was diseased. Mr. Rockburne was unmoved.

Finally, a compromise was reached. The workmen were allowed to finish cutting off the limb and the Kinsmen's Club decided to postpone a decision on the tree's fate.

"The plain fact is that the Vancouver Sun failed to think through the problem presented by the Heathman statement and what was worse, failed to show any consideration for the position of public officials who must now clean up the mess which Cromie allowed to be created."

Thunder Storm Brings Snow To Montreal

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montrealers shoveled their sidewalks today after a combination thunder-and-snow storm dropped 2.7 inches of snow on the area overnight.

In the Windsor - Toronto region meanwhile, convertible owners folded back the canvas tops as temperatures headed into the 70s.

Driving was dangerous in the state of Maine and south eastern Quebec as flurries lashed snow flakes across the highways.

Only a few inches were expected to fall today in the Sherbrooke and Megantic areas of the Eastern Townships adding to the 20 inches still on the ground.

Snow was also falling this morning at Eon Lake, about 240 miles north east of Sept Iales, adding to the 30 inches of snow remaining.

Colder winds pushed down into the prairies, chilling air that had warmed to 80 degrees in previous days. Light snow in northern Alberta today was expected to move east into northern Manitoba.

Temperatures in Newfoundland and British Columbia were unseasonably cool, with readings this morning of 40 at Vancouver and 30-35 in Newfoundland.

The hot spot was the Toronto-Windsor area where a high of 78 was expected for Windsor; 72 for Toronto.

The weatherman said a disturbance now moving east across North Dakota may bring light snow to northern Ontario, but predicted generally that the warmer air usually enjoyed at this time of year would soon be coming for keeps.

Printed Silks Catch Fire In Shows

By PEGGY MASSEN

PARIS (Reuters) — Boldly-printed silks offer colorful and exciting effects this season and have figuratively caught fire in leading Paris fashion houses.

Capucci, Cardin, Yves St. Laurent and the school of young progressive designers have used up to 40 per cent of printed fabrics among their range of silks and silk derivatives this season.

These new Paris prints have special character, vitally different from past seasons. Bold new abstract designs contrast sharply with last year's tender floral patterns.

Classic polka dots no longer step out in neat prim rows, but are splashed like ink spots across light, contrasting backgrounds. Stripes and plaids no longer adhere to the straight and narrow path, but weave and break.

GEOMETRICAL FIGURES

Other printed patterns appear to be direct adaptations of abstract paintings seen in galleries near the Paris couture houses. There are rain streaks and splashes, dots and dashes and geometrical figures in a variety of colors.

Mr., Mrs. Fred Cook Celebrate Golden Wedding Anniversary

Last Sunday a most happy occasion took place at the Recreation Centre, Pinnacle St., in the form of the 50th wedding anniversary celebration of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Cook, of 6 Stratton Street.

During the afternoon several hundred friends were remembered by the happy couple, many of whom brought gifts and flowers, while everyone extended best wishes for many happy returns of the day.

Among those who called were his Worship Mayor A. M. Haig and Mrs. Haig, who spoke briefly; also Alderman and Mrs. Forsyth; the Reverend and Mrs. Gordon Woodcock, minister of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church; Mr. Campbell, president of Campbellford Senior Citizens' Club; Mr. Charles Hyde; president of the Bellville Senior Citizens' Club and Mrs. Hyde, also Dr. Van Blaricom and many others regretfully all church dromming lions and other city groups.

An interesting co-incidence was the fact that Mr. and Mrs. Cook's son, Henry, of Windsor, and his wife, were at the home also celebrating their 25th anniversary.

On a table with a royal blue cover were placed 100 silver 50 cent pieces arranged artistically to form the figures "1912-1962" designed by a granddaughter.

Those who were pouring and serving at the tables included Mrs. Thomas Heffernan; Miss Gertrude Bolen; Miss Elizabeth Reid; Mrs. Muriel Ketcheson. Assisting in the kitchen were Mrs. Mitchell; Mrs. Green; Mrs. Trotter and Mrs. Nolan. Refreshments were delicious including the wedding cake by a local bakery; and the floral tributes donated by a local florist.

Over 100 cards and telegrams were received including a certificate from the provincial secretary, the Hon. John Yarenko. Tributes were also received from the Hon. John Diefenbaker, Mr. Elmer Sandercock and Lee Grills.

A large number of beautiful gifts and money were on display.

At five o'clock the happy couple sat down to enjoy a delicious turkey dinner along with 82 members of their family and friends. Those at the head table were Mrs. Harry Giddings, a sister of Mrs. Cook of Toronto; daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Saunders and sons; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Cook, of Windsor; Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Cook; sons of the honored couple, and Mr. Earl Lambert and his daughters.

Also at the dinner table were

Woman Spent 105 Hours Beside Nest

REGINA (CP) — Mrs. Dick Bird of Regina spent 106 hours beside a nest waiting for a golden eye duck to hatch.

Her patience was rewarded. She was able to film the sequence as part of a series of films she and her husband made during three summers for Walt Disney's production, Arctic Wilderness.

The husband-and-wife wildlife photography team have produced and made films in Bermuda, New Zealand, British Guiana and Jamaica.

Their film Nature Trails has twice been shown to the National Geographic Society in Washington.

They have made many films for television but Mrs. Bird says much of the story is lost without color.

"In nature one learns to rely on color and think in color. After spending time, effort and thought to put a film together, then seeing it in black and white, one loses a lot of enthusiasm."

During the last six years they have made a year of lecturing tours, including appearances at the Franklin Institute, the Philadelphia Academy of Science, the Chicago Museum of Natural History, Explorers' Club and Columbia University.

In one stretch they lectured in 146 cities in 156 days.

The hostess group, Mrs. H. Bleecker, Mrs. K. Bush and Mrs. G. Wessels served delicious refreshments.

The Easter meeting of Bethel Zion United Church Women was held at the home of Mrs. Earle Hay with a good attendance. The president, Mrs. Percy Ray, presided and opened the meeting with an Easter poem.

The May meeting will be held on May 10 at 2.30 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Sayers. It was also decided to pack a bale at the next meeting; members were asked to bring their donations. Plans were made for the CGIT banquet.

Mrs. D. Rowe led the worship service. Scripture reading was taken by Mrs. J. Ketcheson, followed by a solo, "To Love That Will Not Let Me Go." Mrs. Laurence Ketcheson read the story — "Peace Has Come Out of the Storm."

Mrs. Richard Cranston was in charge of the study program for the afternoon. Readings were given by Mrs. J. Ketcheson, Miss Mildred Ketcheson, Mrs. Sills, Mrs. Cecil Ketcheson, Mrs. L. Ketcheson, Mrs. G. Ray, Mrs. P. Ray and Mrs. Rowe.

At this point several of the ladies put on a most interesting skit "A Love To Bless All Nations".

Mr. Nicholls closed the meeting and a social half hour followed.

JOHNSTOWN — A large crowd of worshippers attended Johnstown Church at 9.45 a.m. on Easter Sunday. Miss Thelma Stickle was pianist and Mr. R. Thrasher was in the pulpit. The choir members in their beautiful gowns, and the lovely flowers, put in the church in memory of Mr. A. Reeves, gave one the feeling that God is in His Heaven and all is right with the world".

At the close of the children's hymn, the juniors retired to their class room for Sunday School.

Mr. Thrasher's address concerned the Easter season giving the thought that if one does not believe in Jesus' death, and have faith in His Resurrection, what is there to believe in?

The Sacrament of Holy Communion was observed with the Rev. W. A. Lougheed officiating and Mr. Thrasher assisting. The session was represented by E. Stickle; A. Meyers, E. Harvey and M. Harder.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Donald G. — My father makes me account for every penny.

Mr. L.G. — It's good training. He sees his mistakes.

Donald G. — I'm 11 years old and in junior high. My parents have made an allowance deal with me which sounds good but is really awful. The amount is okay. It covers my carfares, lunches and school supplies. It also lets me have a coke or a pizza a couple of times a week, and there's enough for a movie. If I'm careful, I can even treat a friend to a ticket.

What bothers me is that my father insists on my keeping a record of every cent I spend. At the end of the week he wants to see it. Why? As long as I don't run short or start to borrow, he should leave me alone. He makes me feel like a baby.

Mrs. L.G. — What's wrong with teaching a child how to handle money? It's good to get into the habit of keeping track of where it goes. I still jot down personal expenditures in a little book. Just as with Don, I give myself an allowance and I try to keep within it. I budget myself, and, writing things down shows me where I went wrong or else how smart I was.

I don't intend to command him to stop buying comic books or start walking a mile to school. My idea is to show him how he might make his money go further, even save some in a small bank account for a big purchase. That might even add a few dollars to interest him in interest.

The Council: A misordered house used to offer a real hanger for a nickel. If you sent for it you got a nail. Now, Mr. G., would Don learn more from mailing in his nickel and getting stuck, than from listening to you tell him it's a fraud? We think he would.

Having pockets that go jingle-jangle makes a kid feel ten feet tall, but only when it's his own money, not change for the milk bill or money to be tested by, as is Don's allowance. While it is hard for a parent to stand back, watching his child make a mistake in spending, Mr. G., must do just that for a few weeks if he's really interested in equipping Don for money-handling on his own.

Naturally Dad can tell in a flash where Don is overinvesting and overpaying. But don't tell Don, Dad. Not right away. Not every day. Life will be telling him more cogently, more impressively, than you can, if he weakens one week and blows the bankroll on between-meal hamburgers, he may have to ask you for an advance on next week's stipend to make good his offer to buy two shakes on a raffle. His embarrassment while pears that the hamburgers were a mistake — more eloquently than your admonition could.

It's no real fun, no challenge deciding how to allot one's funds under the eye of experience looking over one's shoulder. Dad has the look, of course, but not too often, and preferably only when Don seems to be in need of an audit. At first his purchases will be based upon trial-and error, trial-and-delight. Mr. G. should let him float along on his heady sense of importance. If he's headed for the cold gray light, seeing called "insufficient funds" he'd better hit it the hard way. Soon. That would soften him toward the counsel of his Dad, with or without an advance on next week's allowance.

The only time for stepping in here would be when Don's spending becomes so unbridled and capricious as to present an emotional difficulty behind it. Ma' must be helped to take power over more than money.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

MAIL CALL

Question: When setting a tea table, where should the napkins be placed? Should they be placed alongside the tea plates or should they be sandwiched between the pinched plates? I've seen both methods used, and am curious to know which is correct. — Mrs. J.C., Pleasantville, N.Y.

Answer: Napkins should be folded and placed between the tea plates which are stacked conveniently for you to serve sandwiches offered as refreshments.

Question: The husband of a friend recently died. I only learned of his passing a few days ago, I'd like to send her flowers instead of just a note, and wonder if this would be appropriate. Would you please advise me? — Mrs. A.C., Washington, D.C.

Answer: Flowers may be sent soon after a death in the family. The card, though, should be signed in such a way as to avoid reference to the recent bereavement. "Affectionately," or "With love," followed by your name, would be appropriate.

Question: In my office it's customary to take up a collection and give a gift to everyone and anyone who gets engaged, married or has a baby. It's practically a weekly occurrence. My office is large, and I feel myself contributing to gifts for employees I barely know. Is it proper manners to refuse to ante up unless the gift is for someone I at least have a nodding acquaintance with? — C.A.O., Brooklyn, New York

Answer: To my mind, it's very inconsiderate of the person passing the collection to approach everyone about making a contribution. Friends and close co-workers may correctly be solicited and generally they're only too happy to make a tribute. "Outsiders" often make one feel as though they're being put ill-mannered to pass up a collection for a total stranger. Many offices have a "kitty" which employees "feed" periodically, and special-occasion gifts come out of this fund, so it's unnecessary to make collections at all. It seems the most sensible solution and one that saves a lot of time, trouble and embarrassment.

The Experts Say

'Canada Approved' Meat Kind to Buy

By EDNA BLAKELY

OTTAWA (CP)—To be absolutely certain you are buying good meat for your family, deal only with reliable retailers whose policy is to sell only meat inspected and stamped "Canada Approved."

That's the advice of the Consumers Association of Canada.

Dr. C. K. Hetherington, director of the federal meat inspection services, says more than $5 per cent of meat and poultry consumed in Canada now is inspected, compared with about 70 per cent in 1956.

Last January, 225 meat establishments had federal inspection. Twenty have been added since then, and another 20 will be added within the next three months. The meat inspection service has received more than 150 applications for inspection since January, and Dr. Hetherington says "every effort is being made to accommodate them."

DOUBLE INSPECTION

Federal inspectors examine animals before and after slaughter, and plant facilities must meet federal sanitation regulations.

Federally-inspected and approved meat bears a round stamp, brown with a crown in the centre and the words "Canada Approved." The stamp is also found on labels of canned and packaged meats.

Federally - inspected poultry bears the words Canada Approved on the label which also notes the grade. But poultry that has been graded has not necessarily been inspected.

Only plants that export meat to another province, or country are required by law to have federal inspection, but many others use the service.

The consumer section of the federal agriculture department says beef that has been federally inspected may also be stamped by federal graders. Veal lamb and pork are not sold by grades.

The top beef grade is Canada choice (red brand) which comes from young steers and heifers of choice quality, and has a high proportion of meat to bone. It has a good covering of fat, and the lean is well marbled with fat.

Canada good (blue brand) has a slightly lower proportion of fat to lean meat than Canada choice.

Canada standard (brown brand) has a lower proportion still of fat to lean meat. Other grades are rarely seen on the retail market.

VOW Sends Message To Kennedy

MONTREAL (CP) — The Voice of Women, a Canadian organization urging universal disarmament, sent a message to President Kennedy Tuesday asking him "to have the moral courage" to call off nuclear tests.

The VoW sent messages at the same time to Premier Khrushchev of Russia and Prime Minister Macmillan of Britain.

Mr. Khrushchev was told he will earn the gratitude of humanity if he refuses to resume nuclear testing, no matter what the United States does.

Mr. Macmillan was asked to use his influence with the American president "to break this vicious circle of nuclear testing, which jeopardizes all hope of nuclear disarmament."

The messages were signed by Mrs. Helen Tucker of Toronto, president, and Mrs. Therese Casgrain of Montreal, vice-president.

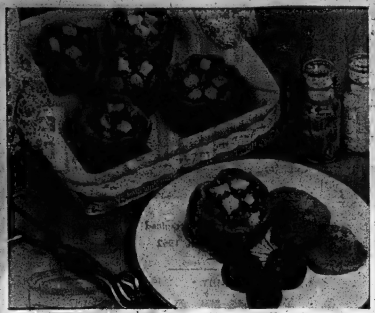
Chincilla Tastes On A Rabbit Income

by Mary Moore

The last time hamburg was spotlighted here I received such enthusiastic responses I decided to continue.



After talking to the manager of a big grocery I found that green peppers were scheduled to be in good supply at fair prices so bought some of them and some ground chuck beef and lugged them home. I made Stuffed Green Peppers, and an auxiliary meat loaf from that stuffing and at the same time Eleanor made a new tomato-glazed meat loaf. See tomorrow to, for Chinese Sweet and Sour Meat Balls which call for ground beef or hamburg and green peppers.

So now we are ready to give, and hope that the hamburg hounds in this audience will chip this — now.

THE LADY PROSPECTS — McKinnon, wife of a Timmins, Ont., miner, became interested in prospecting years ago and now owns nine claims.

Stuffed Green Peppers are great favorites with folks who like pronounced flavors—and with cooks whose eyes are everlastingly watching costs. Mary Moore gives you a different and quick method for stuffing green peppers today.

WEDNESDAY (Guessis)

Dinner Menu

Roast Stuffed Lamb Shoulder; Caper Sauce; Pan Roasted Potatoes; Buttered Fresh Frozen or New Green Peas; Celery Hearts; Apfel Kuchen (see Monday); Coffee.

GLAZED MEAT LOAF
(serves 4 generously)

1½ lbs. ground chuck or hamburg, 1 cups grated old cheddar cheese, 1 tablespoon grated onion or dried flakes, 1 teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon pepper, 1 teaspoon dry mustard, 2 tablespoons chili sauce, 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce, ¾ cup milk, 2 small eggs.

(Note: Ground chuck is preferable because it contains less fat than hamburg. If you use hamburg add ¼ cup fine bread or cracker crumbs.)

Mix together ground meat, cheese, seasonings, milk and eggs. Pack into loaf pan which can be carried to the table. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for 50 minutes. During the last 10-15 minutes baste with Tomato Glaze: 1 tablespoon water, ½ teaspoon garlic powder, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, ¼ teaspoon oregano, ⅛ cup tomato paste, 2 tablespoons honey. Combine above ingredients in a saucepan and simmer 10 minutes and pour over loaf during last 10-15 minutes of cooking period.

Note: Do not turn this meat loaf out on platter. Its charm is its top glaze.

Christianity Expanding In India United Church Women Told at Meet

By GEORGE McNEVIN

TORONTO (CP)—The people of Africa are taking to Christianity with an intensity that makes North American Christians "look like dilettantes," Rev. Peter G. White, superintendent of Sunday school publications for the United Church of Canada, said Tuesday night.

Mr. White, in an address concluding first-day activities of the first annual meeting of the board of women of the United Church, said African young people are approaching Christianity eagerly and asking questions to which people with a much longer Christian history and tradition are hard put to find answers.

Such questions as why three Africans should be executed for the death of one white and "are the men who make hydrogen bombs Christians?" could not be dismissed casually.

An explanation of the British legal procedures by which the murderers were convicted failed to impress the asker, who replied that the victim had forgiven them before she died. Africans were equally unimpressed when told that the hydrogen bomb is a symbol of progress.

HEAR REPORTS

In business sessions, reports were heard from conference chairmen from Newfoundland to British Columbia, dealing with problems created by formation of the new board to govern the United Church Women, organized in January to replace the Women's Missionary Society and the Women's Association.

The 30-member board represents about 350,000 members.

In reports of conference chairmen, several indicated a reluctance on the part of some of the old groups to join the UCW. Mrs. E. L. Woodworker, president of the Montreal-Ottawa conference, said 46 womens' groups, only 56 had indicated willingness to join. Mrs. W. J. Weatherhead of Sharbot Lake, Ont., president of the Bay of Quinte Conference, reported a similar situation.

There was no estimate available of the number of group or members who have remained outside the UCW.

Mrs. K. R. Rose of Toronto, reporting for Mrs. T. M. McIntyre who was absent, and Mrs. R. J. Davidson of Regina, president of the Saskatchewan Conference, criticized the board's existing constitution.

SHOULD HAVE RIGHTS

Mrs. Rose said local presidents should have voting rights at the presbyterial level—they now are denied this—and Mrs. Davidson said the church work and by-laws need "streamlining and clarification."

President Mrs. J. D. Hutchinson of Toronto said in her address there is a need for a reappraisal of the roles of men and women in church work. Women broke new ground with formation of their own board but there could be "no great change in their status without a corresponding change in the status of men."

A worship service officially inaugurating the new board was conducted at the start of the sessions by Moderator Rt. Rev. Hugh A. McLeod.

UCW Meetings

RYLSTONE U. C. W.

RYLSTONE — On April 11th, the members of Rylstone Church Women, held their regular meeting in the Church with several visitors from Springbrook and Stanwood organizations and a few other local guests.

Mrs. Wilfred Spencer, president was in charge of the devotional. The Scripture reading St. Luke 22 was given by Mrs. Cecil Finch, secretary and the meditation and prayer by Mrs. Spencer. Two minutes silence was observed in memory of Mrs. John Stewart, a member who passed away since the March meeting. A letter was read re the regional meetings.

The meeting was taken over by Mrs. Will Rutherford, chairman for Christian education who read a short poem. All joined in a chorus of "Brighten the Corner" and Mrs. Ralph Wellman read "Challenge of the Cross". Mrs. Clarence Thomson rendered a beautiful piano solo of sacred music, portraying the crucifixion, death and resurrection of Jesus.

The Easter thankofferings were gathered by Mrs. Ross Hickie and Mrs. Ellis Jones. Mrs. Bob Spencer gave a vocal and accordion solo "Just A Closer Walk With Thee". Reading "Preacher's Wife" was given by Mrs. Will Rutherford. Mrs. H. D. Pillen wife of the minister, gave an interesting talk on "Christian Education" and she was presented with a corsage from the members by Mrs Ray Stewart. The hymn "O Love That Will Not Let Me Go", was sung and the meeting closed with the Lord's Prayer Benediction.

Mrs. Delbert Fleming of Springbrook U.C.W. moved a vote of thanks to the Rylstone ladies for their hospitality.

Dainty refreshments were served by the hostesses, bringing the afternoon to a close.

Prospecting Now Serious Business for Housewife

TIMMINS, Ont. (CP)—Mrs. Elaine McKinnon's philosophy is and I know she will be good on "if you can't lick them, join them."

That's why she's a mining prospector.

Her husband Donald is secretary-treasurer of the Timmins Prospectors and Developers Association.

Since Mrs. McKinnon loves walking—she used to hike three miles to work every morning when she worked for a Timmins lawyer—it was an easy step to joining her husband in his forays in the bush in search of minerals.

Prospecting was at first a hobby for the couple but now it has become serious business.

Mrs. McKinnon, whose idea, naturally, is Viola MacMillan, president of the Ontario Prospectors and Developers Association, has nine claims in nearby Shaw Township which she staked with her husband.

"In a couple of weeks we will start drilling and that means a lot of work," she said.

DAUGHTER TO JOIN

Next winter the McKinnons will be joined by a third party on their prospecting jaunts. Their nine-month-old daughter Donna has already become accustomed to spending most of the day outside with her mother.

"Donna has very straight legs snowshoes," said Mrs. McKinnon. She produced a pair of moccasins, handmade by the Indians, that Donna will wear on her first trip.

Mrs. McKinnon, who says the "being warm is half the battle of outdoor living," wears a quilted jacket, high rubber boots, grey woollen miners' socks and a white parka with colorful embroidery made by Indians at Moose Factory on James Bay.

Her preference for walking is a matter of choice, "not necessity. The McKinnons have two cars but she prefers to travel on foot "regardless of the weather, rain, shine or snow. "I think this might be one of the reasons I enjoy prospecting so much. Bush life is another world of its own, no bustle or traffic. Also food has a taste all its own."

'Made in Canada' Approach Reveals Way to Compete in European Common Market

OTTAWA (CP)—An American industrial executive said Tuesday a "made in Canada" approach paid his company dividends in its Canadian operations and revealed a way to compete in the European Common Market.

C. R. Jones, general manager of Cooper-Bessemer of Canada Limited, said his firm's decision to produce heavy machinery at Stratford, Ont., has provided jobs for Canadians and lessened the amount of imported equipment used in the Canadian petroleum, natural gas and other industries.

The clue to success, he suggested, was having more than 60 existing Canadian manufacturers supply most of the necessary components to be assembled by the wholly - owned American subsidiary.

This had the double-barrelled effect of keeping the wheels of production turning for the suppliers and lowering Cooper-Bessemer's own capital investment. The result proved a satisfactory that the American parent company now was planning to adopt the same approach in its European operations.

Mr. Jones was among more than 50 delegates to present technical papers Tuesday at the annual meeting of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy.

Mr. Jones said his company, which makes gasoline-heads, cylinders, compressors and other equipment, was brought to Canada to manufacture these products in the same way as in the U.S. In view of Canada's smaller market, this type of scaled-down operation was rejected as uneconomical.

The answer was to lease an old CNR plant at Stratford and use the facilities, machine tools and craftsmen of more than 30 Canadian companies to produce the components for the assembly operation. These companies supplied pistons, heads, cylinders, parts, bolts and even pipe fittings.

"Our suppliers have done a bang up job. They have been eager and willing to learn and have welcomed the opportunity to fill some of the valleys in their own operation."

Mr. Jones, who said new Canadian suppliers had since been found for more items originally imported, considered the operation beneficial in other ways.

"I contend that the money that doesn't leave Canada, regardless of whether it be profits, taxes or with various service companies adds to the gross national product and that is the basic objective."

Dr. E. W. R. Steacie, president of the National Research Council, said Canada cannot tolerate a "permanent situation" in which it is largely "technically dependent" on other countries.

He told the institute banquet that from the point of view of industrial research Canada is in underdeveloped country and is one of main recipients of technical aid from abroad.

"There is no doubt that our present position is an uneasy one," he said, "and that our future welfare depends on our being more self-sufficient in research."

C. M. Bartley, mines department scientific officer, spoke of the emergence of fluorspar as the most important mineral in the rapid development of the fluorine s h e m i c a l industry. Previously, the significance of this new use for this mineral had not yet been recognized in Canada.

He said fluorspar, familiar as a flux for the kiln and hearth used in aluminum production, is the only adequate and practical source of hydrofluoric acid, "a key chemical in industrial processes."

Another paper, prepared by J. C. Sproule and Associates, geologists, suggested that Eastern Canada may be a new source of supply for oil and as exploration than the West.

Significant new oil deposits had been found in the Cambrian sandstone of northwestern Ontario while the geology indicated possibilities of oil and gas in Lawrence lowlands, Anticosti Island, and parts of the Maritimes and Newfoundland.

Court Holds No Separate Cause of Action for Alienations of Affections

Three Kingston Men Will Not See Game

HULL, (CP)—Three supporters o. Kingston Frontenacs learned Tuesday that they won't be in the stands to cheer for them when their team meets Hull-Ottawa Canadiens in the first game of the Eastern Professional Hockey League finals.

They'll spend the night in a Hull jail instead.

Albert Mahoney, 37, of Kingston pleaded guilty to assaulting a police officer Sunday evening. A co-accused and two spectators defended Hull-Ottawa in the last of seven series of the one game apiece.

Kenneth Peters, 21, of Kingston, and Robert Hutchinson, formerly of Kingston and now of Ottawa, pleaded guilty to rioting and entering a room in the Hull courthouse in an attempt to free Mahoney.

Two other men are also being sought by police in connection with the breaking and entering.

Judge Avila Labelle, a regular patron at hockey games in the Hull Arena said Hull welcomes supporters of Kingston "who act like gentlemen."

"But we will not tolerate disorders such as you have caused."

He fined Maberley $50 and ordered the Peters brothers to pay damages of $62.50—one-half of the damage caused in the attempted jail break-out.

Judge Labelle, said their conduct was "shocking" in Saturday victory Sunday but noted that "the series is not over yet."

He then ordered that the men be held in custody until Thursday "so you won't be able to be at the game in Kingston Wednesday."

SET COCKTAIL VOTE

KITCHENER (CP) — Kitchener council Tuesday night approved a city-wide vote on cocktail bars to be held during next December's municipal election. In 1957, Kitchener residents voted in favor of licensed dining lounges.

OTTAWA (CP) — The Supreme Court of Canada ruled Tuesday that there is no separate cause of action for alienation of affections in Canada.

The court made the declaration in dismissing an appeal by Frank R. Kungl of Leamington, Ont., a g a i n s t Tony Schiefer, also of Leamington, for damages for criminal conversation between Schiefer and the wife of affections of Mrs. Kungl.

Kungl originally sought damages of $25,000 from Schiefer for criminal conversation and $25,000 for alienation of affections.

The action involved an appeal by Kungl against a judgment by Chief Justice Gordon Wismer of the Ontario Supreme Court awarding Kungl damages of $10,000 and ordering a new trial in the case of affections.

The $10,000 included damages of $7,500 that Maberley must pay $5,000 for alienation of affections.

Mr. Justice J. R. Cartwright said in his judgment that the reasons for judgment that "there is no separate cause of action known to the law of Ontario."

WOMAN ATTACKED, ROBBED

Mr. Justice Cartwright said Kungl had attempted to assault Schiefer at $6,000.

Kungl Mr. Justice Cartwright said, "has not a separate cause of action for alienation of his wife's affection but such alienation, insofar as it has been established, is the result of the criminal conversation and is one of the matters to be taken into account in assessing the damages."

He said that there are a number of Ontario Appeal Court judgments in which "the assertion is made that there is a cause of action for alienation of affections does exist in Ontario." However, he said, "that insofar as they do make the assertion they ought not to be followed."

SEEK ASYLUM

HAVANA (Reuters) — About 40 Cubans Tuesday requested political asylum at the Uruguayan Embassy here. They entered the embassy grounds in a group Sunday and refused to leave.

Russia, China Hard Hit by Food Shortages

HONG (AP) — Russia's 1961 grain production was 4,000,000 tons below the 1958 record and Communist China was hit by increasing food shortages, the Food and Agriculture Organization reported Tuesday.

The United Nations agency's 1962 world commodity review here says the populations of Soviet and Communist Chinese officials that they have serious agricultural problems on their hands.

It said Communist China still was having serious difficulty with drought and reduced crops.

The review said grain production in the Soviet Union last year amounted to 137,000,000 tons well below the 141,000,000 tons grown three years before.

World prices for farm products continue to drop.

An improvement in agricultural prices in the immediate future "is hardly to be expected," the agency added.

Prices of primary commodities remained excessive. Unsold surpluses of grains, coffee, sugar, and cocoa bean oil were especially high.

Eichmann Now Has Bible to Read in Prison

JERUSALEM (Reuters) — Former N a z i official Adolf Eichmann, accused in death by Israel as a mass murderer of the Jews, Bible has also agreed to accept "spiritual advice," a Canadian-born Protestant minister said Tuesday.

But these facts do not necessarily imply a "change of heart" on Eichmann's part, said Rev. William L. Hull, a native of Winnipeg.

Hull said he has twice visited Eichmann after he was convicted of organizing the murder of 6,000,000 European Jews during the Second World War.

Hull's wife, Lilian, who speaks German, acted as interpreter at one of the meetings.

She is the first woman who has been allowed to see Eichmann in Ramleh Prison, where he is held pending the outcome of his appeal against his death sentence.

The minister said the talks were confined to "spiritual matters—religion in his soul and future judgment," the minister said.

LOSS IS $40,000

WALLACEBURG, Ont. (CP) Loss was estimated at $40,000 Tuesday in a fire that destroyed the Skinner drain pumphouse in Tilbury Chatham Gore Township. Firemen believe a grass fire may have caused the blaze, The pumphouse was used to drain 2,500 acres of farmland.

Macmillan Meets Queen, Then Leaves for America

LONDON (Reuters) — Prime Minister Macmillan left London here to New York today for an eight-day North American visit.

Macmillan held an unexpected hour-long meeting with Queen Elizabeth before his departure.

Macmillan's plans to meet the Queen were only disclosed a short time before he drove to Windsor Castle where he presumably explained the aims of his overseas trip.

Press reports here said the principal matter is considering following up his North American visit with a "reconnaissance" trip to Moscow.

But a foreign office spokesman discounted the reports saying "as far as we are aware there is no plan for any such move."

Macmillan's scheduled departure from the New York-bound flight of two British mothers who will criss-cross his American route with a petition against U.S. plans for a resumption of nuclear testing.

During his visit, Macmillan will meet President Kennedy, United Nations Acting Secretary-General U Thant and Canadian Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

His meeting with Kennedy Saturday is considered broadly aimed at maintaining a close Anglo-American alliance as a cornerstone of British foreign policy.

But Macmillan also is reported by three British newspapers to be planning to refer a proposal for a meeting between himself and Soviet Premier Khrushchev.

The Daily Herald under the front page headline, "Macmillan wants to see K alone," says that the British leader was expected to press for a Macmillan-Khrushchev meeting either in the U.S. or Moscow.

The Daily Express says Macmillan would prefer a Soviet-power summit of the United States, Britain, Russia and France. But he would tell Mr. Kennedy that he was prepared "at any time" to make a preliminary foray by himself.

The London Daily Mail says both Britain and the United States recognize that a new initiative will be required after the resumption of nuclear testing.

"Whether this could take the form of a Moscow sounding by Mr. Macmillan will be one of the items on the Kennedy-Macmillan agenda," the paper says.

While in New York, Macmillan will address a banquet of the Associated Press of Publishers A s s o c i a t i o n Thursday and have a luncheon visit with U Thant.

From the U.S., Macmillan will fly to Ottawa for talks with Diefenbaker April 30 and the morning of the following day.

On the afternoon of May 1, he will fly to Toronto to be guest speaker at the Canadian dinner of The Canadian Press, before flying back to London May 2.

K. Agrees With Kennedy Need Accord Ere Summit

NEW YORK (AP)—Premier Khrushchev has told an American publisher he agrees with President Kennedy that accord on crucial issues must precede a new summit meeting between the two leaders.

But the Soviet premier gave no ground on major East-West issues in an interview in the Kremlin last Friday with Gardner Cowles, president and editor of Look magazine and president of Cowles Magazines and Broadcasting Inc. and Tribune Company.

Khrushchev told Cowles he sees a green light with Kennedy that they should meet again only if such a meeting could produce positive results.

"We should first reach some agreement on the questions on which our common decision is really needed now to avoid a conflict and war," he said.

The Soviet leader expressed hope that a major war could be avoided, but he repeated his previously stated support for defensive war against an aggressor and wars by subject peoples to liberate themselves.

During the wide-ranging discussion lasting nearly five hours, Khrushchev told Cowles he thought an agreement on Berlin and Germany should precede any disarmament agreement, but that he realized the arms issue was "the question of questions."

The Soviet leader made clear he had not budged in his refusal to tolerate any form of nuclear inspection, which he looks on as merely a cover-up for espionage.

Khrushchev expressed belief that a settlement of issues in Berlin and German settlement have appeared in the current exchanges between the United States and the Soviet Union. He said he sees a basic Kennedy condition for such agreement—withdrawal of Western troops from Berlin.

Khrushchev placed no time limit on the current talks and indicated he is prepared to pursue the present effort to reach a Berlin solution without applying any sudden new pressures on West Berlin.

USE PHONEY CHEQUES

Churches, Clubs Paid High Rent To Hold Games

TORONTO (CP)—Church and club representatives from five Ontario communities Tuesday testified about the rents they were asked to pay for the use of halls to stage bingo games.

William White, 43, Port Credit; Ernest Ince, 35, Etobicoke; James Ladiaw, 47, and Norman Gilmour, 29, both of Peterborough; Ernest White, 42, Whitby; William Ladiaw, 43, Galt, and Harry Gordon Law, 56, and James Cully, 46, both of London, are charged with conspiracy to operate common gaming houses in connection with bingo games between 1958 and 1962.

All are owners, managers or assistant managers of halls.

Rev. Peter Appleton said St. John the Baptist Roman Catholic Church in Toronto used the Palace Pier, a waterfront hall, free for 13 bingo sessions in 1961 before it was sold to Whitehall Investments Ltd. While when it rented the hall for social activities.

USE ARENA

John Duncan, treasurer of the Peterborough Lions Club, told the preliminary hearing it used the Brock Arena, operated by Ladiaw-White Enterprises, for bingo games. The rent ranged from $150 to $200, depending on attendance, he said.

Keith Bone of the Galt Kinsmen Club said Whitehall Ladiaw charged at least $125 to hold games at the Highlands, a public hall.

Eric Clarke, bandmaster of the Whitby Boys Band, testified it stopped holding games in the Civic Auditorium, rented from Ernest White for $100 to $125 for each session, after being advised by officials.

David Sisket of the Queensway Lawn Bowling Club testified the club paid Whitelaw Enterprises $300 a night to hold bingo games in the pavilion.

The hearing continues.

Fee-for-Service Basis Proposed For Doctors

REGINA (CP)—The Saskatchewan Medical Care Commission is proposing paying doctors on a fee-for-service basis under the scheduled rates but now receive from voluntary prepaid schemes and already established government programs.

A meeting with the college to discuss "certain details and some variations also is being sought by the commission for not later than May 7."

Copies of the letter to the college were sent to each of the 900 registered physicians in Saskatchewan.

The program, which has opposed the government plan, has 11 participating agencies and a meeting of its members May 3-4 in Regina.

Two Missiles Are Destroyed

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The success strings of two U.S. missiles—the Minuteman and Pershing — ended abruptly in a pair of spectacular explosions Tuesday.

The Minuteman blasted out of an underground silo Tuesday night on an intended 4,900-mile test flight and burst into flames just after blast apart. Huge hunks of flaming debris splashed into the Atlantic Ocean just offshore.

The air force reported the rocket deviated from course and was blown up by the range safety officer.

Several hours earlier, a Pershing missile exploded shortly after the cape and met the same fate. Some blazing pieces fell in populated areas, but no one was injured.

Pershing rockets are solid-fuel weapons.

Annulment of Peronista Election Victories May Mark Start of Trouble

By CARMEN CUMMING
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The annulment of Peronista victories and the subsequent bitterness of the bidding of the military may mark only a new phase rather than the end of Argentina's political troubles.

The many backers of former dictator Juan Peron, after almost seven years in the wilderness, are not likely to accept a new banishment quietly.

And even if the military does force the civilian ranks of the imposing order on the country, the resumption of normal democratic government will be difficult.

The annulment decree, signed by President Guido Tuesday after five weeks of tangled maneuvering, voided the March 18 vote in which Peronistas elected governors in the provinces and supported four other successful candidates. It also wiped out the results of all municipal elections back to last Dec. 17 and ordered federal intervention to take control of all 22 Argentine provinces.

But the decree, which followed military takeovers in the presidential palace and election of the 47 chamber of deputies seats won by Peronistas in the March 18 voting, left many questions unanswered.

The results stunned military leaders and led to their ouster of President Arturo Frondizi, who had convinced them it would be safe to lift the ban on the Peronistas and let them run in the election.

In the last few days, while sharply divided among themselves, the armed forces have been unanimous in insisting that the Peronistas must not be allowed to take office.

For a time last weekend it appeared that the upper hand had been taken by Guido and a group of "legalist" officers who wanted the elections voided only with congressional approval.

On Sunday, however, the navy chiefs issued an 800 marines in Buenos Aires and demanded that Guido sign the annulment decree on his own authority

Peronist followers can hardly be blamed if they see indulgence in a system that allows them to win votes but they cast their ballots in the right direction.

Even before the annulment decree they had promised several strikes and even violence if their winning candidates were not allowed to take office May 1.

If they carry out their promises now the resulting crisis could be one of the gravest the country has faced by the crisis-plagued country.

Final Division of Free Time for Electioneering On CBC Is Announced

OTTAWA (CP)—The Conservatives gained at the expense of the Social Credit party Tuesday in the final division of free CBC network time for electioneering.

Liberals and New Democrats retain the same proportion of time they had in the 1958 election, under the arbitrary split made by the Board of Broadcast Governors.

The 1962 split is key in a court of last resort when the four parties were unable to agree among themselves on how to share the 26 hours of free network time for the June 18 election.

Picking the formula that applied in 1958 was left to a joint agreement in a meeting here last Saturday of the governors and this brokerage of private parties on each of the four main political groups.

Progressive Conservatives, Liberals, seven, New Democrats, five, Social Credit, three. The only change from 1958 is that Social Credit has one quarter-hour period to the Conservatives.

RADIO AND TV

This formula applies on a total of 24 free network hours—18 on radio and six on TV—on CBC English television network of 82 stations. In the 1958 network of 17 stations, the transcanada radio network with its 24 stations had 18 hours of free radio network, which has 38 outlets.

The same 9-7-5-3 ratio will apply to the two free hours that the CBC will provide on the Dominion radio , network, which consists of 24 stations.

Effective starting date of the free time is up to the CBC. But the CBC has said it will allot the two months leading to the June 18 election in equal shares.

In all cases the free broadcasts will be in so - called "prime time" on TV time.

ALMOST CUT OFF

The Conservatives were, by division of time, the last broadcast roughly on the proportion of Commons seats held by each party.

On that basis, Social Credit with 30 seats would receive only no time at all—it was left without broadcasting time in the 1958 election, it was only with the agreement of the other three parties that it got the time obtained any free time.

The Liberals, in national campaign, chairman of the Liberal party, said Tuesday night the division of free broadcasting time "discriminates against the Liberal party." He said in a statement that representatives of the four parties agreed on a time division Saturday. The BBG decision "ignores the agreement reached on Saturday by representatives of the four parties."

He said the Saturday meeting agreed to give the Conservatives 8½ broadcast periods, the Liberals 7½, the New Democrats 5½ and the Social Credit 2½.

Allister Grosart, national director of the Progressive Conservative party, said "there was absolutely no a g r e e m e n t reached Saturday."

Jury Criticizes Medical Staff Of Hospital

EDMONTON (CP) — A coroner's jury investigating the death of eight-year-old Katherine Wood of Carvel, Alta., Tuesday criticized the medical staff of Royal Alexandra Hospital in which she died in the care.

The child died in the city-owned hospital March 4, five days after a chest examination given under anesthetic. The hospital pathologist said a rubber tube in the girl's throat was the original factor in the death.

The six-man jury said "not sufficient attention was given by doctors, nurses or staff involved to the fact that the deceased was not eating, had lost weight and continually complained of a sore throat."

A four-inch rubber tube called an airway was inserted in the girl's throat during the chest examination to prevent her swallowing her tongue.

Dr. S. M. LeBer, assistant pathologist at the hospital, told the jury the airway went undiscovered until only a few minutes before the child's death.

The jury recommended that the use of airways should be recorded on the chart. It also suggested that the rubber tube which was held in place by tape to a part of the patient's clothing to prevent the airway from falling back into the throat.

Shah of Iran Gives Comics Good Laugh

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The Shah of Iran and his beautiful queen were hopped Hollywood Tuesday on his own grounds.

After a luncheon in the 20th Century Fox commissary, where guests included such comics as Red Skelton, Danny Kaye and Bob Hope, the shah got the only laugh. As the rich outglamored the glamor girls, he was given the line by his wife telling a bawdy story of the perils of what he termed "the royal business."

The story, unprintable, drew guffaws from the men, titters from the women and this remark from Skelton: "A-tough act to follow."

The Empress Farah had a roomful of actresses dressed over her Dior ensemble—a pale yellow coat and dress of raw silk topped by a matching straw hat.

MINING MODERNIZED — Government-sponsored Industrialisation schemes carried out in Wales since the end of the Second World War have changed the face of the Welsh countryside. This is a view of the Own cooking and by-products plant (left) and coal preparation plant (right), the largest reorganization and development project in South Wales. (CP from UKIO).

Persuasion, Bullying Policy Has in 25 Years Changed The Face of South Wales

By ROD CURRIE

CARDIFF (CP)—Hitler and a government industrial policy of "persuasion and bullying" have in 25 years changed the face of South Wales, bringing a fresh stability to an area once notorious for its tragic depressions.

The beginning of the end of the black days in the coalfields, when the entire economy swayed with the demand for coal, actually dates back to before the Second World War. But the major planned change came in 1945 and since then more than 300 firms have settled in South Wales, providing 150,000 new jobs.

It was the discovery of coal under the green valleys north of this capital city that is the mid-18th century started attracting Welshmen and others by the thousands into the sparsely settled agriculture area.

Today South Wales—the counties of Glamorgan and Monmouthshire — contains two-thirds of the total Welsh population of 2,615,000.

LITTLE UNEMPLOYMENT

In three decades the dependence on coal mining as a [illegible] from 87 per cent to less than 25 per cent. Unemployment, which once gave the area the unenviable distinction of being the most depressed in Britain, now hovers around two per cent.

The ironmasters of England followed the coalmasters into the valleys and during "The First World War business boomed. When the slump came in the late '20s, unemployment was more than twice the national average —30 per cent over the whole of South Wales and up to 80 per cent in the hardest-hit eastern colliery districts.

By 1938 poverty had driven some 400,000 workers and their dependants to London and the industrial English Midlands, a fact that still angers ardent Welsh nationalists who feel the government should have done more to help keep Welsh industry afloat.

Ironically, the first boost was caused by Hitler. Uncertainty on the continent caused refugee industrialists from Germany, Austria, Czechoslovakia and Hungary to relocate and a number came to Wales.

BUILT WAR PLANTS

Subsequently the British government, under the threat of approaching war, exerted ordnance factories in Wales and induced important contractors to move their operations there for greater safety from bombings.

Despite full employment, during the war the government foresaw the dangers of trying to convert South Wales to peacetime operations. Even before the fighting ceased South Wales was designated one of the areas likely to be in "special danger of unemployment."

Under the Distribution of Industry Act of 1945, the Board of Trade—a government department—was empowered to build factories in the development areas for renting on "advantageous terms" to industrialists who had to make loans to undertakings needing assistance.

The main aim of the board was to restrict expansion of big industrial centres and divert needed operations to less well-off places.

"This," says Neal Hopper, research officer for the board in Wales, "is where the persuasion and bullying comes in."

RELY ON PERSUASION

Actually, the government can't force an industrialist to build where the board wants—but the catch is that the board can prevent him from building where he wants if it is in an already developed area.

"Mainly, we rely on persuasion," Hopper says.

Inducing industry into the most northerly parts of the narrow valleys—where labor is available—has been particularly difficult. The government has countered this to some degree by building small factories on speculation and then looking around for tenants.

"We have been remarkably fortunate" in this scheme, Hopper says. And often, after a government - sponsored operation breaks the ice, privately financed industry follows.

The project which in less than 20 years has brought the 350 new factories into South Wales has involved a £30,000,000 government investment in rented factories and £3,000,000 in building loans.

Tomorrow: Coal no longer king in Wales.

WALES NOW INDUSTRIALIZED — Wales, dependent on coal mining for three decades, is now highly industrialized and there is little unemployment in areas once considered the most depressed in Britain. Map locates main cities and towns in Wales. (CP Newsmap).

MINES NO LONGER MAINSTAY — Mining, once the main industry of South Wales, now accounts for less than 35 per cent of the country's work force. Those Welsh miners boarding a bus at Pen-y-graig are mostly descendants of another age of miners who toiled 12 hours a day in the pits.

Tessier Tops In EPL

OTTAWA (CP) — Two more Eastern Professional Hockey League honors were heaped on playing coach Orval Tessier of Kingston Frontenacs Tuesday.

Sportwriters and sportscasters in the six EPHL cities named the 29-year-old centre the most valuable player and also gave him the sportsmanship award.

Tessier, who has had two brief flings in the NHL with Boston and Montreal, earlier won the league's individual scoring championship and was named all-star centre.

He received 26 of a possible 30 points to take the most-valuable-player award with four first-place votes and two second-place votes. Goalie Cesare Maniago of Hull-Ottawa Canadiens received 14 points and Harry Sinden of Kingston was next with six points.

Tessier nosed out teammate Bob Attersley 19 points to 17 to take the sportsmanship award. Billy Dea of the Canadiens was third with seven points.

PLAN BASEBALL MEETING

NEW YORK (AP) — Commissioner Ford Frick said Tuesday he will call a major league meeting within a month to discuss the player development program that has been drawn up by a major-minor league committee.

The committee met Friday in Chicago to discuss a player development program that would involve realignment of the minor leagues had of assuring major league support. Frick said no details of the plan could be announced at this time.

John Galbreath, president of Pittsburgh Pirates of the National League, is chairman of the committee.

And Not A Word About Casey

NEW YORK (AP)—Every headline in the sports section of the New York Mirror Tuesday heralded Monday night's first victory of the young New York Mets, after nine straight defeats.

Some samples:

"Nichols wins golf, but Mets win a game!"

"Record 1KO trot fee, but Mets! Whee!"

"Merry Roller hits tobhogan, but Mets hit jackpot!"

"Moss brushes death in race, but Mets come alive."

The headline over the story of the game in which the Mets beat Pittsburgh 9-1 was: "Mets off the hook: Win one straight."

Parents Say 'Quit' Moss Condition Better

LONDON (AP)—Both parents of severely injured racing car driver Stirling Moss said today they want him to quit the sport that has made him famous.

"You can't go on seeing your son have accidents without wanting him to give up," said Alfred Moss, the driver's father, who has been with him constantly since Monday's crackup at a British racing track.

"Nothing knows that I have felt like this for a long time," Mrs. Aileen Moss agreed after seeing her son lying unconscious in a South London hospital specializing in brain surgery.

"I would like Stirling to stop racing after this," she told reporters. But I don't want to think about it now."

Moss suffered serious head injuries in a 100-mile-an-hour smash at an Easter Monday race meeting watched by 100,000 fans. An early morning bulletin on his condition said he had maintained his "slight improvement" on Tuesday throughout the night.

Moss Sr. said he no longer thought his son's condition was a matter of life or death.

"Twenty-four hours ago, they were testing his blood pressure, temperature and pulse every 15 minutes. Now they're doing it every half hour."

Moss' retirement would deprive British auto racing of its biggest name. In 18 years on the track, he has had 89 crashes but has come back each time to seek the world championship which has always eluded him.

RACING FIGURES DOWN

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Florida's racing season ended Tuesday and unofficial totals for the 109 days of racing at this state's four tracks show an attendance of 1,605,313, off 43,425 or three per cent. Betting amounted to $137,766,388, a drop of $1,418,527 or .89 per cent.

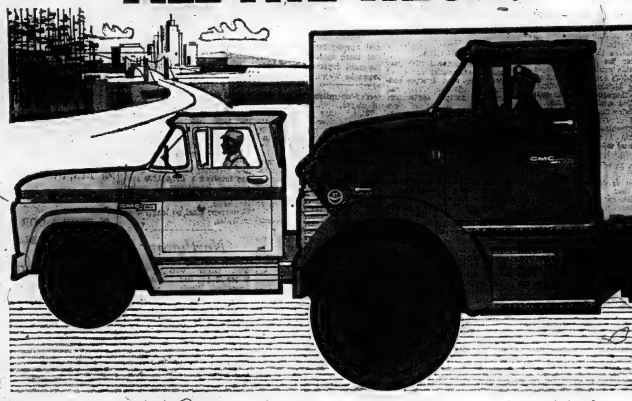
Will Quit If Not Traded

WOODRUFF, S.C. (AP)—Sammy Taylor, regular catcher for Chicago Cubs, said Tuesday he will quit baseball if he is not traded.

Taylor, 29, said he is not making enough money to keep up two homes, in Chicago and in Woodruff, where his wife prefers to live, with their four-year-old daughter.

Taylor said he has no team in mind he wants to be traded to.

In Chicago, Cubs vice-president John Holland said Taylor was suspended when he failed to show up for Tuesday's game with Los Angeles.



Taylor confirmed that Holland had refused him permission to visit his home in South Carolina and told him he would be suspended without pay if he went. "My family means more to me than baseball," said Taylor.

CHALLENGER REPLACED

SYDNEY, Australia (AP)—Gretel, Australia's challenger for the America's Cup, beat the trial yacht Vim decisively Tuesday in both windward and spinnaker work. Gretel, which had exhibited weakness in light winds earlier, won by a quarter-mile over a 15-mile course. Vim is an American yacht purchased for trial-races against Gretel.

Dick Powell Show Being Renewed for Another Year

NEW YORK (AP)—There are times when it seems that television land is inhabited exclusively by cowboys, crime fighters and comedians.

That, in itself, wouldn't be so bad, but the comedians seem to be night club graduates who take their old routines in Danny Thomas style into what television fondly believes is a home like yours and mine.

Therefore, it is nice to report that Dick Powell, just about the last of the talented comedy actors, is still adding a deft touch to amusing shows.

Tuesday night was a peppy example—a slight tale about a corporation lawyer retained to protect a poor working girl who had been plagiarized.

The girl, however, was a stripper of high principles whose choreography had been seized by a rival. It was a funny idea and Powell and his aides made the most of the situation.

The anthology series, which has included serious as well as comedy shows, has been renewed for another NBC season.

It should be—it's one of TV's best hours.

Recommended tonight: Bob Hope Show, NBC, 9-10 EST—With Frank Sinatra, Janis Paige and Dorothy Lamour.

Sandy Koufax Strikes Out 18 Cubs

Second Time In Career

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

One of these days Sandy Koufax will strike out 30 batters in a nine-inning game and perhaps may recognize that the Los Angeles Dodgers southpaw is the greatest strikeout pitcher of modern times.

For the second time in his comparatively brief major league career, Koufax equalled the major league strikeout mark when he fanned 18 Chicago players Tuesday as the Dodgers routed the Cubs 10-2.

That gave the 26-year-old Brooklyn native a career total of 322 strikouts in 980 innings, an average of better than one strikeout per inning.

No other pitcher in the history of baseball averaged a strikeout an inning.

Pittsburgh Pirates won their 11th game in 12 starts, defeating San Francisco Giants 7-1, the same score by which Cincinnati Reds downed the New York Mets. Milwaukee Braves defeated Philadelphia Phillies 2-1 and Houston Colts shaded St. Louis Cardinals 4-3.

CUBS CARDWELL

Tommy Davis and Duke Snider drove in seven runs between them as the Dodgers clobbered loser Don Cardwell and three relief pitchers for 12 hits. David drove in four runs with a home run and a single, Snider batted in three with a home run and triple.

Koufax, fanning eight of the first nine batters he faced, finished with a flourish, striking out the side in the ninth for his third victory in four decisions.

Sandy's 18 strikeouts matched the record set in the American League by Cleveland Indians Bob Feller against Detroit Tigers Oct. 2, 1938 and later equalled by Koufax against San Francisco Aug. 31, 1959. This is a National League daytime strikeout record since Koufax' 1959 effort was achieved at night. Feller accomplished his feat in an afternoon game.

It marked the 32nd time in his career that Koufax fanned 10 or more in a game. Feller and Waddell share the record, each having struck out 10 or more 54 times.

NEEDED HELP

The league - leading Pirates put five of their seven hits together for a five-run fourth inning against loser Juan Marichal as Al McBean registered his second triumph. He needed ninth inning help from Elroy Face. Catcher Don Leppert homered for the Bucs.

The Reds scored four runs in the first against New York starter Craig Anderson and went on to inflict the 10th defeat on the Mets, who have won only one game. Cincinnati rookie Sam Ellis allowed only one hit but was replaced by Moe Drabowsky in the sixth after scoring his 10th and 11th batters. Wally Post hit two doubles and a home run. Vada Pinson also homered and Eddie Kasko had three hits for the Reds.

Two Canadian - born hurlers toiled for the Mets. Right-hander Ed Bailey, who pitched the second inning and gave up a run and two hits. Left-hander Ken MacKenzie of Gore Bay, Ont., pitched two hitless innings, striking out four batsmen and walking one, before giving way to a pinch hitter.

Warren Spahn scattered nine Philadelphia hits and doubled home the Braves' first run. Three straight hits after two outs in the ninth ruined Spahn's bid for his 65th lifetime shutout but he finished the final Phillies batter himself to preserve his second victory of the season and 311th of his major league career.

Southpaw Hal Woodeshick clinched a six-hitter for Houston against St. Louis and ex-Cardinal outfielder Don Taussig homered in the sixth, off loser Larry Jackson, for the clincher. It was Woodeshick's second victory without a defeat and Jackson's first in three decisions. It was the Cards' third straight defeat since winning their first seven starts.

Meet Brandon Or Edmonton

Wings Eastern Champs, Eye Cup

HAMILTON (CP)—Hamilton Red Wings completed their destruction of Quebec Citadels Tuesday night and won their first crack at the Memorial Cup.

The Wings survived some shaky early going, then turned on the visitors to win 9-3 and take their best-of-seven eastern final 4-0. They now meet either Brandon Wheat Kings or Edmonton Oil Kings, who have their showdown series tonight in the Dominion junior hockey championship opening Sunday in Toronto.

Happy coach Eddie Bush hopes it will be Edmonton, since both the Wings and the Oil Kings are farm clubs of Detroit Red Wings of the National League.

"That would keep it in the family," smiled Bush.

The powerful champions of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior 'A' Series twice came from behind one-goal deficits to lead 2-1 at the end of the second period and outscore the Citadels 5-1 in the third.

LAUDED BY LOSER

"They are a great team," said Quebec coach Lea Cormiveau after it was over. "No alibis, no alibis — they're great."

Left winger Jon Rudasso and captain Howie Menard each scored two goals, Paul Henderson, Earl Heiskala, Lowell MacDonald, Wayne Rivers and Jim Peters added singles. For Quebec it was Jean-Guy Talbot with two and Gilbert Laforest. the latter one of three Junior B callups.

A far-from-capacity crowd of 3,185 turned out to watch what was probably the roughest game of the series. The 16 minor penalties were divided evenly and both clubs were given opportunists, each scoring three goals with a manpower advantage.

The Red Wings, with a 47-32 advantage in shots, again made life miserable for Quebec goalie Jocelyn Cardinal who was forced to withdraw by an attack of nausea with seven minutes left in the game. He was succeeded by Fernand Rivard, who wasn't scored on.

TRIO BENCHED

Cormiveau benched three regulars — Yves Lacoste, Simon Gratsier and Jacques Lachance — in favor of junior B players Laforest, Yves Derome and Andre Lacroix.

Laforest's goal, which gave the Citadels a 3-1 lead, was one of the prettiest of the night. He circled the Hamilton defence, then went around the goal and tucked the puck behind Buddy Bloom.

After the game the Wings received the Richardson Trophy, badge of Eastern Canada junior hockey supremacy, from president Jack Rombough of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

This week marks the joining of the annual Battle of the Bulge. It will last for three or four weeks with intermittent jousting, and over a period of years, this turkey lover has yet to come out on the winning end.

To give these one-sided affairs a more peace-like name let's say that starting tonight the batters of the city's leading leagues go to the plate in the opening tilt of the Knife and Fork League.

The pitching is good—in fact it is excellent. It is served up with speed and accuracy. Generally it comes right across the plate in slices of white and dark meat, drumsticks and other anatomical chunks of the royal bird. Nobody strikes out. A few walk—for more.

Bowling, like any other sport has had its sacrificial heroes. But nothing can equal the sacrifice made by the King of the Barnyard to the ceremonial celebrative functions that mark the seasonal conclusion of successful bowling leagues.

He has turned up hot—and cold, and his scarcity retinue of savory mashed potatoes, golden gravy, the vegetables, salads, jellies, condiments, ad-lib, nothing of mouthwatering desserts, has chattered many a solid wall of dieting will power.

However, this department's vice-president in charge of cholesterol, calories and liquid diets, has it that some of the top leagues have decided on a menu change. This season, he says, they should lessen the mortality rate of the Clan McGobbler. One is going "southbay" and will serve an New Orleans fried chicken. Another has turned western and will nibble and gulp on roast beef (government inspected.)

As an expatriate Haligonian (by adoption) I was hoping that some of these days this city would turn up with a Bluenose or Herring Choker League which would wind up its seasonal activities with a tasty binge of pickled lobster, oysters on the half, a few steamed clams, and a chowder for dessert.

But there is another side to these calorie-loaded cargoes de cuisine. Beneath the light-hearted raillerie, and good-natured banter of the banquet table, there is a deep-seated sense and spirit of sportsmanship. The friendship "that cemented" with the start of play on the lanes, snaps back into even stronger bonds at the celebrative parting of the ways.

Champions rub figurative elbows with runners-up. Victors and vanquished exchange genile "jibes." A touch of envy perhaps, but not an iota of jealousy. Bowlers, I find, enjoy a sort of camaraderie that though fierce of competition does not leave the dark taste of ill-feeling.

The highlight of these season-end sotrees is the presentation of trophies and awards to league champions and runners-up, collectively and individually. Of course there are some with gourmet tendencies who give the culinary offering top billing.

Generally speaking, there is collective tribute to those who finish as proud possessors of the championship award. Beneath the lighthearedness of post-presentation banter there is—if you look close enough—a gleam of achievement in the eyes of the winners. They are proud—and rightly so.

Then suddenly it is all over. The captains and the kings have received their just awards—the accolades of the ranks of the losers. Occasionally at this social there enters a serious note. A matter of league business is brought up. Sometimes there is discussion. Sometimes an election of officers. Everything ends on a happy note.

This calory-conscious agent generally faces some dozen of these pleasant gatherings in the life of the Knife and Fork League. I enjoy every minute of them. But there comes a time when the belt-buckle stretches in protest. After all five of these calory masterpieces in a week is something that every self-respecting stomach would face with a touch of trepidation.

But it is worth it. After all, three or four months of drinking dinners out of a liquid food can should be rewarded. And I know of no better "trophy" than a dozen or so platters of the gastronomy delights one gets at these pleasant bowling finales.

SPORTSMAN PASSES

This department, with sportsmen of the city and district extend deepest sympathy to the relatives of Pete Morgan, well-known city hockey player, who passed away yesterday. Pete was one of the better right wingers this city ever turned out who combined sportsmanship and friendliness with his sports ability. He was a member of Eddie Thomas' famous Cities Service team and also played with Sudbury, the Brockville Maroleons and the Toronto Red Indians. Pete was popular and will be missed by a large circle of friends.

Tigers Win, Yankees Beaten

Rookie Braves Help Tribe To Top

By MIKE SATRET
Associated Press Staff Writer

The combined talents of a highly - touted rookie centerfielder and a rookie pitcher are mainly responsible for Cleveland Indians' occupancy of first place in the American League today.

In fact, both figured in the winning run as the tribe edged Los Angeles Angels 3-2 Monday night. Rod Taylor, the 24-year-old hurler from Leaside, Ont., scored it in the seventh inning on a triple by Ty Cline, the 22-year-old outfielder.

It was Cline's third extra-base blow of the game and his second run batted in. He scored the third himself.

For Taylor, who wasn't even on the Tribes' roster till the week before the season opened, the run was a happy climax to a steady pitching performance that brought him his first major league victory.

HAS FIVE HITS

Cline, trying to live up to a host of press clippings after only two seasons in organized ball, now has five hits—all for extra bases—in his last 11 trips to the plate after failing to hit his first dozen appearances.

Meanwhile, Baltimore Orioles stretched their winning streak to four with a 2-1 victory over Minnesota Twins. Detroit Tigers blanked Kansas City Athletics 1-0 behind Don Mossi's four-hitter, Chicago White Sox whipped New York Yankees 3-1 and Boston Red Sox bopped Washington Senators 4-1.

Taylor, pitching for the first time since he lost his debut after hurling 11 shutout innings, gave up only three hits before yielding to reliever Frank Funk in the seventh. He struck out three batters and walked five. Leon Wagner accounted for the Angels' runs with a two-run homer in the sixth that tied it and paved the way for Cline to provide the clincher.

Doug Powell's bases - loaded single with two out in the ninth drove in two runs and capped a four-run rally that gave the Orioles and Milt Pappas (2-0) their win over the Twins after Jack Kralick had checked Baltimore with no run and four hits for eight innings. Joe Bonikowski (1-1), working relief of Kralick, took the loss.

FIRST START

Most (2-1) beat rookie Dan Pfister, making his first major league start for the Athletics, in a stirring pitchers' duel. Going into the eighth Pfister had the Tigers blanked on one hit, but Chuck Wood's double and a single by Rocky Colavito brought in the only run of the game. Pfister (0-1) wound up with a three-hitter.

Floyd Robinson's two - run homer in the eighth inning off Ralph Terry—14-10 got the job done for the White Sox after Joe Cunningham's single had driven in the tying run against the Yankees. The victory went to John Buzhardt (2-1), who gave up a homer to John Blanchard in the second and needed relief help from Frank Baumann and Turk Lown to wrap it up.

Pete Runnels, who hit Ivy three homers last year, hit a pair with the bases empty to support Galen Cisco's four-hit pitching for the Red Sox. Runnels' shot in the eighth inning off Joe McClain (0-1) snapped a 1-1 tie and gave Cisco (2-0) the run he needed to send the Senators to their seventh consecutive defeat.

MONTREAL (CP)—Fiddler's Green, a five-year-old brown horse from Montreal, won the featured 3-4 and 3-2 pace at Richelieu Raceway Tuesday.

Shady Dale Payoff paid $4.70 and $3.50 for second and Sandy Dares was third, paying $4.20.

Casey Batting For Beer Whiffed by Frick Pitch

By JIM BECKER

NEW YORK (AP)—Kathy Kerah is batting for Casey Stangel in beer ads. And Stangel is $500 poorer, and a reprimand richer.

It was learned Tuesday that Casey drew the fine and reprimand for posing in a baseball uniform for advertisements for the beer company that sponsors radio and television broadcasts of his New York Mets.

The offending ads showed Casey Stengel in a Mets uniform and a pair of droopy blue baseball socks last worn by Gary Cooper in a movie. The Mets manager is in position to bunt, although Miss Kerah, who represents the beer company, is standing behind him, in a tight knit dress and high heels, already holding the baseball.

Commissioner Ford Frick said Tuesday the ads "were a violation of baseball rules, which prohibit men in uniform from posing for alcoholic beverage ads. But they won't do it again.

"The advertising people were very co-operative, and it was all handled properly.

"In future ads the bat will be in the girl's hand, and Casey will be out of the picture."

FINE NOT CONFIRMED

Frick would not confirm that Stengel had been fined, but it was learned that he was.

The commissioner did confirm that he found Casey's bunting style worthy of reprimand, too.

"If Casey is going to teach bunting he should be a little more careful to keep his eye on the ball. It's behind him in the picture," Frick said, with a twinkle.

Those dreamy stockings? Seems the photos for the ad were taken some months ago in California, where Stengel spends the winters. The Mets shipped a batching wetsuit ready yet, so the ad agency rustled up a pair at a movie studio.

They were the pair worn by Gary Cooper in Pride of the Yankees. Cooper, now dead, was about a foot taller than Casey.

Allan Cuppers Open Thursday

Montreal, Trail Poised

MONTREAL (CP)—Montreal Olympics flew to British Columbia Tuesday to meet Trail Smoke Eaters in the best-of-seven Allan Cup hockey final.

The teams open their series in Trail Thursday night. All games will be played out West.

Trail edged Saskatoon Quakers 4-3 in games to represent the West in the senior amateur hockey finals. Montreal eliminated Kapuskasing Cks 4-0.

The Smoke Eaters are in the final for the second time in three years. They were beaten two years ago by Chatham Maroons.

The Olympics, newly organized this year, have been tagged as a Cinderella team because they ended up third in the four-team Eastern Townships Senior League and went on to defeat all opposition in the playoffs. They are riding a 10-game winning streak.

Leafs Went To the Dogs To Do It

TORONTO (CP) — The Stanley Cup is usually won by hockey players, but this year's winners — Toronto Maple Leafs—had an assist from a boxer.

Stafford Smythe, president of the Leafs, told the story.

As he spoke, he patted the boxer on the head. Duke is not a ring type boxer. Duke is a dog.

"Duke was one of the conditions in the trade we made for Bert Olmstead and you'd have to say that Olmstead certainly helped us win.

"When we tried to deal for Olmstead with Montreal Canadiens, Frank Selke said he's make the deal only if I bought his boxer puppy from him.

"So, to get Olmstead I had to take the dog, too.

"It's been a good deal all around."

PORT HURON, Mich. (AP)— Port Huron Tuesday was awarded a franchise to operate a professional hockey team by the board of governors of the International Hockey League.

Application for the franchise was made by Jack F. Wismer, co-owner and general manager of radio station WHLG on behalf of the city. The team will play in the 81,500,000 sports arena under construction in Port Huron.

Indianapolis dropped out of the league Monday. The league is still considering requests for franchises from Fort Wayne, Ind., Denver, Colo., and Windsor, Ont.

The Tracks

FORT ERIE, Ont. (CP)— Canada's three-year-olds face their first major test of the season when they run in Saturday's $7,500, Queenston Stakes at the Fort Erie Race Track. The seventh annual running of the Queenston is carded for all furlongs.

Forty-one colts and fillies are chalking up as leading candidates for this year's running of the $75,000 Queen's Plate, have been nominated for Saturday's renewal of the Queenston Stakes. Racing secretary Anthony Simms predicts that he will have a dozen horses will be named when he calls for entries on Friday. It may be necessary to split the field into two divisions if there are as many as 14 starters.

King Corrn, owned by Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Boylen's Lanson Farm, is the likely favorite. The colt, which cost $35,000 when he was a yearling, ran a smashing race in his 1962 debut as he circled his field in the final 300 yards and romped as easy win.

Hal Waggoner, the former Tulane University and Hamilton Tiger-Cats football player, picked up a Sprint winner he acquired Burnt Roman from trainer Harry Davis at Fort Erie last summer. Burnt Roman, which now runs in the colors of Mr. Waggoner and Mrs. George Keane, has won six of his nine starts. The gelding has won his only two starts of this season, and he has displayed great potential.

The Trots

TORONTO (CP) — Unbeaten horses, 11 appears, have difficulty convincing the public of their ability at Old Woodbine this season.

Two of them retained unblemished records Tuesday night and both were unchallenged. Likely prizes as $17.80 and $15.30 for a $2 straight ticket.

In the seventh race, Vic Lunan scored his fourth in a row with the four-year-old black pacer, Sweet Rhythm, owned by Rod Latimer of Orillia.

Sweet Rhythm, although unbeaten to date, went to the post as a 2-1 odd underdog to gathering of 4,512.

He then outpaced Hal's Bomb, owned by Hugh McLean of Port Elgin and driven by Bill Gilmour, and the Lou Jenson's Frankie, with owner Harley Mc-Manus in the sulky.

Earlier, six-year-old trotter Helen E. Lee, owned and driven by Ken Ellis of Belleville, repaid off at 7-to-1 despite a record of two wins in two previous starts.

This was Miss Lee's race, as she paced the mile-and-a-quarter was $235.40 when Helen E. Lee was linked with Dan Thomas, owned by Grant Welberup of Oshawa and steered by Gordon King. It was the 5-bright sprint meeting's top one-two return.

Bell, ordained Miss Lee's junior, was driving because Helen E. Lee's pilot, Bill Harvey, was kicked out a three-night suspension.

These will be chopped and then shipped to Hinde and Dauch Paper Company at Trenton or to Howard Smith Paper Company at Cornwall. Successful Living

(A Canadian Social Worker Helps with Human Problems)

Husband Won't Pay Attention

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS:—My husband and I have been married for five years and in all that time I haven't been able to find the words to really express myself about my problems. He'll sit quietly, but it seems to go in one ear and out the other.

I want to be a good wife and mother but I'm afraid I'm not. My husband says I nag him too much and I know I do.

We are badly in debt because he lets people take advantage of him. He doesn't get angry or fight back when he sees this happen. He just takes it in his stride as casually as if he was making both ends meet.

My husband says I'm stubborn and always want my own way. Maybe so, but is it wrong to stick up for what's right? (By that I don't mean I'm always right).—MIXED UP MIND.

DEAR MIXED UP MIND:—You are finding the words all right. The trouble is your husband feels they are all critical. He is easy-going so he seeks the easiest way out.

Don't lay down the law—Find out what he thinks.

Getting along in marriage means many things; being thoughtful, sharing interests, talking things over, a united front with the children, co-operation in money matters, to mention a few. Never nigging.

Things will get worse instead of better unless you do something about it. Seek a social worker who can help you begin to communicate with your husband. You may find one by getting in touch with the Children's Aid Society, 83 West Moira Street, which counsels on family problems as well as when children are involved.

TO DISASTER, WAITING AND WORRIED:—Since you have not used your proper names, I cannot use your letters. Please write again, identifying yourselves. This information will be kept strictly confidential.

Astrological Forecast

For April 28
By SYDNEY OMARR

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Add to income by attending to details. Could prove one of most significant days. Take care of so-called "little things" yourself, to assure success.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Strive to push ideas across. May not always be easy for others to "follow" you, but you gain by persisting. Tonight allow yourself to splurge!

Gemini (May 21 to June 21): Tendency is to be afraid of mere shadows. Facts help. If you are in doubt, ask questions. This newspaper could prove of valuable service to you.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21): A spirited conversation this evening could bring forth facts which help your cause. Don't be afraid to investigate, exchange views. Best to wait on major moves.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21): Remember, you learn and gain by teaching. Be generous with time and knowledge. And be patient with one who might appear slow to learn.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23): Favorable lunar aspect today means you can discover romance and success all about you. The romance of living, of being with one you love or admire.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23): Strive for recognition through original ideas. No time to be a "carbon copy." Stick you neck out, if necessary and find that superiors and fellow workers are won over by your courage.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): To avoid a misunderstanding, speak clearly and honestly. Take time to size up people, situations. Analyze values.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Today may be paradox. One impulse is to attend to financial details. The other is to "have a ball." Astrology's answer: be practical!

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Venus, Mercury and Sun all favorable to your sign today means opportunities galore. How you best use them is up to you. Aim for greater freedom.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 20): Like Taurus, you make most of day by expressing love. Also, make a point of facing secret fears. No need to be depressed if you verbalize.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Wonderful day for social activity. This means you would enjoy gaiety with friends, attending theatre or class or small family gathering.

If today is your birthday . . . you find this year a time when the "light" finally shines. There may well have been cause for depression in recent past. But now the "night" is over and the dawn approaches. You make many new social contacts and have opportunity to increase income.

* * *

General Tendencies: Cycle up for Sagittarius, Capricorn, and Aquarius. Special word for Cancer: Be observant, for today the "key" you have been seeking could be quite close. People learn by looking and listening. Do so.

Blame Congolese for Scores Of Cases of Theft, Burglary And Breaking and Entering

By BERNARD DUFRESNE

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (CP)—The two Montreal girls—both secretaries at United Nations headquarters here—thought they were safe for the night.

The doors to their villa were locked and the window screens bolted. But they made one mistake. They had left the key to the front door near a window.

A burglar waited until they were asleep, cut a hole in a screen, reached for the key, unlocked the door and, probably with others, let himself in.

The thief, or thieves, stole various valuables, including some from the girls' dresser, while they slept.

A few days later, the unnerved girls, Helene Desjardins and Monique Bradette, quit their jobs and returned to Canada.

This incident, told by friends, is just one of scores of cases of robbery, burglary and breaking and entering now plaguing UN military and civilian personnel in this capital of The Congo.

UN military police blame Congolese thieves and have made arrests to prove it. They say the native bandits operate in small gangs of about five, with a couple acting as lookouts.

Another case involved Capt. Jacques Bousquet, now back in his home at Ottawa.

Thieves stole everything except one uniform tunic in his room in an apartment building for junior officers serving with 57 Canadian Signal Unit. There have been at least five break-ins at the officers' quarters, located on Leopoldville's diplomat row.

The area was barred to natives after dark during Belgian colonial times. Now, with independence, it is a favorite locale of operations for thieves.

One night, Capt. Robert Noel of Montreal was lying in bed. A Congolese tossed a pick through the screened window to see if anyone was there. The man escaped.

Generally, Congolese burglars look for such things as cameras and other articles that can be profitably sold on the booming black market.

The fight against this kind of crime is complicated by the international make-up of law enforcement bodies.

Preliminary investigation of thefts from the quarters of military personnel is done by one of the 11 non-commissioned officers of the Canadian Provost Corps stationed here. Members of the UN's own field security service investigate thefts from the homes of UN civilian personnel.

Their reports are turned over to joint patrols of British-trained Nigerian Police officers—described by Canadians as the equal of any police in a big Canadian city—and Congolese police. These patrols have cleared up about 20 per cent of all thefts by raids on the homes of suspected Congolese.

Suspects are dealt with by Congolese police authorities. They are never brought to trial. Some are summarily slapped into Makala jail here and forgotten. Others are beaten up. Still others get off free.

Apart from crime investigation, the Canadian Provosts investigate, along with members of the 37-man Danish Military Police group, every accident—44 in March—involving UN vehicles.

Because the Canadians are bilingual—French is a virtual necessity in The Congo—the load of the work falls on them, despite their relatively small number.

Their duties have taken them on field investigations. In recent months there was the theft of an impounded aircraft at Elizabethville, capital of Katanga. The aircraft later was recovered in Nkola, Northern Rhodesia, and returned to its owner, a charter company.

Arthur Jolley Admits Move Before Inquiry

TORONTO (CP) — Arthur C. Jolley, former member of the legislature for Niagara Falls, Ont., told today that in 1958 he arranged an appointment for gambler Jo e ph McDermott with the police chief of Bertie Township but said he had no further dealings with him.

Before the royal commission on crime, the former Progressive Conservative MLA said he had never been offered any "incorrectness" to do anything about the problem of a gaming club in the township in which McDermott and Vincent Feeley had an interest.

Mr. Jolley said he had received only one telephone call from McDermott and had never spoken to Feeley, and he had no recollection of four calls made by Niagara Falls police home in the summer of 1958 from a hotel credit number used by Feeley to make long distance calls.

Commission counsel Roland F. Wilson suggested McDermott's calls to the then MLA could have been made from the same number used by Feeley, Mr. Jolley's secretary-registrar at deeds for Welland County, and Niagara Falls Mayor Joe Mc- mott, recently was sentenced to 18 months The comprising to obtain information illegally from a police officer.

ENTERPRISE

Mr. Shrubb, a trim blond wearing a navy silk suit and a fancy shirt and tie, was provided with a chair in the witness box. He sat in it stiffly. He kept, with her poor nonchance of feigned, with her white gloves.

She said she gave no information knowingly to the dapper Feeley nor was paid no money by him and quit seeing him after realizing it was "not the right type of boy."

He kept telephoning her for another year, she testified.

Mr. Shrubb said she spoke to her husband for the first time about the police association last week, at the request of commission counsel Roland F. Wilson.

Shrubb was not in the commission chamber when his wife testified. Subpoenaed witnesses are not permitted to hear each other's testimony.

Mr. Shrubb told how a mutual friend introduced her to Feeley. Previous evidence has indicated that the gambler had been a guest at the Shrubb employee.

Mrs. Gladys Shrubb followed her husband into the witness box after. he had undergone three days of cross-examination and had provided headline-making testimony about associations he had been a guilded between and political and police officials.

The mention of the $2,000 payment to Mrs. Shrubb arose from testimony by former a Conservative Toronto lawyer in 1960.

Wright, along with Feeley and gambler Joseph Mc- mott, recently was sentenced to Mr. Pearson starts heading up the west coast of Newfoundland, and Mr. Douglas will concentrate on Saskatchewan for the remainder of the week.

The Liberal leader went back to the cradle of Confederation in Charlottetown to open his initial blast at Conservative rule. He said Mr. Diefenbaker "it is Canada that now needs another chance."

The NDP party is asking the public to compare its policies with the Conservative policies and performances, he said, "and that the best way to have this face-to-face discussion would be through a series of debates on radio and television between . . . Mr. Diefenbaker and myself."

Election Drive Roars Off Launching Pads

TV Debate Out Says Diefenbaker

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Its countdown completed, the campaign for the June 18 federal election roared off its launching pads Wednesday and sent out a series of sharply divided reports on whether everything is A-OKay in Canada.

Liberal Leader Pearson landed in Prince Edward Island and said, in effect, it's time to call out the reserves and another chance to make up "for those wasted years" he said.

He challenged Prime Minister Diefenbaker to a radio or television debate.

"I am not interested in providing TV audiences for others," said Mr. Diefenbaker, but for William on a non-political debate which will pay to Western hustings.

An unbiased report came from one of his cabinet ministers, Labor Minister Starr, who said at a luncheon rally "no government since Confederation has undertaken as extensive a program as we have in so short a time. The present boom is entirely to the credit of this present government and the policies it is continually striving to return the government June 18."

DOUGLAS DISAGREES

This report wasn't shared by T. C. Douglas, national leader of the New Democratic Party who said in Regina—where he was launching that country's candidacy—that the election offers the choice between democratic socialism and the present economic dictatorship.

He went on to say that, except in Quebec and Newfoundland, it's mainly a fight between the Liberals and the Progressive Conservatives.

But Mr. Diefenbaker, who speaks at Moose Jaw, and Solon E. Low, Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson, who is at Quebec City, will begin firing their artillery tonight. Underwater Sub Alarm System to Be Placed OTTAWA (CP) — The rudiments of a stationary underwater submarine alarm system will be in place off Canada's coasts by next year, defence officials disclose.

The system will be based on moored sonobuoys dropped by aircraft far out at sea in the likely channels of approach for a submarine bombardment of North America.

Officials said the RCAF now is developing a moored sonobuoy capable of being monitored by patrolling aircraft. The sonobuoy will listen for underwater noises up any detection information it receives and deliver it by radio signal to the interrogating aircraft.

In this way, Canada's maritime forces will be able to cover immeasurably more ocean than they can at the present by planes and warships.

Intelligence reports say, that Russia now has some submarines capable of launching missiles some 500 to 600 miles. This means a hostile submarine would not have to penetrate the North American coast to bombard seaports. And if it did approach the coast it may be in hit inland cities.

The improved sonobuoy is intended just as much as a research tool as an instrument of submarine defence.

Higher Japanese Imports Due in Coming Year

OTTAWA (CP)—Japan will export slightly more commodity cotton textile products to Canada this year, Finance Minister Fleming announced Wednesday.

He also said the Canadian and Japanese governments have agreed to "orderly increases" in quotas on Japanese radio and television receivers, transistor radios and rubber-soled canvas-type footwear.

Mr. Fleming's announcement represents a relaxation of restrictions on the imports of these goods from Japan.

However, a government source said there would be no increased only where it was felt that a firm in Canada's textile industry could be expected to accommodate comfortably by Canada.

The 1962 quotas for controlled Japanese imports were agreed during the following lengthy trade talks between the two governments. These restraints, in the form of voluntary export quotas applied by Japan, were started in January, 1958, in order to prevent flooding (of parts of the Canadian market with certain low cost Japanese products.

In the major field of textiles, the talks have been broadened in the last three years to cover nearly all main textile items imported from Japan.

Mr. Fleming said that in the textile negotiations other textile items have been brought under quota control.

However, Japan's quota within the cotton fabric quota has been increased by the removal of the limitation on shipments of dyed corduroy. Imports of this product will be up to about two million 1,740,000 square yards.

Similarly, the quotas on damask tablecloths—has been removed from quota control.

Also, slightly orderly increases in quotas for rubber-soled canvas-type footwear, radio and television receiving tubes and plywood, these also will be increased by 10 per cent. Quotas on transistor radios, and it will be increased by including all transistor radios and with three transistors or more, including frequency modulation, multi-band wave sets, combination sets and other specialty types.

Adams Retires As Manager Of Red Wings

DETROIT (AP) — Jack Adams, general manager of the Detroit Red Wings hockey team for the last 31 years announced his retirement today. He will be succeeded by coach Sid Abel, who will be both coach and general manager in the 1962-63 season.

Adams said he will serve in an advisory capacity to the Detroit club in the National Hockey League.

Canada recently has stepped up its program to gather oceanographic data.

As part of this program, the RCAF and others have begun a study of general sound conditions in the ocean. These conditions have a highly important bearing on anti-submarine operations.

The study of sound propagation is done in the air by helicopters ships working various sea areas throughout the year, and specifically for this purpose because of interest to Canadian defence planners.

Gathering of sound data by ship is time-consuming. Recent sound advances in the electronics field, however, will make it possible to collect a great deal of the required information from moored sensor buoys.

These buoys thus will serve two purposes at the same time: They will provide data on underwater sound waves which have been the light waves striking a glass prism while they are in the water for submarines.

What the defence planners are looking for is an underwater sound system to detect and track submarines in the same way that a radar system detects and tracks aircraft. The moored sonobuoy represents a beginning.

U.S. Spaceship Strikes Moon As Predicted

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) The United States scored a major advance in space today when the silent crippled spacecraft Ranger Four crash landed on the far side of the moon.

It was the first U.S. success in its program to put a piece of hardware on the moon, and virtually duplicated the feat of Russia's Lunik II which hit the moon Sept. 12, 1959.

Although there was no way of seeing the actual impact, scientists said Ranger Four's trajectory before passing behind the moon assured it would hit the moon and in the predicted area.

The 730-pound vehicle, launched from Cape Canaveral, Fla., Monday, completed the 231,400 - mile journey to the moon in 64 hours.

Scientists calculated its speed at impact at 5,983 miles an hour—but this would destroy the vehicle.

Electronic failures kept Ranger Four from completing many of its missions. It carried several scientific instruments, including a television camera to take closeup pictures of the moon's surface. But it was designed to operate these devices only once, haywire shortly after launch.

Macmillan Will Address Publishers

NEW YORK (Reuters). — Prime Minister Macmillan declined to say whether he would retire tonight, concluding the first day of his eight - day North American visit prior to wide-ranging talks with President Kennedy in Washington this weekend.

The premier minister was to address the men who control and direct United States newspapers at the annual dinner of the American Newspaper Publishers Association. Macmillan addressed a year ago by President Kennedy.

Macmillan arrived here Wednesday night only a few hours after the United States had detonated its first nuclear device in the resumed Pacific tests.

The prime minister refused, however, to be drawn into comments on the tests. When reporters asked him to do so, he stepped back from the battery of microphones which had been set up before him, shook his head and engaged members of his party in conversation.

PRIME MINISTER OPENS SHOW AT FORT WILLIAM

To Start Campaign At Moose Jaw

FORT WILLIAM (CP) — The serious business of election campaigning starts today in earnest as Prime Minister Diefenbaker after a visit here, billed as non-political, to open a sportsmen's show.

He was to fly his home province of Saskatchewan for a Progressive Conservative rally at Moose Jaw tonight. On the way, a luncheon stop was scheduled at Winnipeg for a meeting with Premier Duff Robbin and party colleagues.

Wednesday's visit here, though strictly non - partisan, provided enough opportunities to be seen and heard, to shake hands and pat children's heads, to gladden the heart of any politician.

The prime minister, accompanied by Mrs. Diefenbaker, was given a rousing welcome by the twin cities of Fort William and Port Arthur. He visited crippled children and aged people's homes, and twice in the day addressed crowds. He is sponsored by fellow Kiwanis club members.

GEMS EXPLORING

He was presented with an oil painting of pioneer Fort William, a gift from the city of Arthur, and a fly rod and reel.

His chief approach to politics all day was an involuntary one — an undecided picketer outside a theatre carrying a sign: "angler John don't waste your bait—no suckers here."

Liberal Robert Bednmai, picking re-election in Fort William constituency, greeted him warmly at the airport. Douglas Fisher, standing for election for New Democrat in Port Arthur, sat behind the prime minister's car at the Wednesday night sportsmen's show along with six of the Conservative candidates.

At one point in the day Mr. Diefenbaker, Bednarski, and the Kiwanis clubs here justified the Conservative party's "ordinary rules" governing election campaign activities.

The purpose of a projects is a treatment school for 31 crippled children and expenses, Prime minister and Mrs. Diefenbaker visited it.

Today brings a abrupt switch to all-out campaigning.

Conservative Leader Hallpeg by Mr. Diefenbaker's special aircraft chartered for the campaign, was a last-minute change in schedule.

He was to meet Manitoba's Progressive Conservative Premier Duff Roblin, members of the provincial cabinet, and legislative legislative members, and Conservative and Progressive candidates in Winnipeg area Conservatives. In the 1958 election conservatives swept all 14 Manitoba ridings.

The Diefenbakers went for the Moose Jaw rally or candidates in Saskatchewan's seven constituencies. His DC-4S aircraft was to land at Regina with the prime minister's party going the rest of the way by car because a Moose Jaw airfield can't handle the big four-engine plane.

Friday and Saturday the prime minister will be in his own constituency of Prince Albertia where his nomination meeting is scheduled Saturday night.

EXECUTE SMUGGLER

SEOUL (AP) — The South Korean military government today hanged Han Pil-kook for large-scale smuggling. He was the eighth man executed since the military junta established the political revolutionary coup last July.

Cling To Hope Nuclear Race Can Be Avoided

First Blast of Series Is of Research Device

LONDON (CP)—The U.S. resumption of nuclear tests in the air brought three small demonstrations in foreign countries . . . thousands of expressions of dismay . . . indignation . . . concern . . . blatant underhand-ing from friends . . . bitter denunciation from the Communists.

Mixed with fear was the undertone but faint hope, that an all-out nuclear race between the United States and Russia still might be averted before it gets out of hand.

Indian Prime Minister V. K. Krishna Menon called the tests a "tragedy" and added "one thinks a regular explosion war will now develop."

Still other voices suggested that the leadoff U.S. device in Operation Dominic, the name conferred on the 31-shot atmospheric tests in almost four years, probably rocked the Pacific waters with blasts of least equivalent to 100,000 to 500,000 tons of TNT.

FIRING SUCCESSFUL

In a terse announcement, similar to those which which followed 39 announced: underground tests, the Atomic Energy Commission described Wednesday's blast as "in the intermediate yield range." Other sources said word from Task Force 8 in the test area was that the firing was successful.

The device apparently was fired 3½ times more powerful than the bomb that levelled Hiroshima.

The opening test device was dropped from an airplane, probably a B-52 or B-47 jet bomber.

Katangan Police and Baluba Tribesmen in Fierce Battle

ELISABETHVILLE, The Congo (AP) — A gunfight between Katangan police and Baluba tribesmen broke out today in the huge Baluba camp here guarded by the United Nations force.

European eyewitnesses said UN Irish troops opened fire to break up the fighting and a number of Congolese were believed killed.

But an Irish spokesman later said UN troops fired no shots and nobody was believed killed although three Balubas were injured.

The half-hour clash occurred on the edge of the Baluba camp which is situated near the Irish camp. The refugee tribesmen and the Katangan police both dispersed when four Irish armored cars and a platoon of Irish troops appeared.

The agency said Cosmos Four was the other satellite of the Cosmos series launched on March 16, April 6 and April 26, was packed with instruments to investigate radiation and other conditions in space.

Cosmos Three was sent off on its orbit last Tuesday on the day that the United States launched the Ranger Four rocket which hit the moon today.

Bank Rate Cut In Britain

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain's bank rate — key to the rate of interest charged on borrowings — was reduced from 4½ per cent from five — the first change in two years.

The rate was reduced by ½ per cent from six March 8 and is the lowest since then.

A Bank of England spokesman said today's reduction was based on the same general consideration as the last—"A reflection of the continued strength of sterling."

The latest set of economic cuts has been to stop the flow of money from foreign investors wishing to take advantage of the high British interest rates. This has been one factor in the continuing drain on U.S. gold reserves.

TRENTON — Nathaniel J. McNair, former Trenton councillor and businessman, died on Thursday morning at the Trenton Memorial Hospital, in his 92nd year.

Tribute Paid To Life, Work Of 'Bill' Ireland

TRENTON — On Wednesday afternoon, a service was held at Hillcrest United Church for William H. "Bill" Ireland, 36 Marmora Street, in which a large crowd joined early Sunday morning at his home. He was 72.

The service was conducted by Rev. J. T. Irwin and the choir, chaimed by Mrs. Gordon Mayor, D. J. MacDonald, Q.C., Gerald A. Morden, Chief W. V. Taylor, Dr. Robert Patrick and Gerald Ireland.

Honorary pallbearers were the Hon. W. A. Goodfellow, Ontario Minister of Agriculture; Elmer Sandercock, M.P.A. for West Hastings; Sherman Graham, chairman of the board of directors at Trenton Memorial Hospital; Clements Council; former mayor F. Trenton; Gordon Trill; Dr. F. H. Bramwell Brighton; Coroner Saylor and Councillor C. V. Graham of Trenton.

Monday night, a memorial service was conducted at the Trenton funeral chapel by the I.O.O.F. Trenton Lodge, and on Tuesday evening by Trent Tuesday lodge No. 6 A. F. & A. M.

Yesterday's service was conducted by the choir and "Bill" Ireland would have wanted.

He was surrounded by his long-time friends, great and small; flanked by a guard of honor of his beloved family and in the midst of his comrades in the political strife he so well loved church.

Bill Ireland would have liked to see uniformed members of the nursing staff of Trenton Memorial Hospital filter into pews behind the honorary bearers.

He would have approved of the sincere words of the minister, Jack Irwin, "I have run the race, I have finished the course — "

"This is not a sorrowful occasion," said Mr. Irwin, "this is a triumphant one. He said 'I go to prepare a place for you.'"

He would have joined in the solemn chant of the 23rd Psalm, "Surely goodness and mercy will follow me all the days of my life and I shall dwell in the House of the Lord forever."

The simple, dignified service was designed to bring comfort to the members of the immediate family and to the legion of friends who had gathered to pay their respects to the man who had devoted his life to serving his fellow man.

Bridge Repair Work Finished One Day Early

TRENTON — Around 4 p.m. on Wednesday, Department of Transport workmen finished repairs to the west end of the swing bridge on the town bridge.

Early weekend town engineer Eric Alderey announced that the bridge would be closed to vehicular traffic between the hours of 9 a.m. and 6 p.m. on Thursday, Wednesday and Thursday of this week, but the work went along so well that it was completed a day ahead of schedule.

Pile driving operations were carried out on the paved road directly adjacent to the bridge, as a safety precaution measure.

By next week, the Tatham Company should be in the position to start work on the Front Street trunk sewer in the area and it is likely that the necessities closing one side of the bridge at a time, and traffic will be routed temporarily across the bridge in a single line.

Even though Diefenbaker was said to have to throw himself into the fray at Fort William he did manage to find time to volers at the hand - shaking level. And there were others operating on his behalf.

In Red Deer, Alta., External Affairs Minister said that one of Canada's world prestige is growing. Liberals are trying to "destroy by trying blue ruin" by saying Canada's prestige is plummeting when that is impossible. It was, he said, un-Canada.

And Mr. Green was taking of Canada's image abroad, a common Liberal campaign theme ing in from abroad.

Interior Secretary Udall of United States had told a Washington press conference that he hoped that the winner of the election would speed ratification of the Canada - U.S. Columbia River Treaty.

He wasn't taking sides in the election, he added, but he certainly "will get on with the business" of the treaty.

Meanwhile, Lionel Chevrier, Liberal member of Parliament for Lasalle-Verdun and co-chairman of the Liberals' federal election campaign made it clear that Canada's close cooperation from provincial Liberal governments.

Mr. Chevrier said in an interview in Ottawa that a Liberal victory in provincial and federal Liberal. He said that the fact that the provincial and Liberals' federal co-ordinating committee in Quebec belong to the provincial federation.

While most of Wednesday's campaign fire of opposing parties, Mr. Douglas also took the Canadian Chamber of Commerce's rights. And he had some things to say about the Canadian College of Physicians and Surgeons.

He said the Chamber's Operation Solvency "is the reply of big business to the ordinary citizen's call for cheap medicine" to form a new party."

A publicity hit sent out by the chamber, he said, shows how it "bore into other organizations and brainwash them, and to infiltrate them."

He criticized the College of Physicians and Surgeons for its objection to the Saskatchewan medical care insurance plan which, he said, gives the doctor and patient more freedom than any other medical plan in the world. He referred to the doctors as "another group who profess to be defending freedom. . . ."

FEELEY-DATED

a year before the Strubbs moved to Peterborough at the end of 1958. He kept calling her, but not so often.

"Who would he ask for when your husband was home?" asked Mr. Wilson.

"He would ask for Jack."

"Did he ever pay you any money?"

She said no.

LEAVES MONEY

On one occasion, she said, he left about $40 on the table above the bill, after they had lunch and drinks, and left early.

Asked whether Feeley had inquired about her husband's work, she said that, if he did, she put it in words she did not understand.

Explaining the acquaintanceship had been a "mistake," she said she felt that "if I got nasty, he'd tell my husband, and if I were nice with him he'd leave me alone."

One of Strubbs's last pieces of evidence Wednesday was to agree with Crown counsel C. B. J. MacKinnon that it seemed the only result from a long series of investigations to report to superiors on police-gambler liaison was that some of the contacts of these documents seemed to be getting back to the gambling fraternity.

FIND MAGISTRATE

Some other points in his evidence:

1. A magistrate whose name was kept private by the commission was in the company with Joseph McDermott, Feeley's partner in the gambling, on their Cookeville establishment in April, 1957. The same night, a remarkably card reading the same surname was found in the Royal York Club in Toronto during a raid while that club was empty.

2. A series of long distance calls from a Port Credit number used by Feeley appeared to have gone in the summer of 1958 to their Frontier Club in Bertie Township near Fort Erie but months when the club was being raided. "The club was subsequently raided and operated raids by township police.

2. Sgt. (now inspector) Jack Hatch at Windsor seemed to have the same problem of information leakage as Shrubb and had asked permission not to make reports to headquarters on gambling raids and anticipated raids.

4. A "senior member of the attorney - general's department" (unnamed) in September, 1958, had expressed satisfaction at the outcome of a successful raid on the Ramsey Club at Niagara Falls, a rival operation to the McDermott-Feeley combine. The official had commented: "I don't think I want to tie this up for a special reason," which was unspecified.

FORT ERIE MEN DENY

During the day, three former municipal officials at Port Erie and Bertie took the stand and denied knowing either McDermott or Feeley. They had been mentioned by Ontario Liberal Leader John Wintermeyer, in a legislature speech last November, as among those Fort Erie calls had come from the Port Credit accommodation number used by Feeley in Bertie.

They were Fred House, a farmer and reeve of Bertie Township at the time; Michele Fartaglia, a restaurant owner and then Fort Erie deputy reeve, and Lloyd C. Williams, a former reeve and then a Fort Erie councillor in 1958.

All disclaimed any links with gambling figures, and Mr. Fartaglia said he had told Mr. Wintermeyer personally his name had been smeared. Mr. Williams said he might be able to say he was out of town on the date of the alleged call, if it were available, but it was academic.

Mr. House produced a letter from Mr. Wintermeyer expressing regret that he had been embarrassed but saying the phone records had come from Shrubb's files. He also said he had personally received two or three protests against club raids from Frontier employees but Mitchell-sing listed as missing and believed dead—but always had referred him to the commission.

Arthur C. Jolley, Progressive Conservative member of the legislature for Niagara Falls from 1953 to 1959, was to be the first witness called today. His home telephone was listed by Shrubb among the calls from the Feeley number.

CNIB to Establish Fund As Tribute to Col. Baker

At the meeting of the Eastern Lennox County Advisory Board for the blind Tuesday night, Field secretary P. L. Timmins announced the plan to set a personal gift to Col. E. A. Baker, who has retired from the managing director of C.N.I.B., the National Council had decided to establish a fund to be known as the E. A. Baker Foundation for the prevention of blindness. This will be in recognition of Col. Baker's two years of outstanding personal service in the alleviation and prevention of blindness.

Born on a farm at Kingston, in 1893, Colonel Baker was wounded at Mount Kemmel, France, in 1915 and left for dead for 36 hours. He returned to Canada in 1916 to rebuild his life as a blind person. There was then no agency to sponsor for adult blind people except for a small Braille library.

He became secretary in 1917 of the Ontario Provincial office of the Ontario Hydro Electric power commission. In his spare time as a volunteer he joined the board of the Canadian Bureau for the Blind and was among the founders of the C.N.I.B. which received its federal charter in 1918. He served as vice-president on the C.N.I.B. executive from the same year at the request of the Canadian government he helped to organize vocational training for Canadian blind service men. In 1920 he joined the staff of C.N.I.B.

HEADS WORLD BODY

A man of untiring energy and searching mind, Col. Baker has been active in Canadian far beyond his own organization. In 1931 he helped to found the third term as president of the World Council for the Welfare of the Blind. He maintained offices under one head the problems, present and future, of sightless in more than forty countries throughout the world.

All across Canada, thousands of people, blind and sightless alike, have come to know Colonel Baker. When he announced his retirement a few weeks ago his closest friends and business associates and well-wishers would want to share in the occasion with a suitable remembrance fund.

After careful thought and discussion, National Council and C.N.I.B. division Boards, Women's Auxiliaries and staff, the Ontario Provincial Association of the War Blinded and the Canadian Council of the Blind decided that the biggest tribute that could be given to Colonel Baker, who has given so much himself might use to further his program in prevention of blindness. The C.N.I.B. has also set up the E. A. Baker Foundation for Prevention of Blindness.

Contributions may be large or small. The fund will be offered to Colonel Baker's friends and all those who may choose to contribute, according to their means, to prevention of blindness projects which will perpetuate Colonel Baker's name throughout the years to come.

VARIOUS PROJECTS

Projects for prevention of blindness are: Fellowships and Scholarships. Because of the serious shortage of specialists all across Canada, grants and assistance to encourage more young doctors to take a course of ophthalmology is an important phase of prevention of blindness service.

Ophthalmic nurses: Grants for assistance to encourage more nurses to take the training will become increasingly important.

Ophthalmic research: The foundation will make possible the provision of special equipment and other facilities not ordinarily available.

Eye bank of Canada: The first steps in this project have been taken, it has been very successful, resulting in some six hundred corneal transplants. Further research in this field is essential.

Low Vision clinics: The low vision clinic in Toronto has improved the sight of many people through the use of various types of special lenses. This service should be developed throughout Canada. This training at present can be obtained only in New York. Foundation revenue could provide this training.

Films: Films will educate all Canadians, men, women and children in better care of eyes.

Wise Owl Club of Canada: Through this organization C.N.I.B. gives research to industrial employees who save their sight from injury to blindness by the use of safety glasses when on on-the-job accident hazards.

HELP OTHERS

Screening clinics in other Commonwealth countries: In cooperation with the Royal Commonwealth Society for the blind, London, England, the C.N.I.B. has been assisting in setting-up programs in the West Indies, Uganda, Hong Kong and many other countries.

Future growth: The Foundation will provide a means by which will help save the sight of fellow Canadians. It will also provide a means to perpetuate the great projects begun by Colonel Baker in the field of prevention of blindness.

Cheques should be made payable to the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, for the E. A. Baker Foundation, and forwarded to C.N.I.B. Division office or national headquarters at 1929 Bayview Ave., Toronto 17, Ontario. Receipts will be issued by the National office for Income Tax purposes.

Must Secure Permit to Set Grass, Other Fires in Thurlow

Local municipal legislation requiring residents wishing to set out rubbish, grass or other fires to first get a permit from the Belleville Fire Department is being sought by Fire Chief Gerald Vance.

Thurlow township council met last night to discuss such a measure at a special meeting and Chief Vance said the same request would be made to the councils of Sidney and Ameliasburg townships, and also to city council.

"It means that everyone setting out a fire under the legislation will first have to secure a permit to do so," the fire chief stated today.

The chief said a permit would also be required for a screen covered refuse burner which many house-holders have in their back yards.

In this instance, however, the initial permit only would be required while for other fires a permit for each time a fire was to be set would be called for.

The reason of course for permits being required to set out fire has been the recent spate of grass fires in the screen city firemen called out approximately 90 times since Good Friday.

The city has a fire fighting agreement with the townships of Thurlow, Sidney, and Ameliasburg with the municipalities paying the city on a per call basis.

So far this month the additional cost for fighting grass fires in Thurlow township has been about $1,000.

Yesterday firemen were out on eight alarms, all for grass fires. One of these on Dundas Street West, near the city limits, was started by a rubbish fire which had been set and then left.

Home-School Groups Want French Taught

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Federation of Home and School Associations has won the support of the provincial department to include conversational French in all elementary school grades.

A resolution passed almost unanimously by the federation's annual meeting Wednesday says French composition and grammar should be dropped in Grades 7 and 8 once the students had accustomed their ears to the language.

The federation is amogg 40-odd groups meeting in conjunction with the 102nd annual convention of the Ontario Educational Association.

A similar resolution, passed by the Ontario School Trustees' and Ratepayers' Association, met little opposition in contrast to three years ago when the suggestion prompted a full-dress debate.

Merchandising At Retail Level Subject of Talk

The Quinte Pharmacists' Association held their semi-annual meeting yesterday evening at the Rose Club. Close to 40 members and guests heard Mr. Archie McPhail of the Warner-Chilcott pharmaceutical firm speak on aspects of pharmaceutical merchandising at the retail level.

He noted that the need for modern merchandising techniques was essential to meet some of the changes, some of which were not favorable, which the industry has experienced in the past few years. Amongst these changes were the introduction of cut-rate drug stores and price wars.

Mr. McPhail advised that the Canadian Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Association was endeavoring to create a public image which had been upset by the latter change. On the problem of cut-rate outlets he suggested individual druggists and druggist provided much more service than these outlets and that this service was valuable to city life.

He stressed the importance of the personal touch in modern selling and service and the advantage of having well trained personnel as sales clerks in a drug store. It used the individual drug retailer could stand up within ten dollar item sold as a two dollar item, he pointed out. The sale of two dollar item, however, ensured that, at the end of the year, the druggist realized a better return on his business.

Mr. McPhail advised that his firm was prepared to put on a training program for the employees of the druggists in this area in the very near future.

Professor H. J. Fuller of the Ontario College of Pharmacy was also a guest speaker at the meeting. He gave a confidential talk on the possible future economic structure of pharmaceutical pricing with special reference to the concept of professional fees.

The meeting was conducted by Gardiner Dulf.

Start Strengthening Walls Preparatory to Clearing B. Safe Building Debris

Following a three-month delay during which time clearing up the debris of the burned-out Ben Sale building has been held pending settlement of legal responsibility regarding adjoining walls, the traffic block on East Bridge Street is shortly to disappear.

Yesterday workmen commenced repairing and strengthening the adjoining wall of the Wills building, while the wall of the Lehman building will also be strengthened, following which the actual work of removal of the debris will be commenced.

Mr. Sale said the adjoining walls would be strengthened as far as possible down to the debris and then the debris would be removed.

MAY BE WEEK YET

"You might say the work has already started," he said, "but it could be a week before the actual removal of the debris is commenced," he said.

The pedestrian and vehicular traffic blockade on Bridge Street has been a bone of contention at city hall almost since the fire last January.

Each time the matter was brought up at council the report was that legal complications were expected to be cleared up shortly and it was hoped clean-up operations could be started within ten days.

Then last week Mr. Ed Logan, owner of a jewellery store forced out by the blaze, took the matter to task at the city council meeting, thus allowing Mr. Roe, his wife and two daughters are taking up residence in Toronto, where Park & Tilford's Ontario sales headquarters are situated at Suite 1210, 2 Carlton Street.

54,000 More Working

The number of the unemployed in Canada declined 23,000 between mid-February and mid-March. That is good news, for the spring pickup in economic activity does not usually begin until later—indeed, if memory serves us aright, there have been years when there have been more unemployed in March than there were in February. In any event, the decrease in the number of unemployed was larger than usual and the number still without jobs by mid-March was 146,000 below the figure of last year.

All this is encouraging, but it presents only half the facts. Equally as important as the number of unemployed is the number of em-ployed—and here the picture was even brighter. Not only are there 346,000 more Canadians employed this year than there were last year, but in the period between mid-February and mid-March there were 54,000 with jobs increased by 54,000.

The continually growing labor force in Canada makes it imperative that the number of employed persons should steadily increase each year. This is a fact which is sometimes overlooked in considering the unemployment situation. In order to lower the number of jobless by 23,000, it was necessary to provide 54,000 new jobs in a month. An economy which can do that, in late winter, is far from sick. By the same token, if the number of unemployed does not decrease, this is not necessarily cause for alarm. The percentage of the labor force which any given figure represents steadily declines.

Of course it would no more be fair to judge the employment picture solely by the number working than it is to judge it solely by the number of unemployed. One needs to consider both figures to get an accurate appraisal of the situation.

Lei's Get Our Money's Worth

The Ottawa Citizen says that the salaries of members of Parliament will probably be raised if the Diefenbaker Government is re-elected.

According to the Citizen, Prime Minister Diefenbaker told a caucus of Progressive Conservative members he planned to introduce a bill to increase their remuneration from $10,000 to $15,000 a year.

If a man is worth sending to Ottawa at all, he ought to be worth $15,000 annually, for we must remember that an active member will have many expenses to meet.

It is perhaps a pity that the proposed increase could not have been authorized by the last Parliament, since it might have resulted in making available, as candidates, some men and women of high talents who may consider that their personal responsibilities will not permit them to seek election at the present salary level. Introduction of such a measure, though, would have been a risky business politically just prior to an election.

If, however, the men and women the voters send to the Commons on June 18 are to be paid $15,000 annually, we ought to make doubly certain that they are worth this money. Discharging this duty may influence electors in some ridings to ignore their usual party affiliations and vote for the most capable candidate, regardless of the party tag. That will cause no serious harm. It is almost as important that the Opposition be composed of talented members as that the calibre of the Government forces be high.

Hope to Cut "Dropouts"

Premier John Roberts and R. H. Wallace, assistant superintendent of secondary education, believe the new three-stream program for Ontario's secondary schools will reduce the number of "dropouts."

It is to be hoped that they are correct—and indeed, it is almost certain that they are. By providing three different curriculums by which students can qualify to attend university, the system is certain to encourage continued school attendance by some who would not find concentration on academic subjects to their liking.

But we ought not to expect miracles. From what we have heard from some teachers, most "dropouts" are not caused by failure to arouse the student's interests, but by the student's inability to be interested in any subject which involves hard work. The new system will do nothing to stop these students leaving school—nor should it. The reduction in the number of "dropouts" may thus not be as large as some expect. But those students who are saved will be the cream of the "dropout" crop, those who lack neither intelligence nor the willingness to work but whose talents lie in a different field from that which was earlier the only path to university.

Timely Suggestion—'Be Kind to Your M.P. Week'

BY RICHARD JACKSON

(From The Ontario Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA — Somebody ought to proclaim a "Be Kind to Your MP Week."

This holiday week of Easter might serve the purpose very well, except that if they aren't careful and knocking the weary and shaking hands, they will be — as soon as they can get their breath.

When he comes around to meet a "must" for individual visitors, and they, in any single session of parliament, can number into the hundreds.

Some of the MPs keep a supply of refreshment in their Commons office, to warm to make the hospitality.

The average lab for the average hard-working MP also develops his time and interests to the service of his constituency, in keeping the visiting firmers fed and watered, runs better than $100 a month.

And this figure is a composite of estimates of the cost of MP entertainment, not including the restaurant management, the Sergeant-at-Arms, the Speaker's office and other executives of the Commons.

So when your MP comes to call — and his rival for your vote, too, probably candidates, too — give them a respectful, even sympathetic hearing. The poor chaps are leading a hard life, of drudgery and the chance to be your and every-body's else' community doormat.

Argue Bard Was a Bore

Stratford Beacon- Herald

Right in the home place of Shakespeare, debaters have been found to argue that Shakespeare is a bore.

William Shakespeare himself was a dull fellow, and that he led an uninteresting life.

In the Stratford-on-Avon Herald, published weekly in the English town, we find that we get the names for our own city and river, we read the account of a debate in which a Stratford-on-Avon team argued that Shakespeare indeed a bore, while the contrary view was upheld by a visiting team from the Oxford Union.

Bernard Harris, a member of the Shakespeare Institute, held that Shakespeare's first trick of taking other people's stories, and retelling them, was characteristic of his life. Many of the familiar traits of a bore, Mr. Harris said, was to be detected by study of the Shakespearean plays, including "constantly harping on the affairs of other people's stories, and repetitive and long rehearsal."

A team-mate to Mr. Harris, Dr. Norman Sanders, piled on the heavy stuff. He said most people respect Shakespeare, but only because of sentimental attachment to a handful of speeches they had been compelled to learn at school.

We've pickled him in well-preserved formaldehyde, Dr. Sanders, "because he is something fixed and unchanging in our changing lives. But we get sorry any more about Shakespeare than we do about killed him with kindness and buried him in a mountain of appreciation."

The Stratford-on-Avon debaters, when it came time after the Harris and Sanders opinions had been heard, by majority of their hearers disagreed with them. It is because the majority voted with their own consciences, whether they voted for or against conviction, or in defence of the tourist trade that is drawn to Shakespeare's birthplace.

If Shakespeare really is boring, then right here in Stratford, Ont., we're fooling 200,000 cash customers every dam-mer.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

JUMPING AT CONCLUSIONS

A good plan for anyone of us is to use our ears and listen before we jump at any conclusion. And often after we have patiently listened — not to jump at all.

The poison of gossip does more harm than its ever intended, and the harm lies mostly in its distortion. Someone hears something and then retells. In the retelling a brand new version is created — then on and on until scores and scores of different stories are afloat in the world — none of which may be true.

In the judging of a character get the facts as possible concerning that character. Then you have something on which to base an estimate.

A man's appearance may ill be against him. But his actual and true character may be all right in an individual's eyes.

Never jump at a conclusion. Walk calmly up to one.

Nothing matters greatly beyond essentials. The great picture is not one of details — but of broad conceptions.

None of us likes to be judged. But most of us like to judge. It would be so much better if we defended people instead of forever suspicioning them and trying to pick flaws in them. And when it comes to recognizing flaws, no wonder we are what we are when so many people are living lived with them for so long!

A young man once applied to me for a story. He took up most of the interview time telling of the faults of his former employers. I soon came to the conclusion that he would find no many faults in me, and my newspaper syndicate, so cut the interview short. Perhaps I jumped at a conclusion made too quickly in my own mind, but to my notion this young man had already stacked his cards against himself.

But, after all, it's nothing to worry about that we are all so very intensely human.

Must Defend Mankind to Save Nation

BY SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Ninety per cent of the world's problems would be solved if the people with the proper goals had the practical judgment necessary to reach those goals, and if the people with practical judgment were willing and skilled to adopt the proper goals.

The difference between an adolescent boy's "escapade" and his "delinquency" lies in the social attitude of his parents.

Speaking of boys, the surest way to ruin two children is to hold up one as a "good example" to the other — which is why Cain killed Abel. He first into a rage and the second into a pulp.

The chief benefit conferred by always telling the truth is that one can afford the luxury of having a bad memory.

The best and safest statement of our modern predicament, and the only rational attitude toward it, was made recently by Stuart Chase when he said: "We need to realize that just as a soldier formerly could defend his home only by defending his nation, so now it is only by defending mankind that we can save our own country."

Men are those inconsistent creatures who want to violate every attractive woman they can — and then become indignant at the attractive woman they marry luring out not to have been inviolable.)

We actually inculcate a thing about poverty — that it is so frightfully glamorous.

I don't mind people who merely dislike modern art, in any form, but I do mind those who compare it unfavorably with traditional classical art, which they don't really understand, appreciate or cultivate — and would have also disliked intensely if they had lived during the period it was created.

When a woman announces that she's getting a divorce "amicably," it means that her husband has given her enough to live on to achieve the effect of calculated carelessness.

Virtuous people have no right to preach; if all the pulpits were filled with reformed sinners, the congregations would sit up and take more notice.

The best single piece of information on the subject of ancestor worship I've heard is Herbert Agar's: "Boobs talk as if they had begotten their own ancestors."

To Your Good Health
Psychological Reactions Can Cause Nervous Stomach

By JOSEPH G. MOLINER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I had been dating a fellow quite steadily and suddenly found when I was with him I had to vomit, with hardly any warning.

Sometimes it was due to an argument and sometimes for no apparent reason.

I have heard of people having a "nervous stomach," but if that were the cause, wouldn't it occur any time I had an upset with anyone? Why just with this particular fellow? Does it occur to many young people? — P.E.

Psychological reactions of this sort are not so very uncommon — of course I don't mean that most young people have them, but physicians encounter them with regularity and in varying degrees.

These episodes of throwing up (or other manifestations of nerves rebelling) can result from anger, as a quarrel. Other times from excitement. I have in mind a little girl who couldn't sleep the night before Christmas, and would be sick to her stomach from getting over-excited in anticipation, and getting sick again.

She didn't, I regret to say, outgrow this trait until she was a young man. I would like to have its old black magic for her.

She's still a high-strung young woman, but she realizes that she has pretty fair success in warding off "sick headaches" and other consequences of psychological upsets.

In your case, if it happened with other dates, I'd say some psychiatric help would be worthwhile. But since the trouble occurs only with this young man, I would look for some specific clash or conflict. It may be excitement, intensified by over-romantic interests.

Or it could be the result of some deep-seated matter, some trait which, consciously or unconsciously, you find repulsive or objectionable in him. He may be a domineering type which you halfway like yet strongly resent, or it could be a mannerism or his speech, or something that fundamentally reminds you of something or someone you dislike. For another possibility, there may be a sense of guilt gnawing at you.

Where the violent upsets are associated only with this one young man, I should be cautious about letting the romance go further unless you can get to the root of the trouble.

A psychiatrist doubtless would be helpful, but your family physician might likewise be of aid. Almost every physician absorbs a store of practical psychiatric knowledge, and besides that he can gain a perspective more easily than you yourself can, if you will tell him frankly about the problem.

RECKLESSNESS

We read frequently in the newspapers about reckless persons who have been arrested by motorcycle policemen. Reckless driving is one of the outstanding dangers of this mechanized age.

Recklessness is always a problem and a very great vice. Everything that urges us to use our powers at best recklessness. The person who falls into the trap of recklessness is the one who says, "Oh, nothing will happen to me." He is in your power and mine to avoid the excesses of our own zeal.

whose gearshift always him only to go forward. He has no neutral. He has no reverse. He jumps into high gear emotionally. Recklessness, this language is immoderate. He is ready to fly at any situation he confronts. He does not see nothing but folly and much shouting.

Stop, look and listen. It is an old warning but it is a good one. One moment of thoughtfulness — a car out of control, the anxious wife, the dash upon them, the bitter tongue which cries out words which break up marriage and friendship. Here we see the reckless plunging to their doom.

Hospital Consultants Will Make Survey of Local Situation, Report to Board

FORMER

official concerning a raid Aug. 19, 1958, on the old Ramsey Club at Niagara Falls, which at that time was being operated by a group in opposition to McDermott and Feeley.

He said specifically, in reply to a question, that he had not talked to anyone in the attorney general's department.

However, under later questioning by Liberal party counsel R. J. MacKinnon, he remembered that he had spoken about the raid to W. C. Bowman, director of public prosecutions for Ontario, after receiving a call from an American present in the club when it was raided.

The customer had complained that a "sizeable amount" of money was taken from him and was being impounded while trial in the case was delayed.

He said Mr. Bowman made a telephone call about the matter, but he didn't know to whom.

In reply to a question put by Mr. MacKinnon, Mr. Jolley said he had discussed gambling clubs with Mr. Bowman, but only in a casual way in the course of conversation.

Asked if the gambling nature of the conversations, Mr. Jolley said he might have said such things as "I see where they've raided another known a club" in the course of friendly chats.

The witness said Joseph McDermott's name was never mentioned in his conversations with Mr. Bowman.

FRIENDS

Mr. Jolley said he was a close friend of police Chief Cecil Fay of Niagara Falls, but they never discussed gambling clubs. Asked if he went to horse races with Chief Fay, Mr. Jolley said "maybe once."

Mr. MacKinnon asked him if he had ever helped anyone get a liquor licence, specifically if he had helped the F o o t Veterans' Club get one. Mr. Jolley said he had, although he had helped veterans' clubs obtain beer licences if they were sponsored by barrels sold more than their quota.

Under questioning from Mr. MacKinnon on his relationship with McDermott, Mr. Jolley said the police had told him during their 1958 telephone conversation that they had met McDermott a year earlier on an introduction by the late minister of mines, Alfred Maloney.

He said he believed the three may have met in the lobby of the Royal York Hotel in Toronto, but his recollection of the meeting was vague.

Under final questioning by Mr. Wishart, Mr. Jolley said he could not recall the name of the American about whom he spoke to Mr. Bowman, but knew he came from Niagara Falls, N.Y.

He said he considered it part of his duty as a member of the legislature to find out what a man was getting his money back.

Mr. Jolley, who was in the witness stand for an hour, also said he had promoted the appointment of Donald Scott as assistant Crown attorney for Welland County Jan. 1, 1957.

DENIES ALLEGATIONS

Mr. Scott, who followed Mr. Jolley into the witness stand, denied allegations that he had been a friend of Feeley and McDermott, that the gamblers hoped to get him appointed Crown attorney and that he received payment in return for efforts to take police pressure off gambling clubs.

The allegations were contained in a speech by Ontario Liberal Leader John Wintermeyer last Nov. 29 to the legislature.

Mr. Scott said he did not know, had never seen nor had any contact with Feeley or McDermott.

"I never received a nickel for anything and no one ever approached me to take pressure off clubs," he said.

He said Mr. Jolley had introduced him to the attorney general and Mr. Bowman at the home of his appointment.

He said he knew Toronto lawyer David Humphrey as a law student and knew him somewhat socially as friends occasionally.

Opening Day Outlook Better For Pickerel Than Trout

The green light for trout fishermen flashes on at 12.01 Saturday morning, the pickerel defended fraternity says they go ahead at the same time but for the Bay of Quinte and Bay Bay only.

But the news is not so good for those who took the trail trout in northern creeks and streams.

A Department of Lands and Forests official at, Tweed said this morning "stream fishing in the opening is pretty well out. Water levels are low in the creeks".

"In fact" he said, "experienced trout fishermen have told they are passing up the stream fishing for the first few days and will go south (Bay of Quinte) for pickerel instead."

In some lakes south of Bancroft, trout might have some space success in fishing the open spaces between the shore and ice.

The majority of lakes south of the Canadian Shield, Bancroft and Grindstone lakes are covered. The lakes in Algonquin Park are mostly ice-slicked.

A Department pilot flying from Sioux Lookout to Tweed reported most of the lakes in the area over which he flew are covered.

Mazinaw Lake is ice covered as the north end. The south end is clear.

However, the official said, if the present warm weather continues it is expected all lakes will be clear within a few days or so.

He said that hundreds of anglers will be there at any minute or so after the season opens at 12.01 Saturday morning.

Last year, on opening day, Bay only, Rivers emptying into the bay are out of bounds.

Here in the city anglers can fish for pickerel on the south side of the CPR bridge at the Moira River mouth. Fishing on the river side of the bridge is illegal.

Pickerel fishing in all inland waters officially opens on May 12th.

So there it is. Trout fishing is reserved for the northern part of the Tweed district is reported to be "out". Water levels are too low.

Most lakes south of Bancroft North of that they are ice-covered.

Brings World Nearer to War Claims Russian

GENEVA (Reuters) — Russian delegate Semyon Tsarapkin told the 17-nation disarmament conference today that U.S. resumption of nuclear testing brought the world nearer to the abyss of a nuclear war.

Zorin, speaking in Western sources, said the United States knew where Wednesday's Baltic test would lead to a fresh nuclear weapons race.

He said the U.S. move was made despite world opinion that demanded an end to competition in nuclear arms.

The Russian delegate charged the U.S. policy was guided solely by a military psychosis.

He said the new test meant Russia would be compelled to strengthen its own defences.

Neutral nations at the disarmament conference had made great efforts to find a solution to the nuclear tests problem, Zorin declared.

He added it that Wednesday's test was the Western answer to the unilateral efforts.

Before Zorin spoke, the U.S. circulated a document saying that it resumed nuclear testing "with the utmost regret and deepest reluctance."

CAN'T ACCEPT IT

The document said the U.S. could not accept "a situation where it voluntarily refrains from testing and which leaves the Soviet Union free to act as it did in September, 1961, when it secretly and on a massive scale initiatives of mankind by launching a massive, secretly - prepared series of nuclear tests."

"We do not propose to gamble with our security," the document added.

It said tests would be ended only contingent upon an agreement, with international inspection, to end the arms race.

Plastic Mulch Increases Potato Yields

OTTAWA — Scientists have come up with a novel method of increasing potato yields.

Using a mulch of black plastic they produced a 50 per cent bigger crops on top of the soil than under it! Harvesting and weed control were also made easier.

R. W. Chipman of the Canada Department of Agriculture research station at Kentville, Nova Scotia, described tests comparing crops grown under black and clear plastic with those grown under normal conditions. Three-foot wide strips of plastic material were placed over ridged rows and over flat rows where the tubers were grown one inch deep in soil.

The potatoes under black plastic grew more vigorously throughout the season and yielded better than those in the uncovered rows. The crop under clear plastic was grown of the three.

The entire crop under black plastic was produced on top of the ground.

Canada Must Spend More On Research, McGill Prof Tells Canadian Club Here

Last evening Dr. F. K. Hare, Dean of Arts and Science and Professor of Geography and Meteorology at McGill University, addressed the Women's Canadian Club in St. Thomas' Anglican parish house on "Science and Canada's Future," bringing into prominence the need of more scientific research and specialized scientists if Canada is to keep level with other countries.

He referred to three small booklets or pamphlets dealing with the subject, one issued by the National Research Council of Canada on how much money Canada spends in defence and economic growth; one by Sir Charles Snow, entitled, "Two Cultures," and one by Barbara Ward, noted writer on political economy.

RESEARCH SPENDING

In comparing the amount of money Canada spends in scientific research, with that of other countries, the United States, the United Kingdom, and Russia, Dr. Hare stated that of the "35 billion dollars made by Canada, she spends 250 million in research. America spends 12 billion, five times more than Canada, the United Kingdom spends 1400 million, and Russia spends 10 to 1 times as much.

The government uses for industrial research 23 units as compared with that of the United States which uses 83 units, and the United Kingdom 65 units. American plants of the same type are always larger than the Canadian plants. One half of the funds is spent for defence work. Since a nation's position in modern times depends on other nations, every activity of that nation needs special scientists and engineers in industry. So far, in Canada the universities have not done much research; McGill and Toronto universities being the only two to have done something along that line. Up to about 50 years ago Canada has depended on other countries.

SCIENTISTS NEEDED

Industrial plants are short of scientists and have not sufficient trained technicians; today there is an awakening interest by people Canadians in industry, they want to become trained engineers, and see the need of physical science. McGill University has had an increase of 91 per cent. Toronto there was little idea where the scientific fields in Canada should stay level with other countries, at present Canada is far behind.

NO INDUSTRIAL ADVANCE

In speaking of industrialization of other countries, such as India, China and Africa, Dr. Hare noted that there has been little or no industrial advance due to the low earning power of its people per capita income per year. To industrialize there must be an accumulation of cash. The English save 15 per cent of their income to invest in industry. Thus Canada should continue its foreign aid program, the west must assist the east. Native aid must be maintained by assisting the middle class in becoming more skilled.

Satellite universities are needed and teachers.

New Study Curriculum Is Endorsed by UCW

TORONTO (CP) — A new study curriculum for church members, the opening of a new French - language elementary school in Quebec and the need for more women missionaries occupied the attention of delegates to the annual meeting of the United Church of Canada's new Board of Women Wednesday.

The board, formed in January to govern the United Church Women which was organized to replace the Women's Association, decided to give full support to a new venture on Christian education.

The "new curriculum" spans six years of study for young people and adults through a series of books to be issued each year until 1966. This year's program centres around a book entitled The Word and The Way by Donald M. Mathers, professor of systematic theology at Queen's Theological College.

A copy of the book is to be placed in the hands of all of the church's 3,000 members.

URGES CAMPAIGN

On missions, Wilma G. Thomas, associate secretary of the board of world missions, urged a campaign to attract more women missionaries.

Miss Thomas said there now are only 26 representing the church in foreign mission fields and up to 80 are needed.

Rev. George M. Morrison, secretary of the board of home missions, said the new school, to accommodate about 100 children, is expected to be opened in September in the village of Ste. Anne des Monts, on the north shore of Quebec's Gaspe Peninsula.

The church has seven congregations in Quebec, six of them in Montreal. It also operates a French - language residential school at Pointe-aux-Trembles, near Montreal.

URGES SLIMMING

MONTREAL (CP) — Paris couturier Claude Riviere, beginning an intensive diet Sept. 15, said in an interview here that Canada is one of the greatest designers "but her clothes are so kind to the figure that she is really kind to the women who wear them." 'Lines on Life'

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

A professional human being!

While we have been busy making professions a wide variety of economic occupations, we've neglected the regard that human enterprise as needful of highly developed skills.

A professional human being, like actors, singers and other highly trained craftsmen would know how to pursue his human career without stumbling over the obvious or faltering under tension.

How do we achieve the accomplished finesse, the cool poise, and the posture of a professional? By making it difficult—ever, the complicated — look easy. But this, be ye warned, does not come easily.

Genius does not settle down on any man who is not ready to go out to meet it. Having been introduced to his own possibilities, he must learn, patiently and painfully, to work hard, to polish and perfect his raw materials.

Sportsman and surgeon alike leave amateur status, acquire the magic-like touch of the professional, only after they've diligently worked at sharpening their skills.

Each day they are challenged again; but each day they are ready for the challenge — that's what makes them professionals.

What do we need to learn if we are to achieve the rank of a professional—as a human being? How do we train our nerves to acquire the talent to make our meeting of life's difficulties appear easy and smooth?

In the first place we must recognize that though the professional makes the arduous skills seem facile, he deceives himself - know. that they are difficult — this is why he never stops preparing for them.

If the singer performs effortlessly — she only sounds that way to the naked ear. She must work hard to have her performance seem simple. She's not able — any more than any normal human is — to divest herself of inner tension.

Many people erroneously imagine that tensions are bad, and that if only they could achieve a static inner balance they would be able to cope with life's problems easily—"professionally."

But life, it has been properly said, is not "like tuning a radio set and leaving it there." Always, we have to keep tuning it to different wave-lengths to meet the new challenges of fresh moments which occur in precisely the same way. Which explains why our personality can never be static—it must always be mobile, plastic, variable.

The professional human, like the professional artist is thus constantly aware of the need for at least two basic attitudes: constant inner preparation for public performance and acceptance of the ever-present reality of ceaseless tensions in meeting life's changing circumstances.

And the first fits us for the second: if we are always ready for tensions, instead of fleeing them, we will learn to adjust them to the proper wave-lengths.

This kind of adjustment is an inner, not an outer process—it is part of the creative dynamism of personality.

The concert singer can't forever blame the orchestra leader or the acoustics of the hall in a lame effort to cover up her own faulty preparation. Her professional skill can aid her, even if these other obstacles are in her way to smooth performance—and her triumph will emerge in spite of them.

She knows how to loosen the taut pull of tension by using the proper tools of adjustment—the line does not break: it relaxes, because she didn't tug too hard!

"Professional" humans would seek to learn art. Instead of loading their emotions upon the environment—on parents, teachers, friends, government, or public opinion —they would re-examine their own "inner-duners" to find out why they are getting so much "static."

In the final analysis, we "get" static because we've been static—we've stood still waiting for tensions to disappear, instead of knowing how to hold the strings, to prevent them from tying us into knots.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Milton P. — She should leave him alone. He's not the bookish type.

Rosalie P. — Bookish or not, he'd better learn to read faster.

Milton P. — Our son is only 6, but you'd think he was trying to get into college the way my wife keeps him at his books. Instead of letting him go out to play a little after supper, she makes him sweat and strain to read her a page out of his reader every evening.

So what if he doesn't take to books? Plenty of people get along without them. I'm not much of a reader myself. The newspaper is enough for me. Of course I'd like to see Johnny go further than me. But he can do it with his brains and his hands. The reading isn't so important that he must give up his fun for it.

Rosalie P. — Johnny is one of the poor readers in his class and the teacher sent home a note asking us to go over his words with him. She also asked me to read stories to him. Maybe I'm not such a good reader myself, because he won't sit still to listen, but I do manage to get him to squeeze out a few lines of his school reader each day. It's a struggle — first, because reading comes so hard to Johnny and, also, because my husband doesn't think reading is important.

I know it's important. I wish I could read faster myself. You have to read for almost everything you do. Johnny got started wrong. I taught him one way, the school another. Now he wants to give up.

The Council: There may have been a time when literacy was a frill, when reading ability was something you could take or leave. But now when even the farm hand must be able to read the directions for assembling the milking steel, a low reading skill is a real handicap. Rosalie is wise in trying to spare her son his disadvantage. Reading is the key to all communications, all learning.

The schools now find that the poor readers are the ones who want to drop out of school as soon as possible. And since this merely floods the unskilled labor market, it is a calamity to be avoided by inspiring reading proficiency, even reading enjoyment in the early grades. This explains why the teacher's note to Rosalie.

Of course, it would be better if the special handing of Johnny's problem were a joint project of both parents, guided by the remedial reading experts at the school. There are conflicting methods and attitudes blocking his progress. Is he learning the whole-word recognition, or the sound-out-the-letters approach? Is reading a painful school subject or an enlightening pathway to fun?

To help Rosalie and Milton, and Johnny over the hump, until the school takes over more effectively, we'd like to pass along some novel idea submitted by our readers after we reported another case of reading difficulty:

Try the "puppy game." Write Johnny's words on a stack of cards. Paste an envelope on a stuffed puppy's mouth and whenever Johnny reads a card correctly put it in the envelope as food for the puppy.

Try recipes in reading material. Get a book of children's recipes and let Johnny read and follow them.

Encourage much reading aloud. Johnny to you, you to Johnny. In addition to improving word-recognition, it offers a chance for closeness.

Fur Buyers To See Many New Styles

MONTREAL (CP) — A preview of what fur buyers will see at the industry's big trade show in Montreal next week was given at a press luncheon Wednesday by Hollinger Furs, one of the major Canadian manufacturers.

All the coats, jackets and stoles shown were designed by Andre Schiaparelli of Paris or Fontana of Rome. "Figurine" silks for the women free-flowing or under wa. introduced at the show for the first time.

Styles were elegantly relaxed and featured the controlled cape back, the semi-fitted front and tunic - quarter - length sleeves. Collars ran the gamut from the large notched collars, but still smaller than last year, to an almost mediaeval look. Detachable scarves and toes were also shown.

Furs included mink, mustrat, seal, beaver, Norwegian blue fox, Persian lamb, stone marten and polecat, a small animal in the weasel family.

Colors ranged through jet black and brown to beige and pure white, and included several pale shades and at least one tweed effect. Many of the coats were trimmed—but subtly—with fur of a contrasting texture.

EGGLETON MESSENGERS

MADOC JCT. — The April meeting of the Eggleton Messengers was held on Thursday afternoon of last week at the school with 27 children and three adults in attendance.

The president, Glenn Stapley, presided, and the Kindal was Wayne McMullen. The Scripture, St. Matthew 27, was read by Dianne Prest. A reading "How to Know When Easter Comes" was given by Glenn Stapley, also one by Rick Dunford, "Seven Easter Mornings," and Glenn Stapley placed the seventh year award seal on the Junior Band certificate for the year 1961. Lin Stapley gathered the offering which was dedicated with a prayer read by Wayne McMullen. Mrs. Clancy, the leader, wrote the new "Messengers' Prayer" on the blackboard, so the pupils could copy it and memorize.

Dianne Prest passed a sheet of note paper for everyone to sign. This paper and a "Get-Well" card was to be sent to Mrs. White (Carol White's mother), who is a patient in the Belleville General Hospital.

Four boys took part in reading how Easter is observed in various countries — In Korea, read by Gerald Stapley; in Italy, read by Keith McMullen; in Mexico, read by Lloyd Clancy, and in Canada, read by Lin Stapley.

The leader read the interesting story, "One World for Johnny," which told of the little Chinese boy, Johnny, who lived with his parents in California. During the day he attended school, played American games and had a close American friend named Carl. But at night he seemed to live in another world. In his home his parents clung to their Chinese customs and talked in the Chinese language. Fortunately, however, there was an All Peoples' Church located near their home. So when Johnny's mother attended and learned to read and speak English.

Teddy Clarke, Douglas Dunford, Ronald Kraft and Billy Stapley distributed "World Friends" papers and Kenneth Dunford took part by asking several riddles.

After the meeting Lois Dunford served delicious popcorn.

Chinese Sweet and Sour Meat Balls

by Mary Moore

Playing on my hamburg theme again today, I have Chinese Sweet and Sour Meat Balls for you as promised yesterday. I served these to guests for Sunday dinner with "green" rice. It was a pretty and flavorful, and inexpensive meal.

CHINESE SWEET AND SOUR MEAT BALLS:

1½ lbs. lean hamburg or ground chuck beef, ¾ teaspoon salt, 2 eggs, 2 tablespoons flour, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, ½ cup cooking oil (the Chinese would use peanut oil), ½ cup boiling water, 1 chicken bouillon cube, 3 large green peppers, cut in 1" square, 6 slices canned pineapple, each cut in 8 pieces, 2 tablespoons cornstarch, 1 tablespoon soy sauce, 1 teaspoon MSG (accent), ¼ cup vinegar or lemon juice, ¾ cup pineapple juice (from canned slices), ½ cup sugar.

In a bowl combine the eggs, flour, ½ teaspoon salt and pepper and beat to mix until smooth. Heat the oil in a large frying pan. Add the ¾ teaspoon salt to the ground beef and shape the meat into 18 uniform balls. Dip meat balls in egg-batter, drain a little and fry in oil until brown, constantly turning meat balls until all are done. Remove browned meat balls in bowl and put aside. Discard all but 1 tablespoon of fat from frying pan. Dissolve bouillon cube in boiling water and add to frying pan along with the prepared green pepper and pineapple. Bring to boiling point. Add cornstarch to sugar and MSG and mix well, then stir into them the soy sauce, vinegar or lemon juice and pineapple juice. Pour into pan, stirring until boiling and thickened. Add meat balls and simmer 10 to 15 minutes. Serve to six with Green Rice: Chop as finely as possible enough raw spinach to measure 1-3 cup. Add 2 tablespoons finely chopped parsley and 1 teaspoon finely chopped green onion tops. Add to 2 cups boiling water with 1 teaspoon salt. Bring to boil, add 2 cups quick-cooking rice, bring to hard boil, cover turn off heat and let stand 5 minutes. Keep hot until serving time. Add 1 or 2 tablespoons butter if desired (but the Chinese would not).

Turn rice out in centre of very hot preheated platter. Carefully pour sweet and sour meat balls and sauce around it. Serve at once.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

LITTERBUGS ARE ABOUT TO APPEAR

Driving along a quiet country road recently, we were appalled at the quantity of paper, cartons and beer cans that peppered the otherwise picturesque landscape.

Some of the debris obviously was left behind by roadside picnickers. A generous scattering probably was thrown to the wind by motorists so lured on the call of the open road that they failed to see a neatly-labeled trash can standing alongside it.

Just as the trees start to bud, the "litterbug" comes into full bloom. Surprisingly, many who contribute to roadside blight are just the opposite at home. The man who casually tosses a cigarette from a car window often is the type who trims the tallest hedge on the block. And who is the thoughtless female who unloads a batch of soiled Kleenex on the nearest horizon? Often she's a fastidious housewife who keeps her sofa pillows plumped to perfection and won't let anyone cross her threshhold without first doing a sole-cleaning job on the welcoming "Welcome" mat.

Why, then, this devilmay-care attitude about besmirching other people's front yards and the countryside at large? Basically, it's just thoughtlessness. The litterbug often drops his gum wrapper or empty cigarette package unconsciously. And while he may chuck at the messy scenery as he drives along, the litterbug is blithely unaware of his part in creating the sorry picture.

Every spring, signs blossom along highways like wild flowers, reminding motorists not to litter. Perhaps a little clean-up campaign inside the car would make it easier to comply with the posted pleas.

Many motorists chuck cigarettes out windows simply because the ashtray in the car is filled to capacity. If were emptied before each trip, smokers would be more apt to see it.

On long trips, especially when children are along, it's easy to accumulate a mound of tissues, bits of cookies, half-eten sandwiches, etc. In desperation, mother is apt to toss the open window as a garbage disposal. A bag taped to the back of the front seat helps keep things tidy en route. When it's filled, it can be disposed of in a trash container along the road, or at a rest stop.

Many states thoughtfully provide rest sites alongside roads, and equip them with tables and benches for picnicking, but it's a shame the way ill-mannered wayfarers treat these facilities. There are plenty of trash cans, but left-overs often are left in bags on the tables, and if paper napkins fly away — well, who cares?

If tourists would make a all-out effort to clear away all traces of their festive lunch, the facilities would be more pleasant to use, and less of an eyesore from the road. This means not only packing remnants into bags, but putting them into waste containers and clamping the lids tightly so foraging animals can't dig into the contents and contribute additional litter to the countryside.

Driving in the country is always a delight in Springtime, when the world is coming alive again. Courtesy and good manners on the part of motorists keeps the scenery a sight to see and not just a sight to grumble about.

(A Canadian Social Worker Helps with Human Problems)

Should He Marry Girl 16?

DEAR DORIS:— My 18-year-old brother has informed the family that his 16-year-old girl friend is pregnant. They have been going together for several years.

He has been working for a year at a job that does not offer a secure future. His salary is adequate for a single man living at home, but certainly not large enough for the support of a wife and family.

Both sets of parents, and the boy and girl, are in favor of an immediate marriage; the young couple to live with the girl's parents until they are financially able to set up home on their own.

I believe that, considering their ages and circumstances, another solution should be found. It would take such a powerful amount of faith, love and mobility to make such a marriage work that I fear these two are in for a life of heartbreaks if they do marry.—UNHAPPY SISTER.

DEAR UNHAPPY SISTER—It could work. If these two have been growing up together, they might achieve happiness in marriage. Especially if both families are for it.

However, it could be a devastating failure. The things they find attractive in each other now might well become less attractive as they mature. The fact that a child was conceived before marriages could worry them later. Every situation is different.

I would stronger advise that they seek counsel. A child Care organization is accustomed to helping young people and their parents think through such situations and to arrive at what is the best possible solution for them. A professional social worker will also give guidance with regard to the baby if the two should find, after all, that they would be better not to marry each other.

In Belleville, the Children's Aid Society, 82 West Moira Street, will be glad to help you.

DEAR DORIS:—I have given my husband no cause to doubt me, yet he has the idea he is not the father of one of our children.

I have heard of a blood test being used to determine who the male parent is. Could this be used to prove that my husband is not child's father? If so, what would it entail?—STILL LOVES HIM.

DEAR STILL—Tests are getting more and more accurate about this. There are secreted factors in the blood which can be computed to indicate that a man could or could not be the father of a certain child.

This sort of thing can be arranged by your family doctor with the local hospital if there is a pathologist doing this work there. It means sending in samples of your blood, of his and of the baby's.

DEAR DORIS:—I went steady with a boy for one week and two days. Two days after I broke up I realized how much I liked him.

My problem is how can I get to go out with him again? He is now going out with another girl.—TROUBLED.

DEAR TROUBLED—Can you be sure how you'll feel after the next week and two days?

You can be friendly. But don't sign up for steady. You need the right to change your mind—just as often as you like.

DEAR DORIS:—We are worried about our boy. He goes out a lot at nights and won't do his school work.

The doctor put him on a diet for pimples and when he keeps late hours, his skin keeps on breaking out.

What do you suggest? He pays very little attention to us.—WORRIED PARENTS.

DEAR WORRIED:—The skin troubles may be a reflection of home troubles. Is there peace in your home?

Do you share anything with your boy besides arguments? Two-way love is the answer to so many problems rashly strike out on their own. But they do need to be able to run for cover.

Get to know your boy by having his pals in; by helping him with the homework. By talking to him and getting his ideas about late nights and school and skin.

YOUNGEST ARTIST IN EXHIBIT—12-year-old Joyce Ling proudly shows two of her paintings accepted for the spring exhibition of the Montreal Museum of Fine Arts. Pert Joyce Ling at 12 Has Paintings Accepted

MONTREAL (CP)—A 12-year-old girl who had never had an art lesson or been inside an art gallery has become the youngest exhibitor in the history of the Montreal Museum of Fine Arts.

Three works by pert Joyce Ling, daughter of a Chinese father and French - Canadian mother, were among 82 accepted from 1,370 submitted to the museum's 79th annual spring exhibition.

Two of the paintings are entered under the name of Joyce Rejeanne Ling because "we worked together," said her mother, Rejeanne. "I can't draw a stick but often Joyce draws a picture and I paint it."

Their work was selected by a panel of five judges, four of them artists, for entry in the exhibition's new "primitives" category. Entry forms do not ask the ages of applicants and the youngest exhibitor until Joyce was Michel Bastin, 15, in 1956.

Mrs. Ling, a frail brunette who has been widowed for three years, didn't hesitate to let Joyce paint because she was so good at it.

TAUGHT BY NUNS

One of the mother - and - daughter efforts in the exhibition shows Joseph and Mary going to Bethlehem. Another, called The New Paradise, was described by Joyce as: "A garden with all the animals and people living happily together. No one in that garden eats meat. And there is peace."

The picture that Joyce did alone is called Flowers for Mother and shows a Hawaiian girl in a boat with a bouquet of flowers.

A Grade 5 pupil, Joyce took Chinese lessons from nuns at the downtown Montreal Chinese Mission until she and her mother moved into their present three - room apartment in the northeast section of the city.

Since a small widow's pension is the family's only source of income, Joyce conserves paper by using both sides. When a frame is needed, Mrs. Ling searches out cheap pictures in the five-and-dime.

"One of the pictures in the exhibition is painted over a framed picture I bought for a quarter," said Mrs. Ling with satisfaction.

Joyce, who would like to be a fashion designer when she grows up, had never visited an art gallery until she went to the museum to enter her pictures. Both she and her mother attended the opening of the show.

"It was the first time I'd been out at night since my husband died," Mrs. Ling said.

"But now Joyce is getting big and perhaps we should go out more. We are so much alone that we are shy of people though both of us are happy with our paintings."

Liberal Leader Opens Campaign Attacks Govt.

By ARCH MacKENZIE

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — Lester B. Pearson hurled a challenge at Prime Minister Diefenbaker Wednesday night as the Liberal leader launched his campaign for the June 18 federal election.

Mr. Pearson, speaking to an audience of 1,300, asked Mr. Diefenbaker to meet him face to face in radio and television debates similar to those between John F. Kennedy and Richard Nixon during the 1960 United States presidential election campaign.

Liberal party proposals should be contrasted with the achievements over the last five years, Mr. Pearson said in his campaign kickoff address.

In Fort William, Mr. Diefenbaker dismissed Mr. Pearson's challenge with the comment: "I'm not interested in providing TV audiences for others."

Mr. Pearson said: "The election issue . . . is how we are to recover the ground lost in the last five years, at home and abroad; how to move forward."

NEEDS DISCUSSION

Canadians are being asked to compare Liberal party policies for the future with the government record and that required the "fullest and frankest face-to-face discussion by the leaders of the only two parties who have any chance of forming a government after the next election."

Mr. Pearson said the best way would be a joint debate over radio and television and that he should be "available for this purpose."

Coupled with the challenge as the Liberal leader wound up the first day in his eight-week campaign, was a declaration that the June 18 balloting will be of vital importance to Canadian destiny. "Our future as individual or any party fortunes.

He said he hopes the election will be conducted on the high-est sense of public duty and morality. But he attacked the five-year record of the Progressive Conservative government as having failed to continue the progress made by Liberal administrations in the post - war period up to 1957.

Tommy Douglas Unopposed as NDP Candidate

By SCOTT SCHILL

REGINA (CP)—Members of the Regina CCF-NDP organization have put their hopes of a federal election victory in T. C. (Tommy) Douglas, a seven-time political winner.

The 57 - year - old national leader of the New Democratic Party was nominated without opposition Wednesday night to contest Regina City in the June 18 federal voting. The seat was held in the last Parliament by Progressive Conservative Gerhth More.

More than 1,000 party members gave Mr. Douglas a four standing ovations at the convention meeting. The former CCF premier of Saskatchewan immediately launched his election campaign.

An NDP government, he said, would provide a comprehensive system of social security, including a complete health service.

WILL MAKE PORTABLE

Mr. Douglas also said the NDP would establish a portable pension scheme, with both employee and employer sharing payments, that would pay pensioners about two-thirds of their income based on the best 10 years of their earning life.

Mr. Douglas said the NDP is the only party that will defeat the Conservatives west of the Great Lakes. Except for Quebec and Newfoundland, the contest would be mainly between the NDP and the Conservatives.

Mr. Douglas said he will "direct the major part of my campaign to defeating" with the record of Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

He linked the prime minister and the Progressive Conservatives with big business, he said 51 per cent of all Canadians own no stocks, seven per cent own $5,000 worth and two per cent own the remaining stocks.

"This is the free enterprise system that Mr. Diefenbaker is advocating.

"The time has come when we must elect a government that will plan for the people."

Focus on Health

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Topics This Week: Possible hazards in hair sprays, tooth banks and meaning of that tired feeling.

HAIR SPRAY HAZARD?

A medical study raises suspicions that hair sprays may cause lung diseases in some women, and men who work as hair-dressers.

There is no proof this happens, and thousands of women have used the sprays without any apparent harmful effects, says a team of doctors.

But they tell of 15 women and men who possibly suffered lung damage from breathing in particles of resins used in hair sprays. They found evidence of lung damage similar to X-rays, in examinations of bits of tissue, and in autopsies of three women.

It is known, they say, that people can breathe in the resin particles, but they didn't find the particles in the lungs. And animals exposed to the hair sprays haven't shown lung damage.

EXTRA TEETH

One day you may be able to call on a tooth bank to replace missing teeth.

As an initial step, teeth have been preserved and grown outside the body in research by Dr. Robert Gerstner at the New York University dental centre. Teeth in early stages of growth can be treated with an anti-freeze, glycerol, then frozen and stored for years. They grow normally again after quick thawing.

And tooth buds from experimental animals have been grown in nutrient flasks up to the time when they are ready for formation of hard enamel. Dr. Gerstner now hopes to find enzymes which will start the formation of the enamel.

DEPRESSION

That always - tired feeling can be a signal of emotional depression, resulting from something or someone lost, physicians point out.

Physical injury, the loss of a loved one, or loss of a sense of security can bring on the depression. The most common sign is fatigue, ranging "from a general feeling of being 'tired all the time' to inability to work or get out of bed in the morning," write Drs. John D. Stockie and Gerald E. Davidson of Boston.

Craftsmanship of British In Industry and Science On View at World's Fair

By JIM PEACOCK

SEATTLE (CP)—The craftsmanship of the British in industry and science is on view in everything from the glass in the exhibit windows to the rugs on the floor in Britain's $1,000,000 World's Fair display.

Everything except the bare walls of the British Pavilion at the Century 21 Exposition was constructed in Britain, dismantled there and shipped to Seattle for reassembly on the World's Fair grounds.

More than 10,000,000 visitors are expected during the six-month run of the fair. The British exhibitors say their pavilion is intended to show the leading part British inventiveness and skill play in the world-wide technical revolution.

In keeping with the fair's emphasis on science and futuristic developments, the British exhibit is so constructed as to give the visitor the impression he's on a space platform floating above the earth.

A full-glass section about three feet wide separates the raised floor from the walls of the main body of the exhibit and colored lighting beneath the glass gives the feeling of being airborne.

Most spectacular piece in the exhibit is the space bowl, a three-dimensional illustration of the work of the Jodrell Bank radio telescope and of the Lumbridge interferometer system, a radio-astronomy setup.

The space bowl is made up of 15 large rings of decreasing sizes, set one behind the other to form a massive bowl. Behind each ring is a series of lights, with 2,000 bulbs included, and in the face of the rings 10,000 brilliants are imbedded to reflect the light.

The space bowl represents the solar system. Neville Walters, one of the exhibit designers, said the lighting effects give the impression of outer space when, looking out with telescopes picking them up.

Several small models of the Hovercraft, which travels a few inches above the surface on a cushion of air, will be on display along with a film that illustrates the uses of the craft. The British have advanced research on these machines to the point where they expect a large one that can carry 75 persons at 75 miles an hour. Land or water will be in use this summer.

The British Pavilion contains a bit of the tradition for which Britain is noted. There is an entranceway, the two eras of Queen Elizabeth, set it off through an animated reproduction of Millais' painting, "The Boyhood of Raleigh," showing a man sitting at the edge of the sea and pointing across it as if to the future.

A transparency of the present Elizabeth and a small model of the first are set together on an island in the entrance section, dominated from atop an arch way by a British coat of arms.

Inside the remainder of the exhibit, research and development in many fields are depicted, including surgery, atomic power, aviation and space research. In the industrial section, the Jaguar Mark X automobile a racing car and several aircraft engines are on display along with navigational equipment, construction machines and a host of other commercial articles.

Cardinal Bea Says Council Hopes to Unite Christians

ROME (AP)—Augustine Cardinal Bea said Wednesday the Roman Catholic Church's forthcoming ecumenical council hopes to give impetus to the eventual union of all Christians.

Cardinal Bea, head of the council's Secretariat for Christian Unity, said that such a union—bringing together 900,000,000 of the world's population—would have immense weight upon the solution of international problems, especially that of peace.

The 80-year-old prelate spoke to the Foreign Press Association in Rome about the council, which opens at the Vatican Oct. 11.

Preparations for the council, to be known as Vatican II, have been in progress for nearly three years. The council will bring to the Vatican representatives of the church from all parts of the world. In addition representatives of other Christian faiths are expected to attend as observers.

"The importance of the council," said Cardinal Bea, "becomes more clear when one considers that it will not be limited exclusively to internal matters of the (Roman Catholic) church.

"It also wishes to prepare—even though far in the future—for the union of all baptized persons, all Christians.

"What would such a union mean for humanity?"

Cardinal Bea, who has been instrumental in arrangements for the visits made to Pope John by other Christian leaders, answered his own question in this manner:

"Imagine and try to weigh what it would mean for humanity if all Christians acted completely united in the questions of nuclear arms, of disarmament and of peace."

Cardinal Bea emphasized, however, that Christian unity would require many years to achieve.

Cardinal Bea described the recent visits of Protestant leaders to Pope John as meetings seeking to establish "mere pacific and serene relations."

Forces for and Against Fluoridation of Sweden's Water in Tight Battle

By CARL OLOF BOLAND

STOCKHOLM (AP) — While Canada dentists battle publicity against Sweden's most costly health problem — dental cavities — a bitter medical conflict is being waged over public methods to prevent tooth decay.

Forces for and against fluoridation of drinking water have been fighting a running battle on the controversial issue at all levels of government.

At the moment the anti-fluoridation forces are ahead. They won a major victory Dec. 20 last when the Riksregjeringen — Sweden's supreme administrative court ruled against fluoridation.

But two motions now are before the Riksdag (Parliament) asking for a change of the law to give local authorities a free hand in adding fluoride to drinking water.

The issue has split party lines and observers say the outcome will be uncertain if the motions go to a vote. But an informed parliamentary source said the issue probably will be turned over to the parliamentary law committee before further action is taken.

ARDENT SECRETLY

The Supreme Court ruling in December focused attention on the city of Norrkoping, which 10 years ago took the unusual step of fluoridating half of its water supply secretly.

The local health board of the city, an industrial centre of 90,000 in central Sweden, authorized the large-scale experiment in 1952. Fluoride was added to the drinking water supplied to about half the city's households while the public knew nothing about it.

The Supreme Court ruled that the plan was contrary to certain provisions of the Public Health Act.

But the householders of Norrkoping still do not know whether or how they were included in the experiment. Oscar Johansson, chairman of the health board, says the secret list of which houses got the fluoridated water was confined to the board, the city dental service and the personnel of the water station.

Johansson said Norrkoping — the only city in Sweden which has practised fluoridation — took off its experiment when the court ruling became effective Jan. 28. His board has appealed to the interior minister for an exemption from the ruling, but Johansson says he has little hope it will be granted.

NEW MOTION

However a Social-Democratic member of Parliament from Norrkoping, Rune Johansson, introduced a motion in the House that would give local authorities the right to fluoridate water supplies under strict control of the national health board. And an even more far-reaching motion was put forward by a Social - Democrat from Malmoe, southern Sweden.

Rune Johansson said he hopes for a final decision on the issue before Parliament takes its summer recess.

"Norrkoping is ready to continue the experiment with fluoridated water the minute we get the green light," he said, adding that experts felt a three-month break in the experiment would not affect statistics too much.

The unanimous court ruling against fluoridation was made on the ground that the addition of fluoride was not designed to purify the water supply or to make it more suitable for domestic use.

Also, the court said, it deprived those opposed to fluoridation of access to unfluoridated water. The anti-fluoridation forces have pinned their campaign on this view.

The Expressen of Stockholm said editorially that if fluoride is regarded as a drug or medicine of some sort no one should be given it against his will.

SUPPORTERS REPLY

Supporters of fluoridation replied by pointing to a statement of the National Health Board that natural drinking water in many parts of Sweden contains fluoride and that its addition to public water supplies within the limits of what may occur naturally, could not be termed pollution of the water.

That statement came seven years after the board in a report to the government suggested that fluoridation be banned on the ground that its obsolete safety had not then been established.

Anti - fluoridation forces also seemed to be losing ground among governmental advisers.

This spring the interior ministry, at the request of the Norrkoping authorities, asked various experts for their advice on the issue. Of the first 31 replies handed in, a ministry official said, 27 favored fluoridation and only four were opposed.

A recent survey in Canada by The Canadian Press showed that 80 Canadian communities with populations totalling 1,355,000 have introduced fluoridation. Another dozen communities plan to take the step this year.

Indians Pleased By Integrated School Program

TORONTO (CP) — R. F. Davey, chief of the education division, Indian affairs department, Ottawa, said here Wednesday more than 14,000 Indian children now attend school across the country with non-Indians.

In 1947, when emphasis was placed on a program referred to as integration, only 127 Indians attended school with non - Indians, he said.

Mr. Davey was reviewing the progress in Indian education over the last 15 years in an address to the Indian affairs branch of the annual conference of the Canadian Welfare Association.

"Indian children are enrolled in more than 1,000 public and private schools," he said.

"Their admission to non - Indian schools is requested only with the consent of their parents, but figures I have given indicate the wide support for integrated education exists in both Indian and non-Indian people."

Mr. Davey said most of these children are housed in private homes near the schools and private and school boarding houses.

MAKES ANNUAL GRANT

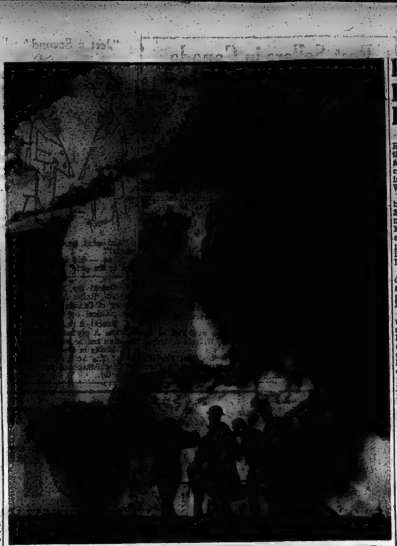
The Indian affairs department now makes an annual grant of about $3,500,000 to school boards and other authorities operating integrated schools, he said. The grant is also used to enable individual Indian students to receive vocational and higher education.

"No Indian is denied such training because he can't afford it ..." Mr. Davey said.

"In 1951 there were about 27,000 Indian children receiving education in Canada," Mr. Davey said, "Today this figure has increased to 45,000 — an increase of approximately 70 per cent."

Mr. Davey said expenditure on Indian education has increased from $3,400,000 in 1951 to $27,750,000 earmarked for this year.

STATUS IMPROVES



"There is no doubt there has been a marked improvement in the educational status of our Indian people," he said.

"The 900 Indians receiving a post - elementary education in 1951 have increased to the point where there are now nearly 4,000 receiving this type of training in high schools, vocational institutes, universities, and teacher training colleges."

Referring to Indian schools operated by churches, Mr. Davey said the various denominations now receive nearly 30 per cent more federal funds than they did in 1958.

Cafe Owner Turns Customers Away When Having Company

By J. D. HOLMES

DE BORGIA, Mont. (AP)— Blop sometime and talk with Bill and Aurora Keenan. Chances are, you'll envy the couple who tied New York 15 years ago in fear of an atomic attack.

Three times during a visit with the Keenans in their pioneer-panelled living room behind the Atom Haven cafe, customers stopped to eat.

"We've got company," the 58 - year - old one-time building contractor would say to the customer with a smile. "I hope you don't mind going up the road to the next place."

The Keenans hadn't served a meal all day in their combined family restaurant and post office, plus gasoline pump, in the mountainous section of U.S. Highway 10. As postmaster of the western Montana community 18 miles east of the Idaho border, Bill had sold a few stamps. Otherwise, there had been no income.

FOUND PEACE

Yet, without an apparent qualm, he had waved off cash business.

"How come?

"Well," answered the Bronx-born Keenan, "I'll came close to being a western drawl, "it all started one summer when my brother came for a visit. "He was here three days and I was so busy with tourists that I didn't even see him-leave.

"That's when I decided to turn business away when I have company. You just can't do two things at once."

It's all part of the peace and serenity the Keenans have obviously achieved since the October day in 1946 when they gave up a well-to-do life in Port Washington, Long Island, and headed west.

Bill calls it "being free from the tensions of city life." Mrs. Keenan calls it "leisurely living."

Both say they have almost forgotten their original fear of nuclear weapons.

"It isn't so much the bomb that bothers the world today! It's the constant talking about it," said Keenan. "Youngsters graduating from high schools today have been under constant cold war talk every year of their lives."

When the Keenans left New York, they were described as "the first displaced persons of the Third World War."

Keenan says the real reason I brought my family out" was "to give the kids a chance to have their birthright — nice countryside and the chance to breathe fresh air."

They have five children.

"I know we sacrificed materially when we left New York," Keenan said. "But I'm certain we're much better off physically and spiritually.

"I had a good income building houses. I've never matched it since. In fact, it keeps going down. But we manage to stay solvent."

To supplement their income, the entire family pitched in to make western-style string ties and old-fashioned gold pouches from elk hide and horn.

"Handmade by the Keenans," said a sign on the counter.

"Is that a tribe of Indians?" a tourist once asked.

"Yep," was Keenan's straight-face reply as he pointed toward his family quartet.

They live right back there.

Heathman Given Into Hands of Psychiatrists

VANCOUVER (CP)—Charles Heathman, who has confessed to the slaying of a 19-year-old boy whose murder he twice escaped the gallows, was given into the hands of psychiatrists Wednesday.

The 39 - year - old Heathman, brought back from the United States Wednesday, made a four-minute court appearance before Magistrate James Barlman, charged under the Mental Hospitals Act as a man mentally ill "and too dangerous to be at large."

He was remanded for five days to undergo psychiatric examination by court - appointed psychiatrists at Oakalla Prison Farm.

The Mental Hospitals Act warrant was signed by Attorney-General Robert Bonner following publication by the Vancouver Province of Heathman's first confession Saturday. He said he had smothered to death 10-year-old Donald Ottley in a Vernon park on Labor Day, 1950 and "enjoyed killing him." He admitted having recurring urges to kill during periods of drinking.

Heathman was twice tried and twice convicted for the murder of the Ottley boy. He won an appeal on his first conviction and the second from the B.C. Court of Appeal quashed his second conviction, leaving him free.

Expect Increased Tensions With Russia Holding Tests

By OSCAR M. HICKEMEYER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Resumption of U.S. nuclear testing in the atmosphere said an expected new round of Soviet tests will cause some increase in East - West tensions, Washington officials predict.

High sources here expect that Russia will begin a new test series fairly soon, now that the United States is testing over the central Pacific.

Soviet Premier Khrushchev's declared intention to conduct more experiments a g a i n s t Mars if the United States did so is the principal basis for this forecast. But, authorities here say it is evident from what is known of the results of Soviet tests last fall that Russian leaders would want to hold further experiments in order to develop their findings — particularly in the field of anti - missile defences.

The extent to which East-West tensions build up will depend on the violence of the Soviet propaganda barrage and related actions which Khrushchev takes in the next few days.

MAY WALK OUT

For example, there has been speculation in Geneva that the Russians would walk out of the 17-nation disarmament conference. But at the state department this was considered unlikely.

Recent public statements by Khrushchev, as in his interview with publisher Cordner Cowles, were interpreted to mean that no foreseen continuation of the disarmament talks.

Prime Minister Macmillan and President Kennedy will review the test situation and its cold war impact, along with other world problems, when they meet at the White House Saturday.

The two Western leaders are likely to state their policy on testing in a declaration at the conclusion of their talks Sunday afternoon. They may take the occasion to affirm U.S. readiness to cancel the test series which began Wednesday any time the Soviet government will sign an enforceable treaty prohibiting nuclear explosions.

A state department spokesman said Wednesday that the United States would not call off its Pacific experiments in response to a declaration of Soviet willingness to negotiate an enforceable treaty ban.

Two Bilingual Dictionaries On Market Contain Words Distinctively Canadian

By GEORGE FRAYKOR
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A Toronto publishing house and the Canadian branch of a respected English publisher have put bilingual dictionaries on the market containing words of distinctly Canadian origin.

They are similar in aim but there are many differences. So shopping for blueberries or cranberries in Quebec some day and the difference becomes clear.

Cassell and Company of London, whose French - English dictionary has been an authority for 75 years, has released Cassell's New French Dictionary containing words of French-Canadian origin.

A more ambitious project is the Canadian Dictionary, or Dictionnaire Canadien, published by McClelland and Stewart of Toronto. It is the first all-Canadian translating dictionary containing words invented by both French-Canadians and English-Canadians.

BLUEBERRY MISSING

Cassell's is essentially a thorough revision of a long-standard, highly respected work. It took five years. Canadianism for it were supplied by Gaetan Dulong, Canadian-born professor of French philosophy at Laval University, Quebec City.

It takes only a quick thumbthrough of Cassell's to see that it would be more useful to a French-speaking person than English. A considerable number of Prof. Dulong's Canadian expressions are not cross-translated in the English - French section.

In the English section you look up blueberry in vain. There is no trace laffy either. You look up cranberry and find canneberge.

The girl behind the counter would quickly spot you for a foreigner if you asked for canneberges though she would understand.

And yet the French-English section correctly lists bluet and atoca as the Canadianisms for blueberry and cranberry and even has an entry for bleuet'erable (maple taffy) although translating it unappetizingly as maple wax.

TOOK EIGHT YEARS

Paris-born Prof. Paul Vinay of the University of Montreal's lexicographic research centre was in charge of the team that compiled the Canadian Dictionary. With him were Henry Alexander, professor emeritus of English language and literature at Queen's University, Kingston, Ont., and Pierre Daviault, director of the federal government translation services. The project took eight years.

It doesn't match Cassell's for bulk. The concise edition on public sale translates 37,000 terms in 826 pages. Cassell's has 100,000 words in 1,400 pages.

Prof. Dulong has limited his definition of Canadianisms to those terms that grew out of native Canadian conditions that had no counterpart abroad. Where there already was a pure French word he generally considers Canadian versions as dialect and ignores them.

Thus, Cassell's does not list at all such terms as gosser, a Canadian expression meaning to whittle, or tournicoteie, Canadian for small tornado.

WORK CRITICIZED

Prof. Vinay's work lists "11 terms common in Canada, identifying them as Canadianisms by inserting a capital C within a circle beside the word and giving the continental French version in addition. An occasional bracketed (abuse) indicates that the Canadianism is really an abuse of the French language and that the continental French is to be preferred.

This has been criticized by Raymond Grenier of the Montreal daily Le Nouveau Journal who fears that the weight of the University of Montreal's authority is being used to legalize what he considers degenerate forms of French.

Too many words are being listed as Canadianisms when they are, in fact, little better than slang, he says. He calls Cassell's "far superior."

On the other hand, Fernand Beauregard of Montreal La Presse hails the Vinay-Darbelnay as a masterpiece and welcomes its listing of words Grenier looks at with horror.

Grenier considers it unthinkable that the common Canadian apartement, a corruption of the English apartment, should be in the Canadian dictionary. Beauregard says it would be "detestable snobbery" to leave out a word all French-Canadians use and list only the correct French chambre or piece.

DIFFER ON GARLIC

The Canadian Dictionary sometimes differs with Cassell's on what is or is not a Canadianism. Prof. Vinay lists gousse d'ail as a Canadianism for clove of garlic. Cassell's in which Canadian expressions are identified by a capital italic C, lists the term as ordinary French. Since the Canadian Dictionary represents a pioneer effort, it's understandable that some terms might be missing. For example, it lacks some hockey expressions that originated in Canada, giving neither the English nor French for bodycheck or icing.

The great majority of the 2,000 Canadianisms are French. The relatively few English-Canadian terms include Mountie, matchiaw, fireref (identified as an Ontario expression), well-eyed pike and separate school.

COMPILES BILINGUAL DICTIONARY

'Salesmanship at Summit' When P.M. and Macmillan Meet To Discuss ECM

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

It will be "salesmanship at the summit" when Prime Minister Macmillan and Diefenbaker meet in Ottawa next Monday.

Two leading ministers, Duncan Sandys and Edward Heath, have already made pilgrimages to present the British case on Europe.

Macmillan is likely to find Diefenbaker a reluctant customer, though perhaps more accommodating than a few months ago.

Putting things plainly, British ministers are still a little miffed about Canada's attitude toward United Kingdom membership in the European Economic Community. The Whitehall view, conveyed to this reporter by a man in touch with ministerial opinion, is that official Ottawa has been "totally negative" on the issue.

Perhaps both countries have scope for complaint.

The Canadian government has an election to fight and is legitimately worried about what may happen to Canadian trade when Britain becomes a cartel-carrying member of the European club.

On Britain's side, it is galling to take the patient decisions about negotiating for entry into the European Common Market inevitable.

But there is room for optimism, newspaper reports and elsewhere, with Canada and the Commonwealth.

Perhaps the most powerful argument advanced by the pro-European bloc is that Britain must be strong if it is going to hold the Commonwealth together, and that it can't be strong without Europe.

In this view, joining Europe is seen as an act of loyalty, a more realistic move than any stand-pat policy based on sickly, sweet sentimentalism about an association whose basis is changing fast.

Those who visualize Canada, Australia and New Zealand suffering financially hardship when Britain hops the Channel are reminded that such countries are getting rich relatively faster than the underdeveloped countries of the world and the battle-grounds of the Cold War have economic war on any long-term view.

With Britain's rate of economic growth a standstill while Europe leaps ahead, the argument that the rich West Germany has more money than Britain to lavish upon Africa is specious.

Such factors convince much informed opinion that Britain-in-Europe is necessary and indeed inevitable.

Young English Couple Make Trip Around World in Car of 1933 Vintage

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — "You'll never make it," skeptical neighbors said when a young English couple started out two years ago on a trip around the world in a 1933 car.

The neighbors were wrong. George and Eileen Yallop, both 26 and the same age as their car Riley, have passed through Niagara Falls on the last section of a trip that has taken them 35,000 miles through 14 countries.

They left Billericay, Essex, in August, 1960, with their little four-door car loaded with almost its weight in equipment. It included two spare wheels, engine parts, clothing, camping equipment and canned food. They had $450.

"We were both bored," they said here, explaining why they undertook the difficult journey.

"George was in Singapore with the army during his national service and I decided, after 11 years in a bank, that I too would like to see something of the world," said Eileen.

They crossed the English Channel and motored through Belgium, Germany and Austria before pressing through the Iron Curtain into Bulgaria and Yugoslavia.

They had no trouble with Communist border officials who seemed interested only in a search through such a mass of equipment.

In Sofia, the Bulgarian capital, they spent the night at a state camp where they were told to put their rooms by an armed guard.

Their adventures really began, however, when they reached Turkey, Iran, Pakistan and India. In central India they encountered a wide river with a bridge that had no ends. Tent natives ferried the car across on seven tree trunk canoes tied together.

In India they lost the hub caps off the wheels, broke six springs and had to stitch tires together with thread.

While camping out one night in Pakistan they awoke to find a poisonous snake in the tent.

"We vacated the tent a little faster than the speed of sound," said Eileen recalls.

They reached Ceylon and then sailed to Australia with $30. They spent almost a year there, Eileen picking fruit and George working as a mechanic to save the fare for the trip to the United States.

They landed at San Francisco in March and drove through the States, crossing into Canada here, then headed for Toronto to find work to save enough money to get home to England.

What will they do then?

"We will find it hard to settle down, so, if we can find a sponsor, we are going to attempt a record - breaking run from England to Ceylon."

End of Big Trucking Strike Seen in Sight

MONTREAL (CP)—A union spokesman said Wednesday the end of Quebec's trucking strike is in sight but a statement by management was a setback to optimistic reports.

Transport lawyer Phil Cutler said a settlement has been reached with another of the seven unions involved and others will fall into line shortly.

But a management statement came from the Motor Transport and Industrial Relations Bureau of Quebec, signed by Robert E. Curzon, chairman of the bureau's labor relations committee, said the committee has been instructed to meet here Friday with two accredited representatives appointed by Labor Minister Cliche.

Mr. Curleton also said the committee plans to continue criminal action against those launched earlier against the union and some of its officers. Complaints filed by three of the strikebound firms contend the strike is illegal and the union officials have been ordered to appear in court May 1.

ALSO FILE ACTION

Mr. Cutler said meanwhile that a damage action against the union and Cartier has been filed by Rod Hayes, president of the striking Local 106. He said the suit arises from statements Mr. Curston made about Hayes.

The strike started April 14 and involved 800 drivers. Seven carriers were affected initially. But two reached a quick settlement with the union.

Meanwhile an official of a striking firm not involved in the dispute was charged with beaten Wednesday by a group of striking truckers.

He was Ian Cameron, Montreal manager of the Ontario trucking firm of Edwards Transport Company. At the same time Edwards Co. owner pany's trucks was reported ramming on a trip to Montreal from Toronto.

Cameron was treated in hospital for minor cuts and bruises after he was attacked by four men when the accident out of his car in front of the company's downtown offices.

The carrier that agreed to terms with the union Wednesday was St. Johns (Iberville) Transport Limited. Cutler said the contract provided an hourly wage increase of 20 cents spread over three years, added to the current hourly rate of $1.35.

Mayor Fewster Of Ingersoll Wins Contest

INGERSOLL, Ont. (CP)—The brunette kicked off her pink shoes, extended a leg thrusted to black nylon and began to gyrate furiously in time to the music.

"Holy smoke," murmured Mayor William A. Downing of Woodstock.

The twistorama, highlight of the dance held to raise money for charity, had begun Tuesday night.

A crowd of 350 teen-agers gathered around the participants — Mayor Downing, Mayor Ross Hargrave of Ingersoll, Warden Clare Eastwood of Oxford County and R. A. MacDougal, Liberal candidate for Oxford.

Mayor Fewster, a square dance caller since he was 14, displayed a knowledge with the dance floor that outshone his opponents. His knees locked loosely, his feet twirled from the shoulders down.

In a corner, Mayor Downing slowly came to life after being paralyzed with admiration at his gyrating partner's mastery of the dance. He started a cautious, barely perceptible sway.

Warden Eastelline was more confident. He had brought his daughter as a partner. But it was clear that whoever in the Eastelline family can twist, it isn't the warden.

Mr. MacDougal had a better technique, but he could not match Mayor Fewster. He nearly left the floor with his handsome partner, Shirley Osmond.

The judges were unanimous. The dance belonged to Ingersoll's Mayor Fewster. The crowd roared its approval.

Three Ingersoll High School students — Dennis McMillan, Wayne Cole and Douglas Milne—organized the dance to raise money for a crippled children's fund. They invited each mayor and his partner to compete in the special twistorama, but only Mayors Fewster and Downing and the two others accepted.

Court Is Told Bingos Run By Syndicate

TORONTO (CP)—A police detective told a preliminary hearing Tuesday that the manager of a Toronto hall told him in 1960 that it was difficult to run the place because of competition from bingo games operated by syndicates based in Cleveland.

Det. Joseph Kowluk said W. C. Whitby, of nearby Port Credit, general manager of the Palace Hall, told them such a man had turned to Cleveland every week with about $18,000 in proceeds from bingo games.

Whitby, 45, is one of eight persons charged with conspiring to operate common gaming houses.

Others charged are Ernest Ince, 35, of suburban Etobicoke; James Laidlaw, 46, and Norman Gilmour, 39, both of Peterborough; Ernest White, 44, of Whitby; William Laidlaw, 42, Oshawa; and Harry Gordon Lane, 56, and James Cully, 46, both of London.

All are owners, managers or assistant managers of halls.

Det. Kowluk testified with the aid of books of material. He told of other visits to halls in London and Galt where bingo games were held.

Retiring Institute Pres. Makes Plea for Smaller Scholarships for Students

OTTAWA (CP)—It's the contention of a prominent Canadian engineering - professor that big scholarships get people hooked on diamond rings and second-hand cars.

The assertion was made Wednesday by Dr. J. B. Mawdsley, dean of engineering at the University of Saskatchewan, in his farewell speech as retiring president of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy.

Dr. Mawdsley, expressing concern at the shrinking number of engineering graduates entering the mineral industry, blamed the mass media and big scholarships to meet the cost of first year books.

"Big scholarships are fine, but I would sooner see three $500 prizes than one big one," he said. "Some big ones go into a diamond ring or a second-hand car."

His speech wound up the institute's annual meeting and saw the newly - elected president installed more than 1,000 luncheon delegates with a reminder that Canada's role in the withdrawal of South Africa from the Commonwealth was "deplorable."

DECLINES COMMENT

J. R. Bradfield, of Toronto, president of Noranda Mines Limited, made this all-but-official announcement during a brief reply to an address by South African Prime Minister H. F. Oppenheimer. After the meeting he declined further comment.

The chairman of the Anglo-American Corporation of Johannesburg, had said South Africa's "expulsion" from the Commonwealth was a "very grave mistake." Persons outside South Africa, he continued, realized the "misconception" about the South African situation but he was hopeful a "humane solution" would be evolved.

Dr. Mawdsley said that last spring only some 400 of 3,500 engineering graduates had been especially trained for the industry, and this year the number would be less.

He blamed the shortage partially on the number of students now taking "pure science" courses and also on some interesting competitive fields such as aeronautics, electronics and automation.

City Ministers Overworked Meeting Told

BRANTFORD (CP) — The minister of a city congregation is overworked, while the minister of a rural church "ends up pacing the floor wondering what to do with his time," the annual meeting of the Presbyterian Synod of Hamilton and London was told Wednesday.

Rev. C. Deane Johnston of Central Presbyterian Church, Brantford, said an answer must be found to the differences.

He said a rural church sometimes heads towards a nervous breakdown; on the other hand, it is frustrating for a minister to deal with a small rural congregation year after year.

The synod discussed another problem of the rural church—people who stop attending church after they move into the city from the country.

Dr. Johnston said the congregational growth in cities does not keep pace with the influx. He suggested the church obtain addresses from relatives of these people, and then visit or write to them.

The synod, comprising eight presbyteries in Western Ontario, ended its three-day meeting Wednesday. It will meet in South Africa on the Wednesday of the first Church, Weiland, April 22, 1963. The synod appointed a layman, J. E. Rollo, treasurer and trustee.

The synod was told that its members of the synod gave an average of $6.45 each last year. Budget giving to the synod increased by $19,018, up 4.2 per cent from the $457,366 during 1961. Membership within the synod is 56,242.

Of the missionary level, budget giving increased $135,139 to $1,727,246. Total contributions across Canada amounted to $12,812,436, up over the $11,988,297 figure for 1960.

Alex Deans, assistant secretary of the Presbyterian general assembly's board of stewardship and budget, said the problem of giving is suffering because the church does not teach children to be challenged the elders of the synod to go back to their churches and correct the situation.

Judge Appeals To Teachers to Help Children

TORONTO (CP)—The senior judge of Toronto's juvenile and family courts challenged teachers Wednesday to replace material idols in the esteem of their students.

Judge Lorne Stewart was speaking to urban school principals attending the annual convention of the Ontario Educational Association.

Judge Stewart said professional persons ought to roll up "our academic and emotional sleeves and go to work on behalf of the children in the middle."

"We in the courts and schools can't say we to these young people.

"As long as a single child in any of our homes or classrooms goes uncared for physically, emotionally or spiritually, we are failing in our task."

ATTITUDES DESCRIBED

The judge said he is concerned about attitudes toward the delinquent boy.

"A typical delinquent — if there is such a thing—has below-average intelligence and is retarded by two or three years in reading and arithmetic. He encounters more criticism than praise and more pain than pleasure in his mind in relation from school and the lodge of 'success'—money, independence and his own type of success."

Dr. W. R. Sawyer, director of studies at Royal Military College, Kingston, said mathematics courses in universities will be altered as a result of the need for computers in the handling mathematical problems posed by cybernetics. The influence might even be felt in the high school curriculum.

Interim Grant Being Withheld By Department

RENFREW, Ont. (CP)—The secretary of the Renfrew school board said Wednesday night the has been told that the provincial education department is withholding a $50,000 interim grant from the board which refuses to repay a $78,697 overpayment made earlier by the government.

The provincial education department had ordered the board to repay the money which was paid out in grants as a result of padded enrolment figures. This occurred while Allan Gay was supervising principal. He is now in serving a three-year prison term for embezzling money from the board.

Mrs. Margaret Ashfield, secretary, told a board meeting Wednesday night she received a telephone call from Dr. F. S. Rivers, director of education for the province, advising her that the $50,000 interim grant is being withheld because the board had broken the law in refusing to make repayment.

Cats Must Pay Inheritance Tax of $242

CHICAGO (AP)—The state of Illinois has ruled that $242.23 in inheritance taxes is due from Tiger, a cat. So is the cats, Big Boy, Blue Boy, Tuxedo Kitty and Tuxedo Kitty, must pay $15.10 each. The fifth and youngest cat, Miss Mona, owes $6.05 tax.

It was all worked out strictly according to actuarial tables used by the late Attorney-General William Clark and his deputy.

The five cats were left $13, 804.59 in trust by Mrs. Margaret Montgomery, who died in 1960.

The cats will benefit while they are alive, then the real due of the estate is to be divided by William Fields of the estate trustee and the Roman Catholic Sisters of the Blessed Sacrament at Cornwells Heights, Pa.

Clark said the five cats probably will live to be about 14 years old, their high income level giving them about four more years of living than the average cat.

Until Seneca Flat Nose, age 9, pays about five years taxes, while the other cats—all about 13 years old—pay about two years' taxes.

Clark said that a total amount of tax due from each cat was carefully calculated actuarially. He said he and after all agreed that they were fine cats in life—that is, not related by blood to their benefactor.

Hamilton Taxi Driver Honored By Commission

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (CP)—A Hamilton taxi driver, who rescued two 4-year-old women trapped by fire and tried unsuccessfully to save a second woman, was among four Canadians honored Wednesday with the Carnegie Hero Fund Commission.

Donald R. Smith, 29, received a bronze medal and $500 for his rescue of Mrs. Iris Lieberman and Mrs. Lieberman's attempt to save Margaret Place, 84. The incident occurred last January 30, when fire in a Hamilton store forced apartments above it with dense smoke.

Two other Ontario men also received bronze medals and $500 each for a rescue operation in Prince Edward Bay on Lake Ontario May 15, 1960. Bernard M. Keough, 36, of Milford Bay, and Ronald W. Bell, 30, of Toronto launched leaky rowboat in heavy seas to the rescue of four men from a capsized motorboat.

A posthumous award went to Donald L. Tice, 31, of North Tonawanda, N.Y., who saved one teen-ager from drowning and a second bronze medal and also $80 a month for a maximum of five years.

Aluminum Industry Seems Unlikely to Test Policies

NEW YORK (AP) — The aluminum industry, facing new wage contract talks, seems unlikely to test seriously President Kennedy's economic policies that were established by the victorious battle with big steel.

Labor negotiations in the industry are expected to open next month, and Commerce Secretary Hodges has mentioned aluminum as an example of industries where wages might get special attention from the Kennedy administration.

The big issue in the steel dispute was a flat across-the-board price increase by U.S. Steel and other steel firms—forced to back down shortly after it went under pressure from the president.

Such a price rise appears academic for aluminum producers, according to the best sources here.

FOCUS MIGHT SHIFT

Thus, attention could easily center in wage and fringe benefits.

N. Harvey Collisson, senior vice-president of Olin-Mathieson Chemical Corporation, predicted between steel and the aluminum wage settlements 28 months ago were deceiving.

"It is true the steel price rise for about the same period and the last aluminum rise stick unless aluminum goes along. The aluminum company got its labor settlement out of the way last fall, and unlike U.S. producers it made no price rises, pure on costs—and prices—in sight from that quarter.

Boosting prices on selected fabricated products.

Lawrence Litchfield, Jr., Alcoa chairman, said officials the hopeful of "restoring" past cuts, not raising prices.

As to Labor negotiations, Frank L. Magee, Alcoa chairman, struck what may prove the key note of management. With the recent steel contract in mind, he said industry made age of fringe benefits in mind, he said reporters a few days ago:

"It is wrong to think that annual increases in labor costs is not inflationary or does not contribute to a company's competitive position."

NONE DOMINATES

Among seven principal U.S. aluminum producers, Reynolds and Kaiser account for about 30 per cent of capacity. But none dominates the industry as U.S. Steel Corporation does in the steel industry.

One was illustrated by last fall's price cut when Alcoa's cerns quickly followed a lead set by Aluminum Limited, the giant Canadian firm.

Aluminum Limited is the world's second largest producer behind Alcoa. It is the largest producer of aluminum, which operates internationally with about 85 per cent of output outside United States boundaries—into U.S. and overseas markets.

In effect, U.S. companies can't make such rise stick unless aluminum goes along. The Canadian company got its labor settlement out of the way last fall, and unlike U.S. producers made no price rises, pure on costs—and prices—in sight from that quarter.

EXTINGUISH FIRE

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Flames escaping from a 150,000-barrel gasoline storage tank spread across a busy street Tuesday night and exploded into a spectacular 150-hour fire finally put out Wednesday. Three of four persons who suffered critical injuries were motorists. Investigators said the fumes apparently were ignited by a passing automobile.

Federation of Rhodesia And Nyasaland Hangs on Elections Called for Apr. 27

By CAROL KENNEDY

LONDON (CP)—The Federation of Rhodesia and Nyasaland, whose future hangs on federal elections being held April 27, sprawls unevenly across 486,000 square miles of the dry high-veldt and bush country of south-central Africa.

It is bordered by countries that present a cross-section of African politics and problems. To the north is white-ruled, republican South Africa; to the north the both-secured Congo and independent black Tanganyika. Flanking it are the Portuguese colonies of Angola and Mozambique.

There is something symbolic about the federation's place on the map. It was created in 1953, a century after the birth of Cecil John Rhodes, founder of Rhodesia, in hopes that among other benefits it would bring a multi-racial solution to the problem of African government.

The three countries that make up the federation are the self-governing colony of Southern Rhodesia, whose capital Salisbury is also the federal capital, and the two protectorates North-ern Rhodesia and Nyasaland.

DISTRUST FEDERATION

The idea of federation had been in the air for nearly 30 years. The economies of the three landlocked countries were largely complementary and it was obvious that centralized control would improve communications and develop such mutually beneficial projects as hydro-electric power from the Zambesi River.

Perhaps the truest economic prospect was the thought of Northern Rhodesia's rich copper mines forming the basis for a big federal economy. In 1960 copper accounted for 80 per cent of total federal exports. Indirectly it has also helped pour federal subsidies of £3,000,000 a year into underdeveloped Nyasaland.

From the start, however, many Africans in the two northern territories distrusted federation. They felt Southern Rhodesia would benefit most from the association and feared that their political future would be swamped, in Southern Rhodesia the whites were powerful and close - knit with a sense of pioneer heritage while the Africans were completely apathetic about politics.

To appease such fears it was agreed in 1953 that Northern Rhodesia and Nyasaland should keep their protectorate status within the federal framework.

TWO VOTING ROLLS

The franchise governing federal elections works on two voters' rolls open to citizens over 21 of all races but subject to certain qualifications of income and education. Registered voters now include some 104,000 Europeans and 10,000 Africans. The second roll specially caters to Africans by requiring income of only £120 a year or seven years' secondary education.

Twelve of the 59 members must be Africans. Forty-four others may be either European or African although the large majority of European voters virtually assures most of these will be white. Three Europeans are elected with special responsibilities for African interests.

The federal election of 1958—when 35 seats were contested—brought to power the United Federal Party under Sir Roy Welensky with 44 members out eight for the Dominion Party and one independent.

The Federal Party is in principle a multi-racial organization; in practice it is dominated by Europeans.

The federal assembly legislates on defense, economic and financial matters, communications and non-African education. Most other matters are left to member governments. The British government reserves ultimate responsibility for some federal legislation and for foreign policy.

SOUTH SETS PACE

Now for a closer look at the three territories involved.

Southern Rhodesia: Economic pace-setter for the federation. Its 374,000 whites enjoy one of the highest living standards in the world. The African population, about 2,700,000, is comfortably swelled by a flow of labor from the two northern territories where wages are much lower.

It is a flat scrubland country three times the size of England but somewhat smaller than Newfoundland. It's prosperity comes from well-organized agriculture, mainly tobacco and maize; chrome and asbestos mining, and a booming light industry.

The chief cities are Salisbury, where the first settlers planted the Union Jack in 1890, and Bulawayo, the tall and commercial centre of the country.

Salisbury, a thrusting "little Chicago" of dazzling white skyscrapers and leafy suburbs, has a population of 260,000. It has a lively, cosmopolitan atmosphere and its 34,000 Europeans are doing much to break down race barriers.

Bulawayo, with 46,000 whites and 128,000 Africans, was the provincial in flavor. Multi-racial ideas are slower to catch on here than in the north. They are even more distrusted in the tribal areas among the strong conservatism among the Bulawayo-Salisbury railroad, and in Umtali, a fruit-farming country in the mountainous eastern border. Southern Rhodesia has been a self-governing colony since 1923. Until last year its parliament was virtually all white. In 1961 Sir Edgar Whitehead, prime minister and leader of the United Federal Party in Southern Rhodesia, succeeded in widening the franchise—with its qualifications to the federal system—to give Africans 15 seats in the legislature. Europeans have 50 seats and here the comparatively progressive UFP holds only a two - seat majority over the right-wing Dominion Party.

Northern Rhodesia: Nearly twice the size of its dynamic neighbor, Northern Rhodesia's wealth and most of its 71,000 Europeans are concentrated in the Copper Belt, bordering on the Katanga province of the Congo.

The copper towns which provide most of the federation's wealth are Ndola, Mufulira and Broken Hill. Capital is Lusaka, a dusty farming town of 5,000 whites, 40,000 Africans.

LED BY KAUNDA

Northern Rhodesia has been a British protectorate since 1911, with an elected legislative council and a nominated executive council largely nominated by the governor.

With the exception of the feudal estates of Barotseland under its Paramount Chief, the 2,500,000 Africans of Northern Rhodesia are politically active. They find a powerful voice in Kenneth Kaunda's United National Independence Party.

All last year Kaunda tangled with federal Premier Welensky and Britain's colonial secretary Iain Macleod over the terms of a new constitution that would give African nationalists a measure of power in the legislative council.

Finally, last February, a three-decker formula was found for the 45-seat legislature. An upper roll of voters with high property or educational qualifications—some 25,000 Europeans, 2,000 Africans—would elect 15 seats. A lower roll designed for their own language and £120 a year or eight standard 15 seats from about 70,000 voters.

ELECTION 30 EARLY

The remaining 15 are so-called national seats, elected by both voting rolls. Candidates must poll at least 10 per cent of the vote of each race in the national constituencies to qualify for election.

The new constitution could enable Kaunda's nationalists to win a majority in about a year's time. Sir Roy Welensky fears that if this happens, northern Rhodesia may break away and its wealth out of the federation. This is really, why he has called the federal elections a year early, hoping that if the UFP can be returned to power it will prove to be a mandate for the triple association to continue.

Nyasaland, the Cinderella and problem child of the federation, is a long, thin, land-locked mountain country that hangs down the eastern side of the federation. Nyasaland produces tea, tobacco and little else. Its 3,000,000 African population is tiered mainly around Lake Nyasa, approaches 2,900,000 and outnumbers white settlers by 300 to 1.

In spite of federal aid, it is a desperately poor country, difficult to cultivate. The only town of any size is Blantyre-Limbe, with 4,000 Europeans and 28,000 Africans. Zomba, the capital, has a white population of only 850.

BANDA WANTS OUT

Nyasaland has been a protectorate since 1907. Last August under a franchise system similar to that in Northern Rhodesia but with slightly lower qualifications enabling 196,000 Africans to vote, the nationalist Malawi Congress Party gained control of the legislative council.

Nyasaland's executive council also has five elected African members, in contrast to Northern Rhodesia where the two African ministerial posts are nominated by the governor.

Having achieved so much power, it is the ambition of Prime Minister Dr. Hastings Banda to take Nyasaland out of the federal association and of Roy Welensky's control.

The crucial question for Who will step in to subsidize this impoverished land in place of the jailed federal governments? Dr. Banda is enigmatic on the subject, but a strong possibility if federation does not survive is a loose eventual linking between Nyasaland and Northern Rhodesia, perhaps with an eye to joining the black states of East Africa in a new federal union.

Fertilizer Ingredient Cheap Substitute for Nitroglycerin

By RUSSELL ELMAN

OTTAWA (CP)—Development of a common fertilizer ingredient as a cheap substitute for nitroglycerin in mines is having a major impact on the explosives industry, Canadian mining officials were told Monday.

The new explosive, which by next year may account for 75 per cent of all explosives used in Canadian underground mining operations, is ammonium nitrate-fuel oil.

When ammonium nitrate, an inexpensive material, is mixed in the right proportions with fuel oil—diesel oil becomes an explosive capable of moving tons of rock in a single blast.

Arthur Dymond, sales manager for Canadian Industries Limited's explosives division, Montreal, described the use of AN-FO as a "major technological development" in a lecture to the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy.

He said it might still be a number of years and cost many millions of dollars before the best form of ammonium nitrate for blasting use was worked out.

Meanwhile, Canadian mines had begun to introduce AN-FO in underground blasting operations because of considerable savings in cost.

Milliken Uranium Mine at Elliot Lake, Ont., began using the new explosive in all working areas in the mine last summer after two years of intensive research.

M. D. Lawton, Milliken's underground superintendent, said explosive costs used to amount to 25 per cent of all underground mining costs. Since the introduction of AN-FO, explosive costs had already been cut by half to 14 cents a ton, he said.

Ammonium nitrate, for many years used as an ingredient in nitro-glycerol explosives, was first used in a substitute mixture for NG-based blasting explosives in 1925. Mr. Dymond said attention was focused on its possible use as an important explosive in its own right following the explosion of boatloads of ammonium nitrate in the Texas City and Brest, France disasters of 1947. Widespread testing of AN-FO began in North America and Europe in the late 1950s.

Most Canadians to Observe Daylight Time for 6 Months But Practice Varies Widely

By CARL MOLLINS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Daylight time, an idea first proposed by Benjamin Franklin to save candle tallow for French peasants, comes piecemeal to Canada again this year.

Savings in candle wax are likely to be negligible when most Canadians turn their clocks ahead one hour April 28, year. The local high school deBut the majority seem to agree extra evening light is a boon, despite the confusion it causes to trans-Canada tourists who encounter municipal pockets and provinces that stick to standard time.

Use of daylight time has expanded territorially and spanned progressively more of the year since its first introduction to Canada 44 years ago.

The Canadian Press shows that this year most Canadians will observe daylight time for a full six months—April 29 to Oct. 28 —though practices vary widely.

FRANKLIN STARTED IT

Scientist-statesman Benjamin Franklin couldn't have dreamed of daylight time when, as United States envoy to France, he urged the Parisians to put their clocks ahead, conserve tallow and enjoy more daylight.

It was the late William Lyon Mackenzie King's grandfather, the campaign of Canadian engineer Sandford Fleming, that mapped the world into 24 standard time zones and led to legislation for daylight time followed, and soon abandoned, by Britain. It adopted fast summer time early in the First World War to save coal for industry and law.

Canada adopted daylight saving time in the Second World War but the act lapsed at the end of that year and any legislation was left to the will of the provinces. The term "daylight saving" was first officially abandoned for "daylight time" and, abbreviations like EDST in Ontario and EWT in Quebec shortened to EDT.

Nova Scotia and Newfoundland introduce daylight time by provincial government proclamation. Prince Edward Island keeps the province on standard time but has no time law.

LIVING COMPROMISE

Prince Edward Island strikes a compromise between urban pressure for daylight time and rural opposition on the farms by putting governmental offices on "working hours," which means townfolk will be back from lunch in the farmers' for six months.

The other six provinces leave it to municipalities. Such regional individualism results in Ontario and Quebec's time-zone differences and gives rise to new nicknames.

Most British Columbia adopting Pacific daylight time and Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba, the two provinces tell the same time for the middle two months of the year.

All of Saskatchewan officially keeps central standard time except for the southeastern quarter, where they observe daylight time cut from Manitoba. But the major communities lie outside the zone and are judged by Central standard time all year.

OWN SYSTEM

Swift Current has its own daylight system by switching from central to mountain time, yielding last year and adopted Central time through Sunday observance.

Winnipeg is adopting daylight time for the first time and most of the rest of Manitoba is staying on central standard time. Daylight time last summer but citizens rejected the experiment in a subsequent vote on the ground that the time change confused surrounding central rural people who were on standard time.

Flin Flon, Man., shares the experience of other northern communities in requiring no artificial aid to get long summer evenings. Daylight time was adopted in Flin Flon from 1948 to 1950, but it was abandoned because summer daylight lingers until 10 p.m. or later on standard time.

At Lakehead, Fort William and Port Arthur are among the exceptions in the general adoption of daylight time throughout the Eastern time belt in Ontario and Quebec. Being close to the Central zone, they usually get their heat ahead of their neighbors to the west and daylight time would mean more daylight at work.

While most Ontario communities are switching to daylight time for six months, the southwestern part of the province offers bewildering variety.

SCHOOL SETS DATES

Windsor stays on standard in conformity with neighboring Detroit and most of Essex county follows suit. Chatham sets the general pattern for Kent county, running daylight time April 29 to Sept. 3, but two Kent communities go their own way. Wallaceburg will have daylight time for the full six months and Tilbury will stay on standard time.

In Middlesex county, Glencoe village is turning off daylight time after a spell, but other neighboring municipalities this cided to observe daylight time. Rawdon Church on Good Friday evening for a special service conducted by the pastor, Mrs. James Pollock and Mrs. Gerald Russell of Wellman conducted a vocal duet.

Japanese Needs Spark Mine Boom in British Columbia

By JIM PEACOCK

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia's mining industry is thriving on Japanese markets.

Fifty major companies are spending $5,000,000 a year on exploration, seeking new ore bodies and defining those already discovered as demand in Japan grows for iron ore, copper, coking coal, nickel, lead, zinc, potash, asbestos and gypsum.

Many times that amount is being spent in bringing mines into production.

B.C. ores have been moving to Japan for 10 years, but in the last three years Japanese demand has grown considerably and many new properties have been brought into production in B.C. to meet it.

The new producers are iron ore and copper sites. Shipments to Japan of coking coal and nickel have prompted expansion in older operations in these fields.

A survey made for the Japan trade centre in Vancouver showed 12 B.C. mines have contracted to supply Japanese companies with minerals worth $225,000,000 during the next 10 years.

JAPAN'S NEEDS RISE

Of equal significance is the survey's finding that by 1970 Japan's demand for copper and lead probably will double while her demand for zinc is expected to triple.

The growing mining production—output is being increased by 20,000 tons a day through mines which have just begun production or which will do so within the next few months—has been felt to a large extent on Vancouver Island.

Two new iron mines and two new copper operations have been undertaken, expansion has occurred at two older iron ore producers and exploration is being carried out on at least two other iron ore properties which may become producers within the next year or two.

These have brought nearly $20,000,000 in development spending on Vancouver Island alone. Another $10,000,000 is being spent to bring in a new iron ore mine in the Queen Charlotte Islands and to expand another in the Gulf Islands.

Most significant new mine, however, is the Craigmont Mines Ltd. copper operation near Merritt, 35 miles south of Kamloops.

Craigmont spent $18,000,000 to bring the property into production and now is shipping copper concentrates to Japan under a six-year, $63,000,000 agreement with Sumitomo Mining Corp., Mitsui and Co. Ltd. and Mitsubishi International Corp.

Bethlehem Copper Corp. Ltd. also has a major contract with Japanese interests, to supply 120,000 tons of copper concentrates worth $72,000,000 during the next 10 years from its Highland Valley property near Ashcroft, 30 miles west of Kamloops. Bethlehem is spending more than $5,000,000 to bring this mine into production this year.

Biggest of the new iron ore operations — they're concentrated near harvester because over-land shipping costs would make the low-grade concentrates too expensive for Japanese or other markets—is the $16,000,000 Noranda Mines Ltd. operation at Kennedy Lake on Vancouver Island.

Noranda has a seven-year contract to supply 5,000,000 tons of iron concentrates with gross value of $45,000,000 to Mitsubishi and Gosho Co.

Jedway Iron Ore Ltd., subsidiary of Granby Mining Co. Ltd., is spending $4,500,000 to bring its Queen Charlottes property into production this year and as a starter will supply 2,000,000 tons worth $14,000,000 to Sumitomo Shoji, New York Inc., during the next five years.

Texada Mines Ltd., shipping iron ore from Texada Island in the Gulf Islands group to Japan for some time, has announced a $4,000,000 underground mining expansion at its property to meet a new 10-year contract with Mitsubishi calling for shipments worth $45,000,000.

Texada will complete by the fall of next year an earlier three-year contract with Mitsubishi under which it is shipping 600,000 tons worth $14,000,000.

Giant-Mascot Mines Ltd. has expanded its operations at Hope to meet Japanese demands—72,000 tons of nickel concentrate worth $9,300,000 during the next three years. And the Crow's Nest Pass Coal Co. Ltd. coal mine at Michel is working now largely because of an 800,000-ton, $13,000,000 one-year contract to supply coking coal to C. T. Takahashi and Co. Ltd. and Kishimoto Shogun Mitsubishi of Japan.

SEE NORTHERN BOOM

Mining authorities say the province holds great prospects with four more iron ore bodies within perhaps a year of coming into production on Vancouver and other coastal islands and new properties being proven up for various minerals in the interior.

The prospect to which mining officials attach the greatest significance is the copper property of Granduc Mines Ltd., 30 miles northwest of Stewart in the north coastal region near the southern tip of the Alaskan Panhandle.

Granduc is spending $1,800,000 in exploration and proving-up of this ore body and may decide by the end of this year whether to put it into production. It does so, a multi-million-dollar expenditure will be required and a boom will come to Stewart.

ARGOS SIGN BAC

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto Argonauts Wednesday announced the signing of their 14th import for the 1962 Eastern Football Conference season.

He is John Moore, a 175-pound halfback from Miami University in Oxford, Ohio. He was Miami's leading ground-gainer in 1960, carrying 94 times for 616 yards and a 6.6-yard average. He was their top scorer with eight touchdowns for 48 points and was voted Miami's most valuable player.

Moore, a native of Middletown, Ohio, had a brief tryout last season with Buffalo Bills of the American League but returned to Miami to complete his university course.

Horton Sets Two Records

MONTREAL (CP)—Tim Horton of Toronto Maple Leafs set two records for scoring by defencemen during the Stanley Cup playoffs, the National Hockey League said Wednesday.

He got 16 points on three goals and 13 assists to break a record of 15 points set last year by Pierre Pilote of Chicago Black Hawks.

The 13 assists also broke a record held by Pilote, who had 12 in the 1960-61 playoffs.

Statistics published after Sunday's game in Chicago, when the Leafs polished off the Hawks 3-1 to win the cup, showed that Horton had three goals and 12 assists for 15 points.

The missing assist showed up when the official scorer at Maple Leaf Gardens informed NHL headquarters that Horton had assisted on a goal by Frank Mahovlich in the second game in Toronto. The assist was originally credited to Red Kelly.

Horton was also the second-highest scorer in the playoffs, surpassed only by Stan Mikita's record-breaking 21 points for the vanquished Hawks.

Jets Beat Em 12-8

Leafs Lose Opener

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Richmond Virginians Wednesday split an opening twin bill of the International League with Buffalo Bisons, winning the day opener 12-0 and dropping the night afterpiece 7-6.

Buffalo took advantage of a pair of errors by second baseman Pedro Gonzales for three unearned runs to win the night cap. Four home runs and George Haney's three-hit pitching gave Richmond the opener.

Jacksonville Suns edged Syracuse Chiefs 4-3 and Columbus Jets belted five Toronto Maple Leafs pitchers for 16 hits and a 12-8 victory. Atlanta's long-awaited debut was postponed by rain which wiped out a 2-1 Rochester lead after three innings.

OUTSLUG TORONTO

A crowd of 12,343 was on hand at Columbus, Ohio, to watch the Jets outslug Toronto. The big turnout saw three hours and 26 minutes of action featured by six home runs and a total of 27 assorted hits.

Gary Rushing, Hank Mitchell and Charley Leonard all hit for the circuit for Columbus, Rocky Nelson, one of the league's all-time great sluggers, marked his return from the majors with a three-run homer and was joined by teammates Tim Thompson and Lou Jackson in the four-bagger column.

Kingston Downs Ottawa 3-0

KINGSTON (CP) — Kingston Frontenacs, led by a forward line of the league's three top scorers, downed Hull - Ottawa Canadiens 3-0 Wednesday night to take a 2-0 lead in the Eastern Professional Hockey League finals.

Fourth game in the best-of-seven series will be at Kingston Friday.

Orv Tessier, Tom McCarthy and Bobby Attersley of the Frontenacs finished One, two, three in the league's scoring race as they played on the same forward line until mid-season.

Tessier was then moved on the line and manager - coach Wren Blair reunited his aces for the series against Hull.

McCarthy scored twice Wednesday night and Tessier added the other goal. Attersley was just as impressive, especially in the checking department.

The shutout checking game was almost dull at times. The Canadiens, missing rookies Brian Smith and Bill Masterton, were not sharp.

REMAINS IN HOSPITAL

Smith is still in an Ottawa hospital with a fractured skull suffered in the first game of the series and Masterton was on the sidelines with influenza.

Nag Carried $15,000 Bet Finished Last

NEW YORK (AP) — It couldn't be confirmed officially but the clubhouse at Aqueduct raced Wednesday with the story of a man who bet $15,000 Tuesday on Parrott's Polly, the 3-to-5 favorite, to show and saw the horse finish last in a field of seven.

Had Farrott's Polly placed third or better, the bettor would have won $750. The race was won by Franegus, who paid $41.50 for $2.

Two weeks ago a man reportedly bet $12,000 on Green Ticket, a 4-to-5 favorite, to show and reaped a profit of $600 when his judgment proved correct.

North Bay Wins at Cobourg

COBOURG, Ont. (CP)—North Bay teams won two of the three Group A finals at the Little NHL hockey tournament Wednesday night.

The northerners knocked off Trenton 3-2 in the AHL peewee division and defeated Toronto Township 3-1 in the NHL bantam division. They failed in their bid for the Junior A midgrown, losing to Scarborough 3-2.

In the consolation round, Toronto Township took the mite crown by defeating Niagara Falls 4-1 but lost the peewee title to Scarborough 3-1. Scarborough also won the bantam title, defeating Trenton 3-1.

Earlier scores Wednesday:

Mite—Toronto Township 5 Peterborough 0

Peewee — North Bay 3 St. Catharines 1; Scarborough 6 Barrie 2

Bantam—Scarborough 4 Niagara Falls 1.

Action continues today in Group B, for teams with population under 15,000. Some 27 teams are competing.

Defeat Brandon 5-3

Oil Kings In Cup Final

BRANDON, Man. (CP)—Brandon Wheat Kings' comeback drive died Wednesday night and Edmonton Oil Kings will represent Western Canada in the Memorial Cup final series for the third straight year.

Edmonton beat the Wheat Kings 5-3 in the seventh game of the western final. Brandon was down 3-1 in games at one point in the best-of-seven series, but came back with two victories to force the seventh battle.

The Oil Kings now meet Hamilton Red Wings, eastern champions, for the Memorial Cup and Canadian junior hockey crown. The best-of-seven series opens in Toronto Sunday. All games have been scheduled for Toronto.

The Oil Kings failed in their bid for the title the last two seasons. They were beaten by St. Catharines Teepees in 1960 and by Toronto St. Michael's Majors last year.

Although the Oil Kings outshot Brandon 41-32, they led only 2-1 at the end of the first period and 3-2 after the second. Brandon tied the game early in the third period on a goal by Dave Mazure. But it was the Wheat Kings' last gasp.

Forty seconds later Max Mertinuck scored the winner for Edmonton and Johnny Lesyshen scored the insurance goal at 9:35.

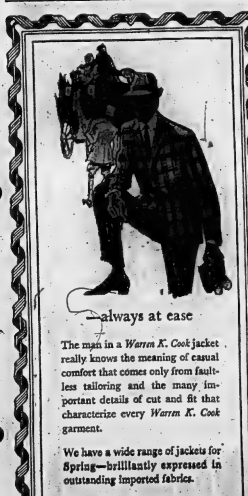
Earlier Edmonton goals went to Roger Bourbonnais, with two, and Phil Durbano. Rick Brown and Sherry Kell got Brandon's other goals.

The Tracks

FORT ERIE (CP) — Crown Ilah bred four-year-old colt, made his second appearance at the races Wednesday at Fort Erie and won again.

Crown Attorney, ridden by Hugo Dittach, found the fast track to his liking as he ran away from his position. At the finish of the 6½-furlong dash he was 6½ lengths in front of Ponder On. Wonderwine was third.

Favored by the crowd of 6,139, largest week-day crowd of the meeting, Crown Attorney returned $3 to win.



The gallelle, the first of two, of Crown Attorney and Ponder On returned $17.10.

Dittach was scoring his 150th victory of the season when he rode Crown Attorney but he slipped behind Jimmy Fitzsimmons in the leading rider race.

Fitzsimmons scored on three mounts Wednesday, and has a total of 16 wins. Dittach has 15 first-place finishes.

Bisons Nip Indians in Overtime

BUFFALO (AP) — Buffalo Bisons defeated Springfield Indians 1-0 in sudden-death overtime Wednesday night in the fourth game of the American Hockey League's Calder Cup playoffs.

The victory was Buffalo's first in the best-of-seven series which Springfield now leads 3-1.

Ron Ingram's shot from the blueline glanced off Dave Creighton's leg and into the Indians' goal to end the game at 12:35 mark. Creighton was credited with the goal and Ingram with an assist.

A large measure of the victory was heaped on Bisons goalie Denis Dalicandro who made eight saves in the extra period, several of them in spectacular fashion, to record his 4th victory in 10 games against the Indians.

Roberts, Labine Are 'Fired'

NEW YORK (AP) — Robin Roberts and Clem Labine, two right-handers once among the best pitchers in major league baseball, have been given their walking papers.

Roberts, a 234-game winner for Philadelphia in the National League, drew his outright release from the New York Yankees of the American League Wednesday.

Labine, top relief man and pitching mainstay of the old Brooklyn Dodgers, was released today by New York Mets of the National League.

Labine is 36. Each was overlooked in the expansion draft. Their outright release is the second for each. Each may be at the end of his baseball career.

The Trots

TORONTO (CP) — Old Woodbine's dramatic timing device was unable to declare a winner in the $7,360 Port Erie Trot Wednesday night before 5,342 patrons, so top honors were divided between two owners.

The stakes event drew 22 trotters and was divided into three divisions. The top honors reserved for the horse with the fastest time in the three races.

It turned out the winners of the first and third divisions had identical times of 2:08 4 for the mile. The dilemma was solved by making presentations to both.

Silk Boy W, owned by the Laurentian Stable of Rawdon, Que., and driven by Murray Wrigley, won the first division the night's fourth race. Van's Pride C, owned and driven by Doug Palmer of Schomberg, took the third division, the seventh race.

The second division, which went as the sixth race, was won by Glenalee, owned by John Graham of Lindsay and piloted by Clarence Hilliard. The mare's time was 2:12.3.

In each race, the winners picked up $1,300. The co-champions, Doug Palmer and Murray Wrigley, also received presentations.

A double payoff of $405.20 was in the making when the 3-to-5 choice in the first race broke stride and finished nowhere. This was Miss Riddell, three-year-old filly owned by Hon. Earl Rowe and driven by Bob Silliphant. With Miss Riddell out of contention, Prince X, owned by Albert Defosse of Trenton came down at $17.20.

The big payoff was completed by the long shot winner of the second race, Farnetown Dale, owned by Joseph Corbin of Quebec City, and worth $52.60 for a $2 straight return.

Titles Become Almost As Long as Programs

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—The hour-long television program really blossomed last season, but this has been the year in which titles become almost as long as the programs themselves.

For example, there was a Naked City episode called Today the Man Who Kills the Auto Is Coming. There is an upcoming Route 66 show called There Ain't Any There Up Ahead, Right, and nine-word subtitles are routine.

Producers of "actuals"—documentaries, public affairs and educational shows—have the most long-title-prone of the lot. CBS recently had a program whose official title was The Great Challenge — U.S. and Russia.

U.S.S.R.: Coexistence or Collision.

NBC doesn't try to save words, either. A typical title for one of its documentary shows is NBC White Paper No. 11—Arms and the State, followed by an explanation of what the title means.

NBC has Danny Kaye signed for a special next season, and CBS has lined up Judy Garland . . . it will be Peter Lind Hayes and Mary Healy instead of Pat Boone steering the Tonight Show between May 28 and June 1.

Feels Smokies Have Edge

TRAIL, B.C. (CP)—Maurice Filion, coach of Montreal Olympics, thought the question over and said:

"I'll be honest with you. I haven't the slightest idea of what is going to happen. We should have a good idea after the first game."

Filion was referring to tonight's opening battle between the Olympics and Trail Smoke Eaters in a best-of-seven series for the Allan Cup, Canadian senior hockey championship.

Bobby Kromm, coach of the Smoke Eaters, said: "No one expected the Olympics to wind up in the Allan Cup finals. But they're here, so they must have something. I don't want to go out on a limb until I've seen the team play, but I do feel we have a slight edge, being a young club with more experience playing together."

The Olympics were formed only this season. They headed into the Allan Cup series with a 10-game winning streak in the East. Trail is shooting for its second Allan Cup. The Smoke Eaters won it—and the world championship — in 1938. They were runners-up to Chatham Maroons in 1960 and won the world title again last year.

Flyers Take 3-1 Lead

EDMONTON (CP) — Edmonton Flyers have one victory away from their third Western Hockey League championship.

The Flyers, champions in 1953 and 1956, defeated Spokane Comets 5-3 before 2,937 fans Wednesday night to take a 3-2 lead in the best-of-seven series after dropping the first two games. The sixth game will be played here Friday night.

A second-period scoring barrage and Gilles Boisvert's excellent third-period goaltending were the highlights of Edmonton's win.

The Flyers scored four times in the first 14 minutes of the second period, breaking a 1-1 tie and building up a margin Spokane was unable to overcome.

Boisvert blocked 21 drives in the third period and 39 during the game.

Len Lunde, Bill McNeill, Warren Hynes, Ray Joyal and Don Pelle scored for Edmonton. Spokane scorers were Del Topoll, Max Meiklok and Dick Lamoureux.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO H. CARVER, Sports Editor

It won't be long now until the waterfront activities get under way and members of the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club and the Quinte Power Squadron will be in the initial throes of readying craft for the season's fun, frolic and racing.

Landlubbers wandering along the harbor front or where boats are getting their spring overhaul, will hear a strange language.

To the uninitiated, boats have galleys, not kitchens, and to get to them you go below, not downstairs. A knot equals a nautical mile, a bathroom is a head and heads have bows and sterns not front ends and back ends.

And don't ask a yachtsman what a certain rope is for aboard, a rope is hardly ever a rope. It is mostly a halyard, a lanyard or a line or a sheet, depending on how and for what used.

A yachtsman talking about a knockdown isn't talking fisticuffs. Wing-and-wing is not hockey, fore not a golf warning and freeboard nothing to do with athletic scholarships.

If the fresh-water sailor mentions bar, jigger, schooner and rhumb-line he is not an expert elbow bender. A bunt, drop, fly, pitch, or foul doesn't mean he's talking baseball.

And he is not talking Ottawa Rough Riders' Football squad if he uses block, cleat, fake, flat, tackle or score

Saddles, stuffs, sleepers, spurs, tracks, irons have nothing to do with horse racing if yachtsmen are talking shop.

And speaking of yachting the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club, which has been conducting sailing instructions for teen-agers for the past few years, will continue the good work this season.

Malcolm Gibson, of this city, will be the yachting instructor for the younger fellows, and oldsters too, if the desire it.

Dinghy class boats will be used and the course of instruction gets under way July 1st and continues through August. Instruction will be given daily and potential sailors can secure it daily or weekly.

Young fellows with a flair for sailing will find the course of instruction not only educational, but fun-filled with ultimate periods of responsibility.

The student learns the rudiments of sailing and as he progresses will be made a member of a crew. Later, if efficiency warrants he will be given "command" of a boat.

There will be the thrill of racing, too, not only in inter-squadron competition but with boats of outside clubs. Graduates of the Quinte Yaht Club have done exceedingly well in competition with student sailors of other clubs in previous years.

You young fellows, who have yachting ideas, are advised to get in touch with Mr. Gibson, or yacht club officials and get your names in early. There is a summer's fun ahead of you if you like a "wet sheet and a flowing sea."

And to you folks who like colored travelogues of the glamorous south seas as seen aboard a schooner, or in this case, a brigantine, don't miss the colored film, "The Trade Winds Call", being shown in the BCI auditorium this Saturday evening.

It is the amazing film record of Lieut.-Commander Jack Braidwood's 41,000-mile cruise and adventures in tropical regions, some of them rarely seen by camera or man. It is the only motion picture of its kind in the country.

It takes you to the Galapagos, Easter Island and Pitcairn, to other exotic places of blue waters, white sands and palm trees.

The film is being sponsored by the Yacht Club and the proceeds will go to the junior division for the purchase of new boats, equipment, etc., necessary to the successful operation of the above mentioned summer course of instruction.

Conley Pitches, Hits Bosox To Win

Five-Hitter Two-Run Homer

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Towering Gene Conley is holding Boston Red Sox to a quick start that could propel the 31-year-old righthander to his best season in major league baseball.

Conley won his second game in three decisions Wednesday, limiting Washington Senators to five hits and smashing a two-run homer to aid his own cause in a 7-1 Red Sox triumph that sent the Senators reeling with their seventh consecutive defeat.

Conleys previous best season was 12-7 in 1958 with Philadelphia Phillies. He was 11-14 with Boston Red Sox in his American League debut last year.

Cleveland Indians held first place despite a 6-2 loss to Los Angeles' Angels. New York Yankees edged Chicago White Sox 7-6, Minnesota Twins snapped Baltimore Orioles four-game winning streak with a 3-1 triumph and Kansas City Athletics outlasted Detroit Tigers 9-8.

The Red Sox struck for five runs in the fourth inning against Washington rookie Jim Hannan (0-1), getting three on Frank Malzone's homer and two on Conley's shot. Gene had Washington blanked on two hits for seven innings before singles by Bob Johnson and Ken Retzer and John Schalwe's double scored a run in the eighth.

The Angeles snapped the Indians' three - game winning streak with rookie righthander Bo Belinsky (3-0) hurling a four-hitter and allowing only one earned run.

Hector Lopez' two-run single with the bases loaded in the ninth inning capped a four-run rally that won for the Yankees and left Chisox in the cellar (4-6). The White Sox had built a 6-3 lead with a 10-hit attack that chased Whitey Ford as Jim Landis led the offensive with a homer, triple and double.

Jim Lemon's pinch-hit, two-run homer with two men out in the ninth inning beat the Orioles and Chuck Estrada (1-2).

The Athletics capitalized on five Tiger errors for seven unearned runs to gain their fifth win in six games.

Over 100,000 See Parade . . .

Toronto Acclaims Cup Champs

TORONTO (CP) — It looked like Red Square on May Day.

The crowd estimates ran from 50,000 to 150,000 as Toronto Maple Leafs, Stanley Cup champions, inched their way up Bay Street Wednesday in a storm of ticker tape.

"Beating Chicago wasn't as much trouble," shouted George Armstrong as he hoiked his way through the crowds around city hall.

He carried the Stanley Cup in his arms.

"The Black Hawks defence wasn't as tough as this," he shouted.

The parade honoring the first team to bring the cup to Toronto in 11 years began half an hour late at the foot of Bay Street. It was a lot later than that by the time the open cars inched through to city hall where civic welcome awaited.

CROWDS CHANT

The "go, Leafs, go" chant that rocked Maple Leaf Gardens during the hockey playoff resounded from the crowds packed 30 deep on each side of Bay Street.

Police cordons broke and every available officer in the city was sent to the scene to keep order.

Police, asked whether the crowd approached 100,000 said they believed it came closer to 150,000.

Tough Tim Horton was panting by the time he made the city hall.

"We had to get out of our convertible way down Bay Street and fight our way the rest of the route," he said.

"My arms and back ache."

SEVERAL COLLAPSE

A number of persons collapsed and were treated by first aid attendants. The temperature was close to 74.

Only the Band of the Queen's Own Rifles and the first few cars of the parade made it through the press before the crowd swallowed up the rest.

It took 20 minutes for Dick Duff, Bob Nevin, Dave Keon and Frank Mahovlich to fight their way through.

More than 50 crying children became separated from their parents and were taken into city hall by the police. There were so many that a room was set aside to keep them in. And two hours later there were still 20 of them there.

Judges adjourned court for about two hours when they were unable to operate in the din.

"You've had the greatest reception in Toronto's history," Mayor Nathan Phillips told the players.

Lose Overtime Thriller 6-5

Pepsi's Bow To Meaford

By GARRY ALEXANDER
(Staff Writer)

COLLINGWOOD — Facing a two-goal deficit with less than five minutes left in the game, the Meaford Chevies roared back to tie the score 5-5 here last night and went on to defeat the Belleville Pepsi's 6-5 on a breakaway goal at 2.37 of the third overtime period.

The defeat ousted the Pepsi's in the OHA intermediate "A" semi-final series, four games to three, and places Meaford in the provincial finals against the Port Colborne Sailors.

Last night's game, played before a packed arena and taking four and one half hours to complete, was one of the hardest-fought tilts in which the Bellevile sound has had to participate in this season.

The Chevies, led by brilliant goalkeeping by former pro Gordon "Red" Henry and the forward coaching baldror Charlie McDonald, simply did not know the meaning of the word "quit".

For all practical purposes, J. P. Lamirande's Pepsi's had the game wrapped up by a score of 5-3 until 16.37 of the third period.

Charlie McDonald stole the puck from a Pepsi in the Belleville corner and raced out by brother John McDonald who passed it home to make it 5-4.

Don "Turk" Barclay, who matched Henry save for save throughout pulled off a great stop a minute later but at 18.21 Hector Brainard fired into the crease where Ab Smith rammed it home for a tie game.

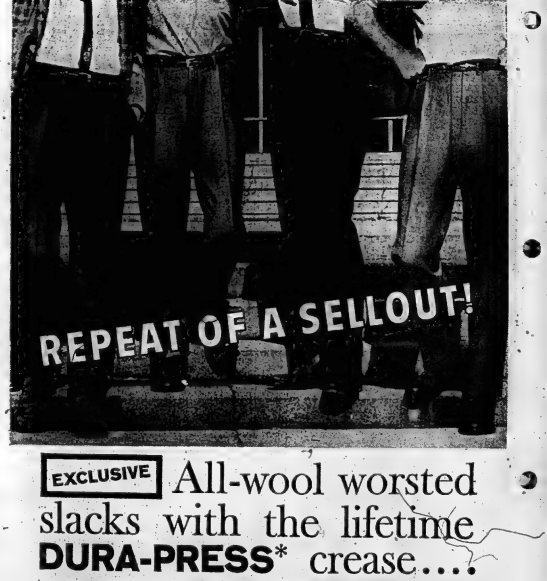
Play ranged from end to end with both clubs getting excellent chances only to be foiled by the outstanding goaltending and at times the bounce of the puck in the overtime.

The clubs played one ten-minute overtime heat and then through a 20-minute sudden-death stanza without a goal.

Belleville was pressing in the Meaford end of the rink when the big break came at 2.37 of the third overtime. Brainard got the disc as it bounced off a Belleville player and fired a clearing pass off the boards. Speedy Bobby Abbott raced away, rounded one Pepsi who did get back and snapped the rubber past Barclay to climax the tremendous duel. It was a great one to win and a heartbreaker for the locals.

Back in the first Charlie McDonald had scored the first of his two goals at the 1.21 mark but Belleville tied it when Eddie Marineau completed a three-way passing play with Brown and Jones by going in alone on Henry at 16.41. The Chevies had a man in the penalty box at the time.

Dave Jones skirted the defence and put Belleville ahead 2-1, Baker and Boily assisting, after only 46 seconds of the middle heat. Charlie McDonald tied it again with the Pepsi's a man short at 11.39. Wheeler was in the sin-bin for Meaford when "Shaker" Baker, who was injured at 6.50 of the third and did not get back in the game, slipped home a passout on a play with Brown and Jones.



Brainard knotted it 3-3 on Smith's assist at 6.40. Ron Hull passed to Cary Goyer and took his return pass at the goalmouth at 18.39 to give Belleville a 4-3 lead at the end of the second.

Goyer bagged one of his own, completing a three-one break in with Lamirande and Hull at 2.00 of the third to make it 5-3. Smith's assist at 5.00 of the final rally and the hockey season came to an official close in Belleville.

The game was fought tooth and nail throughout but it was clean all the way. Belleville had seven minor penalties, Meaford six minors and a misconduct. There was not a penalty called after the 9.17 mark of the third period.

Belleville: Barclay, Goegan, Boily, Crawford, Lamirande, Marineau, Goyer, Hull, MacDonald, Jones, Baker, Brown, O'Meara, Doran, Brown, Rowbotham.

Ice In Algonquin Lakes

Trout Ahoy Friday Midnight!

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

For a host of Ontario outdoorsmen, the first attack of spring fever will strike on the dot of midnight Friday night.

That's the opening of the trout season, the first big blaga of fishermen's year. Lakes and streams will be flailed to a froth in an invasion rivalled only by the opening of the big-game season May 12.

Prospects are for low and clear water in the south, which is fine for the fisherman who knows his business but tough on the duffer. In the north, there would be ice on the lakes.

A gradual spring run-off has left southern streams clean with water levels ranging from average to below-average, a Canadian Press survey shows. Clear water means spooky fish, placing a premium on light tackle and angling skill.

ICE LINGERS

Northern streams were running heavy but were expected on many lakes beyond the latitudes of Sandy Bay, location of Pickle Park.

It's a log-up for opening day in this district. High winds and a warm rain could clean the ice out in a hurry. In the event they don't, conservation officers were unanimous in their warning: Don't try to walk on it.

Chances are that, as usual, the biggest opening-day fish will be rainbows and some brown trout which are just coming into spring spawning in the tributary rivers of Lakes Huron, Erie and Ontario.

Rivers are running particularly low, however, on the north shore of Lake Ontario. Some experts feel this has restricted the movement of spawning rainbows in such hot spots as the Ganaraska River and Wilmot's Creek to the extent that fishing will be below par.

Optimism was the keynote in Brant county, where conservation officer Carl Liddle of Paris and president Clare Savage of the Brant Rod and Gun Club predicted good conditions. Aside from a smaller streams and ponds, Big Creek, which flows into Lake Erie, has produced some giant rainbows in spring and fall.

Conservation officer Harry Gingerich of Preston feels anglers in his area would do best to head for the rivers of Georgian Bay and Lake Huron where browns and rainbows are the big attraction. The Nottawasaga, Sydenham, Saugeen, Big Head and Beaver Rivers and Bothwell Creek are the best-known spots in this district.

In the central part of the province, the signs are good in the Lakes Simcoe and Couchiching districts and Peterborough. Ice is out and stream banks are firm and dry for easy traveling.

The season extends to Sept. 15 except for some designated Great Lakes tributaries where rainbows are open until Nov. 30 to give anglers a crack at the autumn upstream run.

Creel limits for rainbows and browns are five fish a day. For speckled trout it's one plus 10 weighing not more than 10 pounds except in Elgin, Middlesex and Norfolk counties, where it's one plus nine not weighing more than five pounds.

Larsen Back In Stride For Giants

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Don (Perfect Game) Larsen, who had the world on a string in 1956 but was all tied up in knots four years later, has successfully retraced his path and stepped in as a stopper for the pennant-hungry San Francisco Giants.

Making his third appearance of the season, the 32-year-old righthander came on in the sixth inning Wednesday night with Pittsburgh Pirates threatening, struck out the side and allowed only one run the rest of the way in the Giants' 5-3 victory over the National League leaders.

It gave the only pitcher ever to hurl a perfect game in world series history—he accomplished the feat for New York Yankees against Brooklyn Dodgers in 1956—a record of one save and two victories in four appearances.

Pitcher Ron Piche of Verdun, Que., made his first start of the 1962 campaign a sparkling one as he helped Milwaukee Braves to a 7-2 victory over Philadelphia Phillies. The 26-year-old righthander limited the Phils to four hits.

METS LOSE AGAIN

Chicago Cubs knocked off Los Angeles Dodgers 9-6, Cincinnati Reds beat New York Mets 7-1 and St. Louis Cardinals and Houston Colts played to a 5-5 tie in 17 innings. The game was halted by curfew and will have to be replayed, although all records go into the book.

Orlando Cepeda, who has been troubled with a groin injury, drove in four runs to pace the Giants, doubling home the first run in the fourth inning, then putting it out of reach in the sixth with a three - run homer.

The Cubs won with four runs in the eighth on relievers Larry Sherry (1-1), Ernie Banks tying a 64 year old record for most errors of the season and Andre Rodgers clinching it with a three-run homer. Rodgers wound up with five runs batted in.

Vada Pinson stroked a double and two singles, raising his RBI total to 22 with a pair against the Mets in support of Bob Purkey's four-hit pitching. Purkey (3-0) went the route for the first time this season.

The Cardinals forged the 5-5 tie in the ninth inning when Dan Boyer drove in the run that knotted it with a single off Dick Farrell.

The game was the longest extra-inning night battle, by time, ever played in the National League. It lasted five hours and 13 minutes before being called shortly after 2 a.m.

Local Firemen Given Busy Time With Fires

DESERONTO — Good Friday and Easter Saturday were two days that gave the local fire men a busy time. Fires that were started from rubbish and small portions of grass soon went out of control and in some cases caused damage. Damage and, in others only. Prompt work on the part of the firemen prevented considerable loss.

On Friday afternoon the department were called to the home of Miss Beery on Tyendinaga street where grass fire had reached his back yard and was threatening his home. Firemen controlled the fire from three sides and the fire was called to the York Road, where another grass fire had started an old barn burning and was threatening the property of Mr. Frank Brant. This was also controlled. As the department left the station they were called to the east end of Deseronto, where another grass fire was going. Soon after returning to the station the firemen were called to Gordon Zacharish for another fire.

On Saturday morning they were called to the home of Frank Brant on the York Road where a grass fire had started in the house and started the north wall of the house on fire. Later in the afternoon they extinguished a chimney fire at the home of Mrs. Beatrice Lawlor on Main St. E.

Statement Given in Jest Contained Kernel of Truth

By JOE DUFUR

PLAINFIELD, Vt. (CP)—"We want to live like Americans but we want to feel like Canadians," said the young executive of a U.S. subsidiary firm in Canada.

The remark was made during the third annual seminar on Canadian-American relations at Vermont's Goddard College, a 300-student institution that takes considerable interest in Canada.

It was delivered in best jest there were some among the 30 business executives attending from the two countries who felt it contained a kernel of truth.

C. M. (Bud) Drury, Montreal resit-a-car businessman and former Canadian deputy defence minister, said in a semi-bar lecture:

"Most of our people wish to enjoy the level of economic prosperity that is clearly visible across the border. But this is continuously pursued without a willingness to put forth the effort needed in the kind of country we have to achieve it."

The seminar, with its emphasis on management relations, was organized with the co-operation of the Canadian Association for Adult Education and the Canadian Citizenship Council.

"We have to think of businessmen as ambassadors who greatly affect the destiny of nations," said Goddard President Dr. Royce S. (Tim) Pitkin.

For two weeks businessmen studied, argued, listened and learned about how Canadians and Americans get along, or perhaps don't get along.

Press coverage was restricted, though not forbidden, to permit free-wheeling discussion among delegates safe in the knowledge they wouldn't be quoted by name.

Mrs. John Bolden, Goddard's executive associate and wife of Vermont's education commissioner, explained the reasons for anonymity in saying: "This seminar is a study situation where the participants are feeling their way toward a better understanding of the complexities of relationships between Canada and the United States."

FAMILY SQUABBLE

The basic irritant in what the seminar seemed to regard as a "family squabble was the "little brother" feeling most Canadians have about their relationship to the United States.

At the same time there was a tendency among participants to reject the notion that the United States takes Canada for granted.

Twenty guest speakers were invited to address the meetings that included a two-day flight to Ottawa, where the businessmen heard Francis A. Lacoville, economic counsellor at the U.S. embassy, say Canada's refusal to halt trade with Cuba had given Americans the impression "Canada was no longer part of the team."

Seminar delegates viewed this and other similar matters as mere pinpricks, however, and Linville conceded that Canadian - U.S. differences, while serious, were not mortal.

Robert A. Farquharson, former managing editor of the Toronto Globe and Mail and now minister-counsellor at the Canadian embassy in Washington, lined communications for stiffness in U.S.-Canadian relations.

He said the press has American and Canadian. The television segment of newspaper syndicates meant Canadians read the same Broadway gossip column, the same lowbrow column, the same reactionary hints as Florida readers.

But so-called anti-Americanism didn't exist "to anything like the extent to which it has been advertised."

Victor C. Wansbrough of Toronto, vice-president and managing director of the Canadian Metal Mining Association, said a "linguistic trap" awaits all those who engage in discussion of U.S.-Canadian relations.

"It quite often happens that we use a word or a phrase which for you (Americans) has one set of emotional associations and for us quite another."

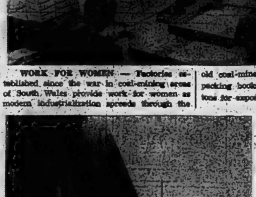
MISUNDERSTOOD WORD

He recalled a Washington meeting at which Canadians agreed to "table" a contentious report. Later the Canadians were astounded to learn the Americans were gleefully reporting that the Canadians had approved the report. The word "table" meant different things to each group.

During discussions, the seminar found little to indicate the U.S. had any interest in Canada except making a reasonable profit.

Robert Phillips, branch manager of Agricultural Chemicals Limited of Canada, a U.S. subsidiary, said having American resources "behind us is a great help in any plant firm wanted it to be "a good corporate citizen of Canada."

That was the word appeared to stress Canadian rather than American characteristics was deliberate.



"The reason," said Dr. Pitkin, "was that Canadians seem to know a great deal about the United States, but Americans as a whole know very little about Canada."

One New York executive, for example, was astonished to learn about Quebec separatists who advocate withdrawal from Confederation.

"My God, this thing is really serious isn't it?"

WORK FOR WOMEN — Factories established since the war in coal-mining areas of South Wales provide work for women as modern industrialization spreads through the old coal-mine economy. These women are packing bundles of cigaret papers into cartons for export. (CP from UKIO).

REMINDERS OF THE PAST — Hovels or cramped houses, reminders of days when men and boys worked 12 hours a day in coal pits of South Wales, still line the streets of this Rhondda Valley town north of Cardiff. Sheep seek to forage for food along the sidewalk. (CP from UKIO.)

Touch of Mountain Finery Returns to Grey-Black Hills And Vales of The Rhondda

By ROD CURRIE

CARDIFF, Wales (CP)—A touch of mountain greenery is returning to the grey-black hills and valleys of The Rhondda.

Even a few fish are venturing up the Rhondda Fawr stream from which they were driven long ago by the pollution of coal and iron.

But the scars of 150 years of industrialization are carved deep in The Rhondda, setting for Richard Llewellyn's How Green was My Valley, the poignant novel of poverty and pride. Today the coal industry was making its most disgusting cuts into the valleys of few miles north of here.

Reasons for the fresh new hope sweeping up the valleys are many.

STRIKE INDUSTRY

Where coal once was the main source of employment, now less than 35 per cent of the work force is dependent on it. Some of the great mounds of coal waste left behind by abandoned collieries are finally being levelled and made into playing fields.

But the main factor in the change is the emphasis on manufacturing instead of coal mining.

In parts of The Rhondda new factories are springing up in the shadow of derelict old collieries. Fearsome slow monuments to the past where men and boys weighed in the pits 12 hours a day for £2 a month.

Hard by are the drab miners' cottages to which the men once wended their weary way home, after they'd only by their DAVY lamps, and where women waited, aprons outstretched to collect the week's wages.

FEW OPEN SPACES

The houses—miles of them—joined end to end along the main streets—are still there and almost pathetic attempts have been made to take the gloom off them with bright-painted window frames and doors. The lay of the land is such that there are few open spaces in the steep, narrow valleys to build. Rehousing would involve tearing down the rows of slow houses and building on the same land—but The Rhondda is not yet prosperous enough for that.

Now the women of the valleys are to some extent aboard of the old coal-mine economy—in clothing making — everything from music strings to zippers.

So far, the new industrialization has not penetrated the valleys that run to the British Board of Trade—a government department—would like.

The Rhondda valleys run north and south, travel and movement of materials in east-west directions is next to impossible. This and the traditional Welsh love of community has kept many people high in the north end of the valleys. Now they are slowly seeking to bring the industry to them, and in some cases has been

Closed Session Likely To Hear Former Officer

Robert Wright on Bail Pending Court Ruling

TORONTO (CP) — Arrival of former Provincial Police Constable Robert Wright on the scene just as Ontario's royal commission on crime was adjourning Thursday prompted speculation he will testify before a closed session of the hearing today.

Wright, a former member of the OPP anti-gambling squad, was convicted last month with gamblers Joseph McDermott and Vincent Feeley of conspiracy to obtain information illegally from a police officer. All three are on bail pending decision by the Ontario Court of Appeal on an application for appeal.

Commissioner Mr. Justice W. D. Roach adjourned public hearings until Monday, but commission counsel Roland Wilson said the crime of a private session will be held this afternoon.

Similar private sessions, which preclude identification of the witnesses, were held April 16 and 17.

Meanwhile, Mr. Wilson was to appear before the Ontario Court of Appeal today to argue a motion by lawyer Wallon Rose to free a stay of proceedings by Mr. Justice Roach.

HAS REJECTED

The commissioner has rejected the lawyers request to cross-examine, call witnesses on the case and make a ruling by such a source. The decision to appeal was made by Mr. Justice Merritt Roach.

Mr. Rose, who has been allowed to act as counsel for McDermott, Feeley and a "Mr. X" who testified at the earlier private hearings, said Thursday night he is also representing Wright.

Thursday session was taken up almost entirely by cross-examination of another frequent counsel for the gamblers, David C. Hess, Q.C., Toronto. Mr. Humphrey is expected to return to the stand Monday.

The lawyers testimony described the mystery surrounding a telephone message which told the OPP how to raid a club run by gambler Joseph Sorbara and McDermott-Feeley operation in Fort Erie.

Police Chief Allan Stringer, head of the OPP Peterborough area, described a meeting of men including himself as Humphrey Shepherd in which Shepherd, fired from Toronto in 1958, that he subsequently received it in the mail and that he took it to the OPP anti-gambling squad in Toronto.

HAS NO LINK

But Mr. Humphrey told the inquiry Thursday that he had no connection with the brief. He said he suspected the document was prepared by Wright, although McDermott had never admitted the authorship.

The brief is a how-to-do-it

MACHINE VOTE HUNT BEGINS IN ELECTION DRIVE

Campaign Will Be Costliest on Record

OTTAWA (CP)—The mechanized vote hunt has begun.

Machines are cranking out pamphlets and booklets. The poster piles are growing. Thousands of TV and radio time-buying appeals are in the making.

An atmosphere of crisis is common to all four national party headquarters where pioneer rig continuously and people half-gallop from office to office.

With seven full weeks to go before the June 18 federal general election, some of the products of this hectic industry are being kept as secret as a federal budget.

But this much is apparent so far:

It will be the costliest and one of the slickest election campaigns in Canadian history. Few of the country's estimated 9,800,000 voters will escape it.

ESTIMATES VARY

As Canada Press survey of party campaigns revealed a consensus that political expenditures will be higher than ever before, although cost estimates range widely.

The progressive Conservative party outlays vary from $6,000,000 to $8,000,000. The latter figure already published. A top party official called the higher figure ridiculous.

A liberal party officer would not go into specifics beyond the same word — "ridiculous" — to published estimates that his party would spend about $6,000,000.

A top New Democratic Party campaign officer just smiled at suggestions that NDP costs will run to $2,000,000. But a Social Credit official said his party could spend $1,500,000 on advertising and promotion.

Behind this is a delicate subject. The behind-the-scenes men prefer to offer a cost range in the area of several conscientiousness—$5,000 to $20,000 for organizers and liberties—from $1,500 to $10,000 for the NDP and Social Credit.

The Conservatives haven't include the estimated record of $10,700,000 in public funds spent on the election machinery itself—such as the enumeration that begins officially May 1—$6,000 workers are ringing doorbells.

CBC BROADCASTS FREE

Television campaigning—free and paid — will be far greater than in the 1957 and 1958 elections. Four party leaders' speeches will be broadcast free. Two more will be considered.

The free television time is in the early evening, ending

Use U.S. Rockets to Send Aloft British and Japanese Instruments

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The successful launchings of a British-U.S. satellite and an American - Japanese probe have given rise to hopes the United States and Britain will eventually combine their great resources.

A U.S. Thor Delta rocket Thursday hoisted a packet of British instruments into orbit to act as the world's first international satellite. Its purpose is to study the ionosphere, source of sonic radio. Earlier, at Bishop Rock, Calif., a Thor-Able-Nike - Cajun sounding rocket boosted a small bundle of Japanese instruments on a 1,500-mile-high trip to take readings in the upper atmosphere.

Both launchings occurred during a day of crowded space activity. Besides the international

1. The U.S. Ranger 4 spacecraft crash-landed on the dark side of the moon after a 65-hour 231,486 mile journey that started Monday at exactly 12 noon. Although Ranger 4 failed to carry out a number of scientific experiments because of a faulty electronic device, officials said it demonstrated the U.S. has the guidance capability to send a vehicle to the moon.

2. Space scientists, disclosed plans to send a similar rocket toward Venus this summer. It's called Mariner and will be boosted by the Atlas-Agena B combination that aimed Ranger.

The Russians announced the launching of their fourth Cosmos satellite in six weeks. The Russians said the vehicle, Cosmos 4, carried radiation-measuring instruments which gear. There was some speculation that the Soviet and Russian satellites have been sent up to gather data on U.S. series of high-altitude A-bomb tests.

4. Two secret satellites were launched from the air force's Point Arguello, Calif. One employed a Blue Scout booster, the other a Thor-Agena B, which has been used primarily for Midas and Samos spy satellites. Sources at Cape Canaveral, where Blue Scouts also are launched, said the Blue Scout failed to place its payload in orbit and the defense department recently decided to withhold all information on military space launchings.

5. It was learned that at a session today of the International Association of Geodesy in Washington, some further details are to be made public on the proposed Anna satellite that would experiment the use of a flashing light for visually observing earth satellites.

Leaders Fill Campaign Sails With Trade Talks

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The leaders of Canada's political parties filled their campaign sails with trade winds Thursday and promptly sailed off in different directions. They fired off torpedoes as they went.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker was in Moose Jaw, Sask., talking on trade with Red China. He accused the Liberals of having "united, jeered and criticized" over the big wheat sales to Red China.

Liberal Leader Pearson was in Corner Brook, Nfld., talking about trade with Britain and the European Common Market. He accused the Conservative government of "whining on the sidelines" while British bids were being made.

In Mr. Diefenbaker's first political speech since he left Ottawa Wednesday on the "whistle" hunt through Western Canada, he laid down a statistics-studded review of the government's farm policy and said the wheat sales to China were due to the government's "dynamic, wheat sales program."

The sales had brought "new optimism in the west."

That's not the way Leader T. C. Douglas of the New Democratic Party saw things. "The farmer is going broke," he told an audience in Wakaw, Sask. The farmer, he said, is tired "off his capital and depreciation, he is not replacing his equipment, buildings or stock."

Meanwhile, Robert Thompson, leader of the Social Credit party was getting his campaign airborne in Quebec where party spokesmen say, much of the heavy artillery will be concentrated. Mr. Thompson kicked off the campaign in Montmagny.

Mr. Diefenbaker told 1,700 people in the Moose Jaw Arena that net income for the average farm was up more than 20 per cent under the Conservative government.

Mr. Douglas said that farm production costs rose 24 per cent through 1961 to 1961 but the price of goods the farmer produced dropped 20 per cent.

Mr. Pearson on the government has been "negative and sterile" over its approach to the Common Market.

It was a busy day for the leaders as they got up a full head of steam for the seven-week run to the vote. And other party members were out giving them full support.

President Michael Oliver of the NDP carried his party's cries into Halifax—where unemployment is higher than the Canadian average—and promised that the party, if elected, will provide jobs for all who can and want to work. Furthermore, he said, the party will launch a three-point program to help the economic boatering of the Atlantic provinces.

Mr. Douglas told his audience in Wakaw all about the party's agriculture program, set up last fall at the NDP founding convention. "Next to fishermen—I think they are the most exploited farmers are the most exploited group in our economy."

Mr. Douglas had a hard and spent much of the day travelling west from Wakaw. His plane was stopped Wednesday for a non-

U.S. and Bethlehem Steel Charged With Price Fixing

NEW YORK (AP)—A federal grand jury has indicted the United States Steel Corporation and the Bethlehem Steel Company on charges of violating the anti-trust laws by conspiring to fix prices and rig bids.

The president of U.S. Steel and seven executives of the two smaller companies appealed to the public not to pre-judge the case.

The indictment made public today by the district attorney's office named seven executives, five companies, five company executives and a trade association.

The stock market reacted quickly to the indictment Thursday. United States Steel and Bethlehem—the two largest U.S. steel producers—led the steel issues and other stocks on the market lower.

Government officials said the indictment had no connection with the steel industry controversy that started earlier this month when U.S. Steel and some other producers announced a price increase of $6 a ton. The increase, denounced by President Kennedy, was rescinded.

The alleged conspiracy concerned the sale of forged steel to the army and the navy, electric utility companies and others.

The sales involved were estimated at $40,000,000 annually.

Leslie Worthington, president of U.S. Steel, issued a statement that said in part:

"We intend to contest in the courts the charges contained in this indictment and we ask that the public withhold judgment until the case has been decided in court."

A Bethlehem spokesman said in a statement that the company "has long had a policy of strict compliance with all laws applicable to its operations, and we would be greatly concerned if any Bethlehem employees had been violating the law."

In addition to the big two of the industry, the companies in-

Be Firm, Never Provoke And Win Better Peace In Generation Or Two

U.S. Nuclear Tests 'Tragedy' But Responsibility Khrushchev's

NEW YORK (CP) — Prime Minister Harold Macmillan Thursday urged the West to be firm but patient; never to yield and never to give ground, but never to take provocative action ourselves."

He told leading publishers in a speech here that he believes that if the free world follows this policy the Russians — in "maybe one, maybe two generations, maybe more"—will be ready for a better peace than one "preserved by mutual fear."

Calling President Kennedy's decision to resume nuclear tests in the atmosphere "a tragedy," he said: "The world must realize the responsibility for the tragedy is not Kennedy's. It is Khrushchev's."

The test resumption is tragic because "it means the nuclear race will go again in full speate."

Britain and the United States "maintained a voluntary moratorium of three years, which was broken by Russia's explosions last autumn," Macmillan said.

But Macmillan urged continuation of efforts to end nuclear testing in the hope it will be able to the "dignity of civilized men."

"We must not abandon our efforts in this or any other sphere merely as an end that the possibility of some agreement between East and West by mutual advantage and to that of the whole world."

LOOKS INTO FUTURE

The British Conservative party leader discussed the prospects of the world and looked into the future in addressing 1,800 persons at the annual dinner of the Bureau of Advertising of the American Newspaper Publishers Association.

Macmillan goes to Washington today for formal discussions with Kennedy Saturday.

Kennedy, on Thursday's launching of a Thor - "Delta" rocket from Cape Canaveral, said:

"You may have heard of the Americans launch this afternoon at Cape Canaveral of the first British satellite, to be known as Aerial." This satellite was a launched by the American Navy, assisted in collaboration with the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

"This joint enterprise reflects great credit on the British and American scientists and technicians concerned. It provides a fine start to the United States program of international co-operation in space."

Macmillan noted that today "a wind of peace is preserved by mutual fear." He added, by intention. "Next to fishermen—I think they are the most exploited farmers are the most exploited group in our economy."

Former Butler Says Liz Likes Chile, Beer, Sheer Nightgowns

NEW YORK (AP) — A Secret Service agent who was a friend of Elizabeth Taylor and Eddie Fisher says Liz likes chile, beer, and sheer nightgowns.

Sometimes she likes a pipe. Sometimes she doesn't like her husband's singing.

That's the behind-the-scenes word that Lenore Fee, who was employed by the Fishers before the couple were separated.

The Italian butler, writing in the current issue of Confidential magazine, says he worked for the Fishers for seven months in a $2,000,000 Beverly Hills 10 miles from Rome.

Fee says of his former mistress:

Liz's favorite meal is chili with beans, covered with raw chopped onions and washed down with two or three bottles of German beer.

"In the course of my duties, I served Liz Fisher scrumptious meals on occasional pipe, eating with fingers but relishing and enjoying happily around the house in sheer blue, grey and black nightgowns."

Fee says the Fishers, without drinking very much themselves and seldom holding any large or formal luncheons or dinners in the villa, spent an average of $450 a week on liquor. One week the bill hit the $700 mark.

One reason for the high liquor bill, Fee suggests, was that Miss Taylor took only to vodka and a case of tonic water to the studio every day. To gather this was for distribution at the studio," he says. Several times while working for the Fishers, Fee said, he noticed that Fisher's singing or playing of his own records "got on her nerves."

Fee says were lunching alone and, without a moment's warning, Eddie burst into song at full strength," Fee says, adding:

"Liz took it for a couple of minutes. Then she couldn't stand it any longer.

"Oh really, Eddie, do shut up," she said."

On the rare occasion, he says, the Taylors and some others, including Fisher's mother, were spending an evening together when "suddenly Eddie would start playing his own singing."

He told Miss Taylor shouted "shut up, we can't talk."

Eddie left the room and went into a small den where he turned on the phonograph full blast. It was a recording of one of his own songs, Fee writes.

Burton, who is Miss Taylors leading man in her latest film, has been linked romantically with the star.

Mr. Duffy said he was not using the taxi to pick up a fare, but was driving it from a service station on Front Street back to the office, after it had been serviced.

Queen Appeals To Press for Son's Privacy

LONDON (AP) — The Queen and Prince Philip appeared today to the British press to allow their son, Prince Charles, a normal life when he goes to boarding school next Tuesday.

The plea, made by the Queen's press secretary, Cmdr. Richard Colville, said:

"The added strain and burden of publicity upon a young boy of the Prince of Wales' age in joining a public school for the first time, would prove to be undesirood by all parents.

"For this reason, Her Majesty and His Royal Highness hope that editors personally will be able to co - operate in that additional photographers and reporters are not present."

The palace appeal said:

"The Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh, appreciating that there will be interest in this event (Charles' arrival at school), have instructed that arrange a special rota party for photography and filming to cover the arrival at the school."

Mr. Pearson, meanwhile had bopped over to Stephenville, Nfld., from Charlottetown and he spent the day, accompanied by Premier Joseph Smallwood, travelling up the back of Newfoundland. It was a busy handshaking day for him.

He got some help from Mr. Diefenbaker.

Mr. Diefenbaker, said the Newfoundland premier, had never held an elected position "seven constitute or dogcatcher" — before his 1957 election triumph.

He went on to say—"oh, he was a stunning Mr. whole world with his speeches. Why he had Mr. Khrushchev there to get the United Nations shaking in his shoes. Meanwhile, in Calgary Defence Minister Harkness revealed the Liberals of telling the Canadian people the state of the Canadian economy. Liberal leaders, he said, were making wild determinations and unfounded claims because they were hungering for power. The government had made good economic progress since 1957, he said.

In the Toronto riding of Spadina, the Liberal candidate said —without mentioning his opponent by name—that John Bassett should have surrendered his newspaper and television interests before running for parliament.

Mr. Bassett, Progressive Conservative candidate, is publisher of The Telegram and chairman and president of CFTO-TV.

Liberal Candidate S. Perry Bickell said that a man's efficiency will have to decide this question. . . . Should a man run for office who has so many private interests that may conflict potentially or conflict with the public interest."

Mr. Bassett described Mr. Ryan's statement as "a lot of nonsense."

KINGSTON (CP) — A driver who died in a crash March 14 that also killed two other persons was held responsible Thursday for the accident.

The other victims were Tatjana Verovka, 22, and Andrea Ann Hearns, 17, both of Kingston.

There were three others in the car: Howard Joy, a brother of the driver; Shirley Ann Baxter, of Napanee, and Kay Jackson. They were not injured.

Picton District Men Awarded Hero Medals

Acting C. York, Picton, and Bernard M. Keogh, Black Creek, are to be decorated Wednesday by the Carnegie Hero Fund Commission, Pittsburgh, Pa. Both will receive bronze medals and $500 each for rescue operations in Consecon Creek during the floods of three fishermen near Black Creek, May 31, 1961.

No word has been received of when the awards will be presented.

Albert J. Grigsby, 39, of Ohio, died but three others were saved due to the prompt action, at risk of their own lives by York and Keogh.

The four men were exposed to the icy water and cold winds for two hours before the two young men came to their aid.

Surviving the ordeal were Carl B. Baldeserre, 45 of South Bucksi, Ohio, Ray Busby of Ashtebula, Ohio, and Paul Rutenik, 36, of Vermillion Ohio, were guests during the weekend at Grigsby's cottage at Black Creek.

BOAT UPSETS

Rutenik and Baldeserre had set out in their boat about 4 p.m. and Grigsby and Busby and hour later. As the Rutenik boat was approaching the South Bay waters, they came upon the other craft at the mouth of the bay. It had overturned and Grigsby and Busby were clinging to it. They managed to pull Busby into their boat but while pulling Grigsby in, the boat overturned and all four were thrown into the icy water. Grigsby, in most overcome, was placed across the bottom of the boat and the others clung to the drifting boat. They were too far a distance to swim to shore and also too weak.

SEEN BY CHANCE

York was visiting his father, Stewart York, on the Black Creek and by chance looked out of a window at 5 p.m. and saw something floating in the Bay.

He told Keogh they secured a boat and when an overturned boat was spotted. Reaching the boat they secured a hook boat and when an overturned boat was spotted. Reaching the boat they secured a hook boat and when an overturned boat was spotted. Reaching the boat they secured a hook

New Yardstick Needed

The Board of Broadcast Governors has had to decide how the free time the CBC will provide for election broadcasts shall be divided between the different parties.

In previous elections the time had been divided roughly on the basis of the number of seats the parties held in the Commons. Had this formula been followed this year, Social Credit would not have shared in the broadcasts. To their credit, the other parties decided that this would not be fair. Social Credit is still a political force—it forms the provincial governments in Alberta and British Columbia. The parties could not, however, agree precisely as to how the available time was to be divided and so the BBG stepped in and gave its ruling.

The BBG has previous method of dividing time in accordance with the number of seats held has been demonstrated. What is needed is another yardstick which will automatically do the job without the BBG having to intervene. Some may argue that all parties should be given equal time, as only in this way will they all have an equal chance of electing candidates. The difficulty with this suggestion is two-fold. In practice, the main objection may be that this would give the communists an unprecedented opportunity to air their views. Theoretically, though, the unanswerable objection is that this could easily result in the same time being divided amongst so many different splinter parties that the public would be denied the opportunity of being fully informed about the policies of the parties which had a real chance of electing members.

The only solution would be to divide the free time amongst the parties in proportion to the percentage of the total vote they received at the last election. A minimum share of the votes might be required to qualify for free time. This should be low—say five per cent of the total nationwide vote or 20 per cent of the vote in any one province—this to provide fair treatment for parties of considerable strength regionally. The net result might well be to give smaller parties a greater share of the time than would be the case if the division were made in proportion to the number of seats won—but they would be an advantage rather than otherwise. It is the beauty of our election system that the winning party's margin in seats won almost always exceeds its margin of victory taken as a percentage of the total vote. This assures stable government. But there is no valid reason why the system should be extended to favor the status quo at election time—as the BBG has recognized for it has awarded the Progressive Conservatives just over a third of the total time, while the PCs held 77 per cent of the seats in the Commons.

Some Control Needed

The large number of grass fires which have occurred within this city since Good Friday has been alarming. By Wednesday morning almost 80 such fires required the attention of the services, men and equipment of the Fire Department and five more fires were in progress.

The situation calls for some action on the part of city council to establish some regulation of grass fires. Whilst valuable equipment and highly paid men are engaged in extinguishing the flames of a careless and thoughtless person's folly a serious fire could be breaking out and doing considerable damage to either property or persons or both.

The time which it would take for the equipment in use to be shut down, packed up and removed to the scene of the more serious fire could be just enough time for the latter to get out of control.

There should be no need for such a situation to occur. The only way to guard against such an occurrence would be for council to make it illegal to set grassfires within the city limits except where a permit has been applied for and a person has assumed the responsibility for keeping such fire under control at all times and for meeting the costs of any damage which might result from his failing to do so. A substantial fine for violation of such a by-law should be provided to give the legislation some "teeth."

Patient endurance of sufferings, bold resistance of power, forgiveness of injuries, hardtried and faithful friendship, and well-exciting love, are seen in beautiful relief over the flat uniformity of life, or stand out in steady and bright grandeur in the midst of the dark deeds of men.—Richard Henry Dana.

If music is the international language of the heart, the concept of justice is the international currency of the mind.—Leslie Hale, British M.P.

Homosexuality Is Often Father's Fault

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Beginning with Philip Wylie's intemperate attack on "Momism" more than a dozen years ago, the American mother has taken a tremendous beating from some of our more hysterical social commentators.

She has been stitched, excoriated and blamed for the weakening of our moral fibre, the lowering of our physical standards, the decline in our intellectual prowess.

She has also — most unfairly — been castigated for the truly amazing rise of homosexuality in our life. Her seductive, protective and anxiety-ridden ways with her sons, the critics insist, have produced a staggering increase of sexual deviates.

It is more likely, however, that we have overestimated the influence of the mother upon her son, and have neglected the importance of the father. Indeed, a new cautious, objective medical survey of the problem of homosexuality tends to confirm the significance of the father in relation to this tragic problem.

Recently published, these findings by an eminent panel of medical researchers, who spent many years studying the backgrounds of hundreds of homosexuals, indicate that the "hostile-withdrawn" father — the villain of the piece, if villain there must be.

Nearly all the homosexuals interviewed reported that their fathers had shown little real interest in them as small children, had been cold and distant, punitive, or else detached and passive around the home. Many grew up scarcely knowing their fathers at all, except as shadowy figures who left home each morning and returned late at night.

With such a lack of a father-figure, the researchers agree, the mother-image becomes too dominant, and the boy identifies with her either from fear of his father or from the father's lack of response to the child's emotional needs.

Too many fathers, unfortunately, are not interested in little children: they warm up to their sons only when the boys are old enough to play baseball or fishing. But by then the boys have already been set on a course it is in the early formative years, beginning with infancy, that a child develops attention from the parents of its own sex.

No father can be a "pal" to his son of the man has not been understanding and sympathetic when the boy was two; rapport grows from rapport, and it does not suddenly happen. And bad father-son relationships seem more the rule than the exception in our society. Blaming the mothers for "domineering" their sons is citing a symptom, not giving a cause.

STRENGTH for the DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

ONE THING ONLY

St. Paul in writing to the Philippians declared: "I count not myself yet to have attained, but this one thing I do . . . I forget the things that are behind. He reaches forward to the things which before. He presses toward the mark for the prize for the high calling of God in Christ Jesus.

Life's greatest successes are made by those who say "this one thing I do." Thomas A. Edison did just one thing, or rather worked in just one area of life. The whole energy of his inventive genius was turned into the definite channel of investigating electricity and utilizing it. Other inventions bear his name, but the electrical inventions constitute the one thing into which he poured most of his life's energy.

Lincoln, Lee, Carnegie, Ford . . . have men to reckon with in the nineteenth century. They were men of one object. They all failed to forget a lot of things which past generations had assumed to be true. They all had to rid themselves of encumberances. They kept their eyes upon a definite light in the future. They pressed on toward a mark.

That young person is well advised who decides to make himself or herself a specialist of some variety. success in this line may not bring you great fame, but as Emerson pointed out even if it is only the making of a better mousetrap the world will make a path to your door.

"One thing I do . . . I press toward the mark for the prize."

Too Durable To Be Edible

Washington Post

The Federal Agriculture Department in Canada has announced that its research station at Harrow, Ont., has developed a hybrid watermelon with "almost no seed cavity" plus "edge walls" that never leaves us eternally hopeful but skeptical.

For years now we have seen melons, fruit, and tomatoes improve in shipping quality at the deplorable cost of edibility. The plant breeders have achieved almost perfection in making them durable. Tomatoes tough and resilient enough to play tennis with, canteloupes hard and rubbery, more suitable for the bowling alley than the table, peaches that will ship to Anarctica without a dent, and we shall soon be seeing again.

Cannot the plant breeders think, just a little, of the poor consumer of their durable products?

Let them figure out a way to make a luscious melon shipshape.

We worry about the Canadian muskmelon without any seed cavity. What's inside a solid, bouncy ball with the flavor of plaster?

Please, let us have fruits and vegetables flavorsome and tasteful, even if it must be nestled in straw for shipping.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE JOY OF LIFE

If we hunt for joy we are not very apt to find it. Hunted things hide their glory and beauty all too soon after finding.

The lasting joy is that which comes spontaneously after devoting ourselves to someone else.

The joy in work comes from the work itself, not in the final outcome of work, I often think of a man climbing a hill, that the road should be a part of the destination.

Joy must be felt as it garnishates. It doesn't come, full born, out of a clear sky. Joy must always be earned. In the same way that happiness must be earned.

The joy of life comes about in a number of ways. One way is to be glad for all we have.

Many times after the day is done and I lie for a few minutes before the heaviness of sleep bears me into unconsciousness, I think over the work of the day and measure the gains and losses. But just the minute I think of those things that have not gone right quickly to those blessings which I have or may have. Gratitude weigh those that are not mine!

If you have health you have what many men have prayed for earth have not. If you have love you are blessed. If you have what the richest could not buy in any price.

Too many of us think of life as a problem. Life is not a problem. It's a task, a life journey, a divine advantage — as it stand.

Garcia delivered his message without asking any question as to why he should deliver it.

I cannot say why so much of life is a disappointment. I can only say that much of it isn't a disappointment at all!

Says Nothing In Fine Style

Kennebec Journal

A well advertised and rather distinguished visitor gave a public address in this city some weeks ago. Several university undergraduates were present—at least one of them prepared to take notes.

One student, pad ready and pencil poised, waited through some preliminary jokes, a little discussion about the airplane trip and some further travelogue. Then the speech began. The college lad waited, then quietly placed his book back on it's shelf. The student was quite right. The speaker had nothing to say. But he did say it well.

This is one of the most distressing features of modern life, when so much emphasis on the techniques of communications. Too many persons who have nothing to say, say it well. And too many who cannot have plenty to say don't know how to say it. What is worse, some of the smooth and articulate are believed and listened to by millions and many are misled by their very small ideas. And the thinkers among us often hide away in their studies, where they belong to master the art of communication or expose their thoughts to the world.

Come right down to it, we should be more critical of those scholars among us who will not bother to be heard, than of the orators who have been heard. What of those who have been endowed with wisdom and knowledge but without communicable knowledge? The Bible, of course, says stern things about hiding one's light under a bushel and burying talents in a field. Not to the other extreme, however, at passing on things that don't matter, the intellectual barbarism who clothes that clothing and trivia in handsome packages, they do have their temporary reward. But these are tragic, too, full of personality and Madison Avenue ratings signify nothing. Happy the people who, like the Chicago politicians, can't be bought and higher platitudes of success.

New Threat To Vintners

New York Herald Tribune

It often wonder what the vintners who grow the "delicious as the goods they sell," from grapes to wine, centuries ages ago, in tones that express mankind's respect for an ancient and noble craft.

Nowadays the art of winemaking, like so many other occupations, faces hazards and problems undreamed of even a few years ago. This year, for instance, the grapevines in Sonoma, in the famed Burgundy, region of a scale boom from a passing jet have produced a crop of delectable wines crashing to the stone floor of a cellar where they had been stored to mature. Obviously this was a possibility not considered by the designers of the wine-cellar when they were building their cool, dark and cobwebby storage chambers. But however considered, we are sure, by the pilot of the jet plane, as he sent the bottles hurtling earthward. Killing a bottle of wine can be a personal occupation, but this, surely, is not the way to do it.

In any case, we hope the pilot has been sufficiently admonished either by his superiors or his own conscience, so that there will be no recurrence. Friends are best among the world's pioneers in the development of aviation, and we, she has led in the art of the wine.

Should she ever be forced to decide between the two, she will know how to choose.

Placenta Previa Common Hazard During Pregnancy

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Please explain a "placenta previa." If labor begins, can this be fatal to mother or child? — M.O.

Normally during pregnancy the placenta develops high on the wall of the uterus, or womb. The placenta, of course, is that "feeding" tissue through which the fetus, or baby-in-formation, receives its nourishment from the mother.

The mother's blood stream carries rich blood to the placenta, where it is transferred to the umbilical cord, which in turn carries fresh, nourishing blood to the fetus, and on the return trip carries waste matter to be excreted through the mother's kidneys.

Nature's evident purpose in placing the placenta high is to keep it safe and out of the way. However, as the baby grows and it's about one to 500 births the placenta becomes attached at a much lower point, and is in danger of covering the canal through which the baby should normally be born.

In that location, the placenta may be damaged when labor pains loose. The result: Bleeding. The danger to the baby is from loss of blood; to the baby, it is the risks that go with being prematurely born.

The principal and indeed usual, but only sign of this incorrect location of the placenta — and that's what placenta previa is — is bleeding. Sometimes it is slight; sometimes it is sudden and heavy. Either way, this is one of the very important reasons why any bleeding in pregnancy should be reported to the doctor at once.

Placenta previa is so rare it makes itself apparent in the last two or three months of pregnancy.

Prompt obstetrical care is mandatory. Otherwise the danger is extreme. However, with immediate skilled care, mothers usually recover, and the baby's health, and so, often, do the babies, but it is frequently more dangerous to the child, depending upon the degree of prematurity. A caesarean section is usually the method of birth.) In any case, it is a serious complication.

Placenta previa is rare in first pregnancies. It is more, much more, liable to occur (although we do not know why) in women who have had several children in close succession.

A frequent question is whether placenta previa means that the mother is likely to encounter the same trouble at her next birth. It does not often happen. Fortunately!

Dear Dr. Molner: My father and I, and a family of five, develop "cold sores" every few weeks. The rest of the family never have them. Can you suggest anything we could do? — Mrs. J.

Cold sores are usually a virus infection which more commonly attacks certain individuals who happen to be susceptible. Curiously enough, vaccination or pox vaccination very often puts an end to this trouble. (If you read about the recent small pox outbreak in Europe, you know that it pays to keep your smallpox inoculations up to date.)

Dear Dr. Molner: What is the difference between a peptic ulcer and a duodenal ulcer? — Mrs. M.M.

Then a "peptic ulcer" is one in the upper digestive tract in which pepsin and other digestive juices are present. This means, briefly, either in the stomach or in the duodenum, which is the area directly below the stomach. Duodenal ulcers are far more common, and likewise somewhat less dangerous; they are peptic ulcers.

Cholesterol Rehabilitated

Chicago News

In keeping with the general progress, five times as many individuals have an appendix today as did a decade ago. Our authority is Dr. Donald Collins, who read his findings to a convention of surgeons here.

Appendicitis is as serious as it ever was, and the new score is attributable to better diagnosis, Dr. Collins explained, that scores of other symptoms are known to the surgeon prone into needless operations. Even antibiotics have decreased the peril of waiting for correct diagnosis.

This method of reducing the number of dangerous operations is ease—that is, by not mistaking other things for it—should be observed population. There is hope in other fields. For instance, Dr. Ralph Kunstadt, director of the National Heart Institute, has compiled a statistical analysis of the progression of that great bugaboo and artery-clogger, cholesterol. As reported by Science Digest (a splendid periodical, it goes):

1946: Cholesterol is a good guy.

1947: Cholesterol is found to be associated with arteriosclerosis.

1950: Cholesterol is killing you.

1954: Cholesterol is killing you — but it helps.

1958: Cholesterol, stress and lack of exercise are killing you.

1960: Cholesterol is not even helping other things kill you—much.

1962: Cholesterol is a good guy.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Every time I hear Bedrich Smetana's "The Moldau" from his symphonic poem, "My Country", I wonder what must have been the feelings of the Czech audience when it was first played in the first time. The same with Sibelius's "Finlandia." The first time, did the Finnish audience rise up and yell for joy?

Smetana died exactly 100 years ago, in 1884; and Finlandia only have been written when Sibelius was in Paris or Switzerland. The musicologists may tell us that up to the first performance of these compositions, the critics stank up Helsinki and the symphony level was available to a very limited public indeed, except in Paris. Only cities had halls or orchestras. And in the cities, only a section of the intelligentsia was interested. Concert halls were only so big. Their audiences were limited. The public of great music. But it was radio that showered it far and wide, all the world. And suddenly the phonograph was invented. Great Beethoven could men like me, in city and town and village, and sway off the rails, can thrill, and wonder why our own country cannot have a Smetana like the Moldau, or Finlandia to make it stand up, breathing deep, with tears in our eyes.

Diefenbaker Calls Liberals Same Old Bunch

By ALAN DONNELLY

MOOSE JAW, Sask. (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker hit the election campaign trail Thursday night in a speech peppered with politics and tailored for this grain-growing province.

He scoffed at Liberal party leaders as "the same old bunch" and called for return of a Progressive Conservative government to ensure the continued welfare of farmers.

"If you and I have the answer, and we have, the result on the 18th. of June isn't in doubt," Mr. Diefenbaker said.

Though he repeated that his campaign doesn't open until May 8, when he plans to deliver his keynote speech at London, Ont., the prime minister obviously was back in his 1957 and 1958 campaigning form.

A largely open audience estimated at 1,700 interrupted with applause 35 times in his speech in a rally for Saskatchewan Conservative candidates. Thirteen of the province's 16 Conservative members in the last Parliament were with him on the platform.

RUNS AGAINST ARGUE

Also there was Lawrence Watson, running for the seat against Hazen Argue, former CCF leader of the CCF - NDP group in the House of Commons who switched to the Liberals at the last session.

The prime minister was to fly north today for two days in his home province of Prince Albert, where he's slated to be nominated Saturday night.

His speech here was largely a statistics-loaded review of his government's agricultural policies, with emphasis on Prairie farmers and the higher wheat exports of recent years.

Mr. Diefenbaker said average net income per farm has been $2,451 under the Conservative government—more than 20 per cent higher than the $2,008 in the closing years of the last Liberal government.

"We begin to understand why Marxism always says 'Don't look back,'" he said in reference to national Liberal Leader Pearson.

The prime minister ascribed the big deal Ottawa made sale agreement to the government's "dynamic wheat sales program" and its provision of $100,000,000 in credit.

"And what does the present national Liberal party leadership say Chief Johnson (Dan) have sniped, griped and criticized."

ALMITY CHORUS'

Several times he referred to Mr. Pearson, former health minister Paul Martin and former immigration minister J. W. Pickersgill with heavy sarcasm as "Pearson, Martin and Pickersgill" and called them "the calamity chorus."

Carrying on the Liberal slogan "The Liberals have the answers," the prime minister referred to his government's adoption of the South Saskatchewan River power - irrigation project, cash advances on Prairie grain and other measures, and said:

"The Liberals had the answer. The answer was no."

Douglas Makes Disarmament Major Plank

By SCOTT SCHILL

WAKAW, Sask. (CP) — Canada's role in nuclear disarmament is expected as a major plank in the platform being unveiled by T. C. Douglas, national leader of the New Democratic Party.

He outlined his party's agricultural platform to an audience of 400 at this east-central Saskatchewan town Thursday night, then said the most important issue of the June 18 federal general election is "whether the human race is going to destroy itself in a nuclear war."

"If we do not solve the problem of nuclear war, there will be no reason to solve the other problems; we'll all be destroyed."

"Canada has to be much more aggressive in taking a leader's role in working for nuclear disarmament. The nuclear club must not be allowed to get any bigger."

Mr. Douglas said Canada should get allow nuclear arms on Canadian soil or allow them to be given to Canadian forces. He said he is willing to agree that nuclear arms have some deterrent value, but with mutual inspection and control they should be abolished.

He was critical of the Progressive Conservative government's stand on nuclear arms. He said the Conservatives are committed to accepting nuclear arms and are waiting until after the election before announcing it.

He said External Affairs Minister Green is against nuclear arms, while Defence Minister Harkness advocates them. Green is Minister Diefenbaker's "On Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays supports Mr. Green and on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays supports Mr. Harkness."

Mr. Douglas said a national Liberal Leader Pearson at first said he was against nuclear arms but under pressure, later amended this to say he was not against nuclear arms in Canada if they were controlled by the United States.

"This is the most atrocious suggestion I've ever heard. The United States President and United States generals would be able to decide when to use these nuclear arms . . . and when we go to war."

Debate Refusal Near Arrogance Says Pearson

By ARCH McKENZIE

CORNER BROOK, Nfld. (CP) National Liberal Leader Pearson carried his political message into Newfoundland Thursday night with handshakes and a blast at Prime Minister Diefenbaker for refusing to accept his challenge for a television debate.

Mr. Pearson, politicking with a beaming Premier Joseph R. Smallwood, trudged through the streets of two western Newfoundland centres to shake hands with the voters and to describe the Progressive Conservative prime minister as "conceited and almost arrogant" in rejecting a challenge for a campaign debate on radio and television.

Mr. Pearson was to move to St. John's today to wind up his swing into the Atlantic provinces in his campaign for the June 18 federal general election. He opened his campaign in Prince Edward Island Wednesday.

GETS WARM WELCOME

The handshake count by Mr. Smallwood's personal arithmetic was 1,100 firmly-clasped hands, two telephone and a warm welcome in this paper-making town of 25,100 and at Corner Brook.

The Smallwood touch, based on a formidable memory for facts and faces, began when the Pearson party arrived at Stephenville in western Newfoundland in the morning.

Mr. Smallwood staged a night rally here off about 500 persons who were told by Mr. Pearson that the Progressive Conservatives have had their chance at government and failed.

Mr. Smallwood, whose political magic has kept Newfoundland Liberal provincially since Confederation in 1949 and which has elected seven of eight members federally in 1958, pledged a seven-seat sweep this time.

"No one can blame the conservatives for the deception," he said. The blame lay in their failure to cure it.

NOT EVEN DOGCATCHER

But Prime Minister Diefenbaker had never held an elected post of responsibility before his victory in 1957, not even village councillor, constable or dogcatcher, He'd spent all his life in the courts defending burglars, murderers and embezzlers, the premier said.

Mr. Smallwood added to an audience rocking with laughter, "Mr. Diefenbaker had never called on his civil service or anybody else for advice.

"A man who busy man," said the premier. "Too busy to govern. He was travelling most of the time around the world. to the United Nations or any political meeting that would let him speak. He even had Premier Khrushchev of Russia shaking in his hoes" at the UN—and that was the time Mr. Khrushchev took one of his shoes off.

ing a successful raid on the Belleville Gun Club in Niagara Falls, which at the time was being "opened" by an Italian Canadian-American operation.

Mr. Humphrey said he disclaimed knowledge of a telephone call listed in his name from a public booth in Royal Victoria hotel here to Wright in Belleville, March 7, 1961. He said he doesn't recall ever spoke to Wright in any way directly or indirectly until after he was arrested. When the former official was arrested two months later Humphrey called at his cousin.

There are some of the unusual claims that confronted the staff of a giant clearing centre set up here to process the returns of 3,600,000 Canadians from Ontario and the four western provinces. Next year another 300,000 returns will flow in from the Maritimes, and Quebec's 1,500,000 returns likely will be brought into it two years later.

The clearing centre was set up three years ago as an experiment, and it has proved such a success that a permanent building is being erected in the city's west end. Now computing machinery is being purchased.

CUTS WORK LOAD

The eventual aim is to process returns from all over Canada so that experts in the country's 60 district offices will be relieved of their only on corporation and other more complex returns that present problems under tax.

Miscalculated returns now are sent back to the district offices where "mag centres" have been established, and the problem straightened out by hand.

harmed.

It transpired, the lawyer said, that he had had "become interested" and headed for New York.

Mr. Justice Roach was curious as to how rival gamblers would know of the existence of his brief at this time.

"Those things had a habit of getting around," the lawyer said.

He told of a 1959 falling-out between McDermott and Freak (Curly) Gardiner, who had had control of the Belleville Gun Club near Windsor, of which the Thomas Bar owned a slice.

He said Gardiner at this time was trying to get money from McKeown to have McDermott spilling information that would put Gardiner, and possibly Feeley in jail, though McDermott did not pay.

Humphrey said he went to see OPP Commissioner W. H. Kelly "but the commissioner did not seem much interested and turned the conversation to the weather." When McDermott had had a "patch" (fix) somewhere in the province.

"However, I was hardly the one to talk to about that," he said.

At a more amicable point in the McDermott - Feeley - Gardiner relationship during 1958, the lawyer testified, he got a $15,000 mortgage on Gardiner's Windsor home, apparently at McDermott's behest, to protect Gardiner's wife against the chance of it being gambled away in Gardiner's behalf as described as a compulsive gambler.

Humphrey said it was strictly a "straw transaction" to place no encumbrance on the property, that he received no money and that he gave Mrs. Gardiner a discharge of the mortgage.

United Nations' Scoreboard Series of Small Successes And Some Costly Failures

OTTAWA (CP)—One taxpayer claimed a deduction for cigarette consumed while sitting on hot lines to Russia.

Another sought to claim his whole dog as a dependent because she was expecting. Still another sought a deduction for the food he had bought for his pet dog.

These are some of the unusual claims that confronted the staff of a giant clearing centre set up here to process the returns of 3,600,000 Canadians from Ontario and the four western provinces. ADVISERS' JAILED

The country's total of personal income tax payers, now numbering 8,130,000, has its perishable percentage of cheaters.

An advertisement offering help in computing income tax returns brought a ready response to a "tax adviser" who established himself in a motel at Sudbury, Ont.

He simply added dependents to the returns of those seeking advice—even bachelors — and they received refunds from the income tax department. One of his customers turned out to be an agent of the federal revenue department.

The "tax counsellor" went to jail, and some of his clients were prosecuted.

Since 1947, cases brought to court by the special investigation branch of the department of national revenue being collected in back taxes, penalties and fines. Last year the branch's department's 145 special investigators recovered $12,000,000 from taxpayers.

The cheaters will take no culpis for charitable donations, claim dependents who don't exist, and alter the amounts on medical receipts.

The advice of the experts here is that if you have no cheating, don't. They know the answers.

around 10 p.m. Indications so far are that paid announcements will be crowded into the same lop - viewing period, though many will be tuned to the silence for the house-wife's benefit.

TV appeals may be a little more lively than in the past but only a little. The Board of Broadcast Governors has retained its rules slightly, allowing greater use of charts, photographs and sequences showing the candidate at work.

Radio has become a dimly-lighting campaign asset. Campaign directors indicate that a lighter use will be made of it than in 1957 and 1958, though there still will be a heavy schedule of promotions in specific time periods and in the few remaining non-TV areas.

One factor in radio broadcast, ing is that since 1958 it has become increasingly apparent that many stations gain their biggest audiences in early morning, say between 7 and 9 a.m. So the parties can expect politics for breakfast.

One of the largest changes will be in campaign literature. There will be much more of it from all parties.

Posters are just starting to appear in Quebec, where headquarters turning out the big cores of Prime Minister Diefenbaker, Liberal Leader Pearson, NDP Leader T. C. Douglas and Social Credit Robert Thompson.

One feature is that the personal credit posters, will, in line with the party's anticipated fight on Quebec, emphasize the English - French team of Mr. Thompson and Deputy Leader Real Caouette.

Enumerators Attend Classes For Instruction

It's Easter holiday time this week for elementary and high school students in Belleville and district, but close to 140 Belleville adults are attending classes today.

They are the enumerators who on Monday will start listing the names of persons eligible to vote in the June 18 federal election. Most of the Belleville enumerators are getting instruction on their duties at the recreation Centre on Pinnacle Street.

Last week rural enumerators for the Hastings South riding have been calling at the office of William Van Tassel, riding returning officer, to get their kits in preparation for the house enumeration.

Approximately 50 Trenton enumerators will get instruction at Trenton on Saturday.

Vases and flower filled arrangements decorated the chancel rail in Wellington United Church, and white satin bows the guest pews, on Saturday, April 21st, at 2.30 o'clock, for a pretty double-ring wedding when the Reverend Newman J. Trunz, pastor of the church, united in marriage Ann Elizabeth Tuttle of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Burton Tuttle, to Walter Wilfred Brooks, also of Belleville, son of Mrs. E. Brooks.

Mrs. J. McNeil presided at the organ and rendered the nuptial hymns, "Love Divine, All Love Excelling" and "Perfect Love" and "The Lord Is My Shepherd."

Given in marriage by her father, Mr. C. Burton Tuttle, the bride was radiant in her full-length bridal gown of gala pink brocaded taffeta, fashioned with full gathered skirt, and molded bodice featuring a rounded neckline, and long sleeves pointed over the wrists. Her graceful skirt was accented by wide cummerbund sash with back bow detail. She wore a finger-tip pink veil with crown of pink and carried a white Bible covered with pink carnations.

Attending the bride were her sister, Miss Elizabeth Tuttle, as maid of honour and Miss Gloria Tuttle, as bridesmaid. Both wore identical floor length gowns of brocaded taffeta in full gathered-skirt styles with finger-tip length veils crowned with low, round necklines and short gathered sleeves. Each wore a fan at the shoulder tips. They wore matching pink satin pumps and shoes, with petal headdresses and carried bouquets of white carnations.

Mr. Clyde Brooks of Colborne was best man, with Mr. Ian Bridgeroom, while Messrs. Glen Van Cott, of Milford Ontario, and Stewart Hollis, of Oakville, ushered the guests.

Education of Nurses Needs Study - - Dymond

TORONTO (CP)—Minister of Health Dymond said Thursday the new program for secondary education in Ontario is a striking advance but he says there is "seething ferment" in other areas of education.

Addressing the annual convention of the Registered Nurses' Association of Ontario, he said this applies particularly to nursing.

"Nursing education in the main has not been bad," he said.

Nearly two-thirds of all lecturers are in the first year of a three-year course by the student nurses.

The average student can scarcely be expected to do more than memorize her notes."

"The education of nurses needs much study and not a little change," he said.

Mr. Dymond said he hoped Shirley Jones, a new Liberal MP, passed in the legislature this month, will become a model for nursing education.

The act sets up a College of Nurses to control the training, add practice of nursing as the College of Physicians and Surgeons controls doctors.

"Some of you may feel we have simply handed over to you a set of problems that have plagued all health people for generations. That may be partly true," he said." But it is for good steel.

Earlier, in her presidential address, Ella M. Howard said there is agreement and even alarm among many nurses over the new Nurses Act.

She appealed to the government to take its time in drawing up the regulations, "to ensure the protection of all parties.

Women Have More to Say Says Pastor

TORONTO (CP) — When the president says "attention ladies!" seven men hop to it. They know she also means gentlemen.

The men are the seven representatives of other church boards to the United Church of Canada's board of women. Their presence caused President Mrs. J. D. Hutchinson of Toronto to make a hurried last-minute change in her presidential address to the board's annual meeting which ended Thursday.

She substituted "ladies and gentlemen" for "sisters" in her introduction.

One of the men is Rev. A. E. Kewley, pastor of Knox United Church in Brantford, representing the board of stewardship and information.

"I certainly haven't felt the segregation as I thought I was going in," says Mr. Kewley. "But it took me some time to realize that when the chairman says 'ladies' she also means gentlemen.

"The women's board meeting compares to that of the board of men."

"The ladies have much more to say.

But he had no difficulty saying what he had to say. The so-called more visible sex made way for him readily.

He was appointed to the women's board executive Thursday.

Swedish Bible Study Methods Are Explained

The April meeting of the Iona Group of St. Columbus Church, was held recently at the church with Mrs. J. Branford in the chair.

During the business portion, many fund-raising projects were discussed with the ultimate aim to add to the building fund for the new church.

The ladies agreed to help at a wedding reception to be held at the church during the coming weekend, and many volunteered their services. Donations of time and help were also received for a forthcoming dinner at the Masonic Club to be catered by the St. Columba W.A.

Mrs. John Hayman reported on the Bible research of St. Patrick's Day tea held by the group and thanked everyone for the co-operation and help shown. Mrs. Hayman stated that plans are underway for the fall bazaar, and that the conveners, Mrs. William Bowles and Mrs. J. Hayman have up to their work committee. Donations of material for dolls and aprons are requested so that work could be started on the project.

GUEST SPEAKER

Mrs. Robert Brain introduced the guest speaker for the evening, Mrs. R. D. MacLean, wife of the Reverend R. D. MacLean of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, and a native of Nova Scotia, who has been in Belleville for seven years.

Mrs MacLean, in turn, introduced the group to the Swedish Bible Study method. In this method of Bible study, a passage of Scripture is taken and analyzed. Mrs. MacLean explained that this study plan was divided into three parts, namely, textual study, individual expression and group discussion.

At Mrs. MacLean's suggestion, the ladies divided into two groups, with a convener for each group. Each recorder asked her group to look for three things: insight, personal application, and problems. She then recorded the answers given by the group.

At this point the groups rejoined one another, and each recorder read her summary of the group's findings. An interesting discussion followed with Mrs. MacLean serving as moderator.

Mrs. Brackford thanked Mrs. MacLean for an informative address.

Light refreshments were served following the close of the meeting.

Population Explosion Aspects Topic at University W. Club

During the business portion of the recent April meeting of the Canadian Federation of University Women Mrs. J. L. Aston urged the necessity for greater efforts in selling Goldie Sale. Mandy Sale is the date drawn to be held in May. The speaker for the evening was introduced by Mrs. J. Grimsby.

"On Friday 30, November, A.D. 2001 the population of the world will reach infinity." This quotation taken from an article by Von Hoffenberg in a recent fascinating address given by Margaret Andrews of the Belleville Entomology Laboratory, who added that one of the most important problem facing the world today. It is much greater than the prospect of all-out nuclear warfare, because in this case, the bomb has already exploded. It is almost analogous to nuclear warfare because, in fact, in a chain reaction, the results of which are reaching all corners of the earth. Two-thirds of the world's population is underfed, underclad and yet every minute of the day and night there are a 100 babies born — a hundred more months to feed.

POPULATION UPSURGE

Within the past century the development of new techniques in medicine and industry has brought unprecedented rise in population upsurge in the population, especially in the economically developed areas.

Increase of 35 per cent in calorie consumption is necessary to bring the average world to a minimum up to Western standards. Hypothetical ways of increasing the world's food supply might be increase in land under cultivation; increase in yield per acre: fertilizers, insect and disease control, plant breeding and selection; agricultural engineering; improving management control and distribution; and increasing harvesting of fish from Southern waters; and reducing waste.

INCREASE IN FOOD

The following are some of the developments which have led to an increase in food production in the future: Vast greenhouses with power grown in nutrient solution, and a carbon dioxide enrichment atmosphere, and supplementary lighting could lead to a great extension of crop production. Algae culture, particularly chlorella is fit to grow as protein might yield 20 tons, dry weight of food per acre. C.G.I.T. Holds Impressive Vesper Service

WELLINGTON — Wellington United Church was the scene of another impressive vesper service on Sunday evening. The president Jane Singleton opened the service followed by the Scripture and a second Scripture passage was read by Joanne Pyrah. The C.G.I.T. choir sang the anthem "He Lives" followed by the story "Pansy Learns about the Lighted Lamp" read by Faye Binkley. The Benediction was received and dedicated by Secretary Elsie. The poem "Easter Lily" was read by Carolyn Pettingill.

Following the service the C.G.I.T. and Explorers Groups brought the Easter lillies to the Church. Each member present were placed in a large white cross, but cannot be used. It will be just too many months to feed. In some very brief years, the food will have to be equalized.

"In even only part of a civilized enjoying his brief period of power to be eclipsed by some other nation which is not in a sensible relationship between population and his environment? Man is dependent on his environment for much more than food.

SOLAR ENERGY

"The present daily consumption by people in the U.S. is about 160,000 cal. per person (90 times the food requirement). Perhaps the real problem is the depletion of energy sources and natural resources. Solar energy is the conservation mineral and soil resources. As fossil fuels (oil, petroleum and natural gas) are consumed solar energy appears as an important source for the future.

"Perhaps, however, man is erring in thinking in quantity of people rather than the quality of the species. This is the most difficult problem of all activities the problems of human

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Martha N. — My parents don't consider me engaged, but I am.

Mrs. D.N. — She calls it an engagement. I call it imprisonment.

Martha N. — I'm 18 and a freshman at a college hundreds of miles from my home. It's second week I was on campus I dated a fellow student, a sophomore, and although I accepted invitations from a few other boys I came back to Chris by Thanksgiving and we've gone steady since.

We're really just right for each other. Chris says he looked over the new crop of co-eds last fall and picked me out of a hundred. Although he must get his degree and put in a year of post-graduate lab work and I have three more years to go, I'm sure they were the years he'd be glad to be married early in 1965, say, during spring vacation.

My parents think the idea is ridiculous and that I should continue to date. But I've found my man. Why look further? We're engaged.

Mrs. D.N. — We have no objection to Chris. We met him when we drove Martha back last January, and his parents entertained Martha in their home for a weekend. We didn't know how they feel about the idea of a three-year engagement, but we think it's terrible.

I can understand a spinster-like, scared, desperate girl hanging on to a long engagement for fear of never getting another chance, but Martha is young, bright, beautiful. I know a half-dozen boys, some of my friends, who wanted to date her during Easter vacation, and were disappointed to hear her say she was engaged.

She should get back into circulation. She won't be engaged until her father and I announce a shortly before her marriage, 1965 is fine. Chris is fine, too. But it's a big world and she should look around it first.

The Council: If we are you.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

WHAT'S YOUR E.Q.?

First impressions are lasting, and a smile can convey a feeling of warmth and graciousness that may be all you acknowledges an introduction. Do you make a favorable impression? Test yourself on the following questions you can answer correctly:

1. If seated, when should a woman rise to be introduced?

2. Should a woman offer her hand when introduced?

3. If she's wearing gloves, should she remove the right one to shake hands?

4. What should one say when acknowledging an introduction?

5. Is it necessary to say anything at all?

6. When going through a receiving line, should a woman shake hands with everyone?

7. When being introduced and a man offers his hand to a woman, should she take it?

8. How should a young girl acknowledge an introduction?

9. How a host of one behave when introduced to a group of people?

10. As hostess, how should a woman respond when meeting someone who accompanies a guest to her home?

Answers:

1. A woman rises to be introduced to another woman who is obviously older than she, as a dignitary — male or female — to a clergyman and his wife. When playing hostess, she rises to greet and say good-bye to her guests.

2. She may, but this is optional.

3. Never.

4. Simply "How do you do."

5. A woman may simply bow slightly or nod her head and smile.

6. It's customary. In a long line — at a wedding reception, for instance — she shakes hands with the mothers and the bride and groom and say attendants she may know. She simply may smile a greeting to those she does not know if she prefers.

7. It would embarrass him if she didn't. Under most social conditions, a man is presented to a woman and she should offer her hand first. But if a man does offer his hand first, she would be rude to ignore it.

8. She should smile, and say "How do you do." She should not offer her hand, but she may shake hands if an older person offers his or hers.

9. Shed to each person in turn and acknowledges each with a smile.

10. Acknowledgement may be a little more profuse. Should it merely saying "How do you do." A hostess tries to make a stranger feel welcome by adding, "I'm delighted you could come."

United Church Women Wrestle With Problems

TORONTO (CP)—The roles of the church in education, alcoholism, a new study curriculum and organizational matters, occupied the attention of the annual meeting of the board of women of the United Church of Canada which ended here Thursday.

The board heard a suggestion that some solution was needed to cope with the problem of drinking church members. Another suggestion was that the church will have to consider whether it wishes to remain in the field of elementary and higher education or whether it will abandon the field to secular institutions.

In organizational matters, several delegates expressed dissatisfaction with the constitution, "claiming it is confusing and needs "streamlining and clarification."

Mrs. R. Rose of Toronto said local presidents should have the right to vote at the presbyterial level, a privilege denied by the constitution. The board later decided against steps to have the constitution amended but will study the matter.

The 59-member board was formed in January as the governing body of the 350,000-member United Church Women organized to replace the Women's Missionary Society and the Women's Association.

Reports of several conference chairmen indicated a reluctance on the part of some of the old groups to join the UCW. There was no estimate available of groups or members who remained outside.

In a discussion on alcoholism, Rev. A. E. Kenway, pastor of Brant United Church in Brantford who represents the board of stewardship and information, said some help should be given women alcoholics "within our own organization—those who go on a bender perhaps twice a year."

Rev. D. W. G. Berry, associate secretary of the board of evangelism and social service, said the church has a program of alcohol education but "this is not enough. People already know very well what alcohol does to them."

The board decided to throw its support behind a new six-year study program aimed at young people and adults. The "new curriculum" consists of a series of books to be issued one each year until 1968.

Word Of Warning To Women

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS:—I read the letter yesterday about the wife who had a husband who has not once told her that he loves her and will not say he is sorry when at times he is to blame.

The "boy I loved" was so pampered and fussed over by his family that his conceit has not faded one bit. He is in his middle years now but he still has one purpose in mind each day and that is to impress the opposite sex.

I made one mistake and he knows it. He carefully throws it in my face, yet, I found out, too late, that he went all the way with the girl before he married me. He curses in the filthiest manner in front of the children when he is angry and it takes very little to get him started on a temper tantrum. We live in fear of him from day to day.

He believes he is lord and master and we have to obey him, otherwise he finds ways to punish us.

So beware girls—check into your man's life—find out if he feels the way you do about life in general. Being a doormat to a man is very unhealthy. I know!

Bringing in the rent money and grocery money isn't enough. Love and respect are just as essential to a happy marriage. My husband's feelings come first—ours come last.—HEARTSICK.

DEAR HEARTSICK—I weep for you. A girl who has unknowingly attached herself for life to the product of overindulgent parents is a sorry plight indeed.

You have developed habits of giving in for peace But the tone of your letter is controlled and clear thinking. Your well-being and that of your children are at stake and it is just possible that a marriage counsellor can help. It has been done before. Want we to send you the address of one who is not too far from you?

DEAR DORIS:—I love a boy who is one year older than me. But in return, I think he doesn't love me. The students of our school tease him about me and he usually calls me names, and this hurts my feelings.

I have two girl friends and when they are not in school he usually sticks around me, then when they come to school, he sticks around the older girl friend of mine. Should I forget him?—DOUBTFUL.

DEAR DOUBTFUL:—Don't use that word "love" so freely. Your aversion is a healthy teen-age attraction to the opposite sex—and that's all!

Calling you names—shows the teasing bothers him It's not really to hurt you. But he's not your one and only. Treat him as casually as he treats you.

TO R. L.:—The only toast which is a "must" is the toast to the bride—and it is very nice if this includes the groom. The toast is then to "the happy couple."

When you're picking your wedding party, get someone who is witty and easy on his feet. This can make or mar the happy atmosphere of the Big Event.

DEAR DORIS:—My daughter is getting married soon and there are a few things I would like to know:

1. Her husband-to-be is from out of town. Would the bride's parents be expected to pay for his parents' (or relatives') hotel accommodation?

2. If we have room, should we ask the groom's parents or other relatives to stay with us?

3. Is it not correct for the bride's father (after the wedding ceremony) to walk down the church aisle with the groom's mother and the bride's mother with the groom's father?

4. Does the bride-to-be have to pay for the bridesmaids' dresses?

5. Do we have to provide and pay for transportation for our guests to the church and reception?—BRIDE'S MOTHER.

DEAR BRIDE'S MOTHER:—1 Not expected. Is sometimes done.

2 Yes, or with other relatives in town—which may be preferable, in view of the confusion which may prevail in your home.

3 Yes.

4 Some do, some don't. If she does, this is her gift to the bridesmaids. Otherwise she gives each a gift.

5 Yes, if they have no car. Often, other guests can accommodate the out-of-towners if you arrange this ahead.

TO DESPERATE FOR HELP:—Learn to keep quiet about confidences. Small talk is unfriendly, even dangerous, to friendships. You had no business arousing the boy's curiosity. Don't tell anything more than you have.

Don't write to me every time you talk too much; learn to button up your lip!

Inco Grants To Universities Total $48,000

TORONTO — Grants totalling $48,000 have been awarded recently by The International Nickel Company of Canada, Limited, to ten Canadian universities, and the Canadian Mathematical Congress, to assist in financing advanced or supplementary courses for high school teachers specializing in science and mathematics.

The 1962 grants are a continuation of a successful program of aid, begun by Inco in 1956 as one answer to a need for more highly qualified teachers for Canadian secondary schools. Since 1956, and including the 1962 program, Inco's sponsoring grants of approximately $265,000 will have assisted an estimated 2,460 teachers from all provinces of Canada.

Universities which are taking part in the 1962 program include Queen's, Toronto, Western, Assumption and Waterloo in Ontario; New Brunswick, Acadia and Mount Allison in the Maritimes, and the Universities of Manitoba and Saskatchewan in Western Canada. The Canadian Mathematical Congress will conduct their program in mathematics at Dalhousie University, Halifax.

These grants are part of Inco's over-all program of aid to education which has seen the expenditure of approximately $3,960,000 in Canada during the past six years.

How To Be A Failure

By JACK HUTTON

Let's all gather around closely for today's lesson: how to halt conversations without really trying.

Hundreds of thousands of words of advice on how to study and how to pass examinations are undoubtedly being poured on you this month.

Since it seems only fair that you should get the other side of the story, here are the simple easy-to-follow steps of the Hutton Plan.

—Don't think about studying yet. After all, you'd have to study all the way to June and that's rather long. Instead of that, figure each night how many days you have left and always leave it for tomorrow.

—Don't allow your social life to slip. Plan to go out at least three times each week). In fact, plan to telephone at least four friends each night so you won't lose touch.

—Watch a great deal of TV because it relaxes the mind. Better still, make a resolution never to sit down with your books until you've watched at least three programs (this equals one late movie).

—Listen to the radio no matter what else happens. There is a chance that some new tune might turn up on the hit parade without your knowing about it—or, horrors, Elizabeth Taylor might marry someone else while you were studying chemistry.

Always study with a group of friends. You'll need a radio and soft drinks, of course, but the more the merrier. Arrange for a group of at least five or six.

—You already know what the passing mark must be, so aim for just above it. Don't try for anything higher than that or seven marks above it, because that would prove you'd been missing constructive things like the twist.

Never, never, never study anything you're not positive will be on that examination. In fact, just study half the book if you know there will be a choice of questions. Never do more than is expected of you.

—Always try to think about something else while you're studying for exams. For example, what are the chances of the Yankees getting into the World Series again, or your family going early to the summer cottage.

—Don't accept any advice from teachers. After all everyone knows they only fail a certain percentage of the class.

Or, if you do accept the advice, plan to put into use "sometime" later.

—Combine studying with TV. It makes an interesting black-and-white background and you'll have lots of time to read snatches of the history text while the commercials are on.

—Never study in your room by yourself. Your family will figure you're getting anti-social or snobbish or something, and, besides, you'd be a long way from the telephone.

—Never study for longer than 10 or 15 minutes at a time. Nobody knows what damage it might do to the brain.

Try following any three of these suggestions and you've a reasonable chance of failing. Follow them all to the letter and I can practically guarantee it!

BABYSITTING BLUES

A Vancouver mother who signs herself as "A Teen-Ager Not Too Long Ago," sent in a letter which I thought you might find interesting.

She writes: "What has been happening to teen-age values in the last few years? I'm not questioning their good deeds or basic values—but I wonder about their sense of money.

"I've just started using baby-sitters for the first time, and what a shock! My husband I both wonder if the 75-cent baby-sitter has vanished along with the dodo and the 5-cent cup of coffee.

"Only nine or 10 years ago I did the occasional baby-sitting for extra money while I was in high school. But I can never remember charging more than $1 for looking after a child. I felt guilty if I charged that much.

"The other day we hired a 14-year-old girl recommended by someone else for two hours. She informed us that the basic rate was 75 cents and that she could not charge for less than four hours.

"We left potato chips and a carton of six soft drinks for her. When we returned about 11 p.m., we found she had finished the potato chips, all the soft drinks, a quart of milk, half a chocolate cake—and billed us for a $2 pizza which she had delivered!

"We never spend less than $8 on a babysitter and frankly can't afford it. Teen-agers are making money, but it's awfully embarrassing to find you can't go out because the baby-sitter costs too much."

Sunday School Lesson

'Discipline or Death'

By ROY L. SMITH

From the very beginning of the Christian faith, Christians have been exhorted to discipline themselves, and the greatest problem the Church has ever faced has been that of enforcing discipline.

The reason is very simple. There can be no successful management of life without discipline. There are too many influences and rival interests; no man can survive who cannot take control of his own life.

THE COMMUNIST SUCCESS

One of the most amazing revolutions of all times is going on before our eyes. Within the space of no more than 45 years the communists have taken over power, and are governing the lives of fully 40 percent of the world's population.

Not the least strange aspect of the case is the logical weakness of the communist case. Karl Marx was not a logician, and all of his followers together was sootic. In no sense of the word can he be compared to Adam Smith, Jeremy Bentham or John Stuart Mills, the three great British economists, and no classroom sits classroom, in universities and high schools, the indictments of his theories of surplus value, inevitability of communism, scientific principles of history, dialectical materialism, and capitalist are being exploded every week of the year. Yet in and after land the people are turning to communism, and accepting the leadership of Russia and China. Nikita Khrushchev's boast that he will bury you is no idle talk. The communists believe that the history are on their side and that they will do it.

COMMUNIST DISCIPLINE

At one who did his graduate work in the field of economics in the university, and as one who has specialized in the study of the science for more than 50 years, with an intimate study of communism thrown in, I am prepared to say that it is not the economic strength of Marxism that is producing the victory. Rather, and instead, it is the discipline that the Russian and Chinese political leaders have been able to enforce which explains the successes of the Chinese government and the Soviet system.

According to the theory of Lenin, Stalin, and now Khrushchev (refined by Mao Tse-tung) it is possible to produce "The Communist Man." By the use of Pavlovian principles the basic character of whole nations is being completely altered. It is a frightening thought. But it does aims with a complete surrender of the individual to the communist ideology.

The International Sunday School Lesson for April 29 "A Disciplined Faith." Genesis 12:1-9. Exodus 3:1-6; Hebrews 10:19 through 12:29.

Once the surrender is made, the government proceeds to apply scientific techniques for the purpose of getting complete control of the total personality. The result is the "Soviet Man," represented today the most single-minded and single - purposed group of human beings the world has ever seen. They have but one motive — to do the will of the Party. And in the shap-

How to Buy and Care for a Home

Legal Tips for Home-Buyer

The prospective home buyer is often on unfamiliar ground, and understandably confused, when faced with the technical and legal terms involved with acquiring a home.

First of all, don't try to become a builder or architect yourself. Building is a very specialized field, an area where a little knowledge is a pretty useless thing. It's your builder's job to provide the technical know-how, and if you don't trust him you shouldn't be buying a home from him.

If you're buying a completed subdivision house, your legal transactions will not be so complicated as they will if you're buying a piece of land and letting a contract to a builder for construction of your house to it. But in any case, since this may be the largest single purchase you will ever make, you owe it to yourself to understand what you're committing yourself to.

It is not a good practice to use the same lawyer as your builder or your mortgage lender. It's worth the extra expense to engage a lawyer of your own choice to safeguard your rights and explain the transactions to you. Too often, home buyers blame a builder unjustly for misunderstandings over responsibilities, when the cause of the difficulty has been in their own neglect to become informed.

Defined in non-technical language, here are some of the common terms you'll encounter in purchasing a home.

MORTGAGE: A mortgage is actually a promise to pay money, and stipulates that a property will be forfeited in the event of non-payment as promised. Failure to pay the debt as promised does not mean you automatically lose your house, however. If you run into temporary financial difficulty, the first thing you should do is get in touch with your lender to explain your situation. In most cases, particularly if your mortgage is guaranteed under the National Housing Act, they will do their best to help you through your difficulties.

Serious financial problems may make it advisable for you to dispose of your house for sale if you cannot maintain the payments. In this event, you will probably realize some return from your equity, in any case, foreclosure can only take place after suitable legal steps are taken and any applicable period of grace has expired.

The laws are designed to protect both the lender and the borrower. Reputable mortgage lenders are not anxious to foreclose, since they make money available for mortgages as an investment.

LIEN: A lien is similar to a mortgage, in the sense that it is a claim against a property. A lien might be filed by a supplier or sub-contractor who has provided materials or labor for your house, and has not received payment. A lien must be properly filed by the claimant. When this is done, it makes your title to your property ineffective, and thus makes subsequent sale difficult.

OFFER TO PURCHASE: This is a written contract which states that the owner agrees to sell, and the buyer agrees to buy. It binds both parties to stated terms and conditions. It should include all necessary descriptions, the purchase price and the terms of payment, the dates on which the deal is to be closed, and when possession will be given. If a penalty clause for delays beyond the possession date is included, a premium payment clause for possession in advance of the promised date should also be included.

You should note whether the cost of services such as water, sewer and roads is included in the purchase price, or if you'll be required to pay additional local improvement taxes over a period of years.

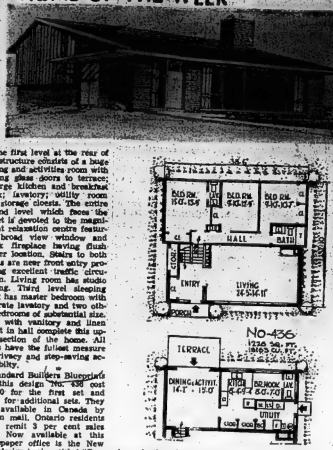
TITLE DEEDS: This is the document which names you as owner of the land on which your house stands. It is your responsibility, or your lawyer's, to register this document. Although the procedure for obtaining a clear title to the land is practically the same in all provinces, there are some variations in the laws regarding ownership. Your builder and your lawyer can advise you on the technicalities of this matter.

OPTION: This is a document stipulating that, for a consideration, you are to be given first change of buying a property within a specified time.

ZONING: Zoning is the method by which government regulates the use of property. It may divide a community into sections, and specifies which type of construction is permitted in each. Kept within reasonable limits, zoning aids in preserving property values. It is wise for every purchaser of a home to examine the existing zoning regulations before he agrees to purchase.

INSPECTION: While "inspection" is not really a technical term, it's well for the prospective buyer to know what it implies. Many people have the mistaken impression that an inspection by Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation officials if the house in question is being built under the NHA, means the house is "guaranteed" by the corporation to be absolutely free of defects of any kind, and that the workman ship is top grade.

It is a mistake however, to consider three inspectors as a police force; and the same is true of your local building department's inspectors. The responsibility of these inspectors is simply to make sure that the building meets the standards set by the Housing Standards, in the case of the CMHC inspectors; and your local building by-law, in the case of the municipal inspectors. It is impossible for anyone to examine every single aspect of construction unless they're all their time at the construction site while work is proceeding, watching over the shoulders and getting in everyone's way. It just isn't practical as the cost would be prohibitive. Your basic protection against defective workmanship, therefore, is to select a builder of good reputation, whose work you have seen and on whom you can rely. That is your responsibility and no one else can assume it for you.



Despite the unfamiliarity of the average home buyer with the legal mechanics involved in the purchase of property, the signing of a home need not be an involved process. Every reliable builder will do his best to inform you fully about the house, the neighborhood and the municipality. And your own lawyer is dedicated to the protection of your interests.

require a lawyer at one point in the transaction, to search the title for the land. So why not hire a solicitor at the start? If you bought a new house you'd take out fire insurance, although that doesn't mean you're expecting a fire. The policy simply provides you with the peace of mind in knowing that your property and goods are protected. A lawyer's service can be another form of protection. But, keep in mind, a lawyer's chief contribution is a real estate transaction is to advise both parties of their rights and obligations. This is why you should hire a layer at the outset before you make a deposit or sign any document. Give him a chance to protect your interests.

CARRYING GLASS

When carrying a large pane of glass, slit a piece of garden hose lengthwise and slip over the bottom and top edges to act as a grip. This will help prevent breakage and injury to hands.

Housing Hints

(By Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation)

Q. What should you look for in a ready-built house?

A: The quality of construction is vitally important. In this regard, the best guide is probably the reputation of the builder for using quality workmanship and materials. In a ready-built house, however, every aspect should give you absolute assurance that it has been properly built because much of the construction is hidden behind finished walls and floors. Purchasers should beware of houses that have been dressed up with gimmicks and are carelessly finished on the surface. A builder who has honestly tried to turn out a quality product will not be afraid to use straight forward finishes without including eye-catching tricks to promote sales.

Q. What should a purchaser consider when choosing a ready-built house?

A: The purchaser should be concerned with the suitability of the design of the house and its location. Then he should ask himself, "will the layout of the unit fit my family's living habits? Will it meet my family's needs in the years ahead? Will it accommodate my present furniture or will there be additional expense of new furniture? Is the property located within a reasonable distance from work, schools and churches?" These are just a few of the questions to be answered before the purchaser can make a sound decision.

Q. When buying a new house should you use the builder's lawyer to search the title?

A. No. It might save you money but it could also result in an awkward situation for all parties concerned if a problem requiring legal action cropped up. Either demand that the lawyer abandon one of his clients in such a situation and normally the purchaser is the one he would have to drop. The solicitor's services were obtained in the first place by the builder and he'll have to stand by his first client. Remember, most legal actions are the result of misunderstandings rather than deliberate attempts to cheat. You may buy a house and have no legal difficulties, but if you happen to run into trouble it is comforting to know you have a lawyer to advise you on your legal rights.

Q. Do you need a lawyer when you buy a new home?

A. Yes, you are going to

Total Lack of Security Precautions Seen in Cuba By Reporter Making Tour

HAVANA (Reuters) — Although rumors of "armed risings" or "guerrilla warfare" constantly sweep the Cuban capital, a first-hand look at the interior has failed to reveal any real evidence of either.

Only at one point, a few miles from Managua, near the northeast coast of Las Villas Province, were battle-garbed militiamen seen.

On the other hand, in contrast to a year ago, there has been a total lack of security precautions.

A reporter driving his car was not once stopped for inspection. But he was frequently asked by passers-by if he was a Russian. The fact that he was British attracted no undue attention.

In April, 1961, before the abortive invasion attempt, this reporter was obliged to get military permits both in Sancti Spiritus and in Trinidad in order to drive along the coast road flanking the Escambray Hills to Cienfuegos.

Although most of the still trenches lining parts of the road had then been abandoned, following successful mopping-up operations against guerrillas in the hills, the car was held up for inspection at militia posts every 10 miles.

In 1962 there were no formalities and no hold-ups. The still trenches had been washed away by last summer's rain. In Trinidad, there were many militia and soldiers at beths an old, garrison town, but scarcely a quarter of the numbers seen a year before.

In contrast with country life and provincial towns, even where food supplies, while far from perfect, did not appear in

Language Schools in Ont. Beaten by PTA

OTTAWA (CP)—A resolution aimed at slowly replacing bilingual with French - language schools in Ontario was defeated by a slim margin Thursday at the Ontario French-Language Parent-Teachers Association.

The resolution called for progressive introduction in bilingual schools of French-inspired textbooks to replace translated and English books; establishment of French elocution courses at various primary levels where none exist now, and rapid increase in the number of courses given in French at all grade levels with the aim that all courses be in French except for the teaching of English.

A lively debate among members of the 220 PTA associations of Ontario and western Quebec was followed by the negative vote.

Jean-Yves Grenon, who introduced the resolution for the Ottawa Valley unit, said after-wards he turned down that "we are afraid to raise our heads. Instead of moving ground we are losing some."

Supporting the resolution, Louis Charbonneau of Ottawa said "bilingualism is a very complicated and ambiguous word. In Ontario we have obtained the privilege of teaching French but we accept that we must teach English well."

Pierre Sevigny, MP, Ottawa's legal counsel to the federation, said he could not accept the idea that "we are entirely in French up to the 13th Grade.

Survey Shows Girl of 12, Boy of 14 May Wed in Some Parts of Canada

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

In many parts of Canada, a girl of 12 or a boy of 14 needs only parental consent to get married.

In all least one province there is agitation to have the minimum raised to 18.

The Nova Scotia Council of Women passed a resolution Thursday asking the provincial government to require that girls be 16 before they may wed—even with the approval of parents.

The action is part of a program by the National Council of Women to bring marriage age requirements "more in line with modern times," says Mrs. Charles A. Manning of New Glasgow, N.S., the provincial president.

A survey by the Canadian Press shows that the 12-year-old limit for girls and the 14-year-old limit for boys is followed in New Brunswick, Newfoundland and Quebec as well as in Nova Scotia.

The province with no statute covering minimum age specifications, English common law, which sets 12 years for girls and 14 years for boys—usually applies.

In British Columbia, males or females below the age of 21 have to have the age of 16 need parental consent to marry. Below that, court approval is required.

Alberta also has a 16 - year limit

Two Trucks Crash Picket Lines But Meet Barrage Of Stones, Bricks of Strikers

MONTREAL (CP) — Two trucks crashed picket lines at strike-bound Dominion Textile plants Thursday and were met by a barrage of stones, bricks and bottles thrown by some 500 strikers.

The trucks, escorted by 35 policemen in cars and motorcycles, made their breaky with the loads of goods leaving the Smith Transport and Kingsway Transport depot and managed to make the dashes to separate, terrified destinations almost before the strikers realized what had happened.

Police officers, members of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters (Ind.), have virtually surrounded the depots from a short distance since the strike deadline began and since a court order was issued limiting the actual number of pickets.

While the trucks managed to get through, a third attempt Thursday, at least one of them ran into rough going from carloads of strikers who had gathered.

When the truck reached an intersection, the driver stopped to depot a number of rocks were hurled through the window. The driver, struck on the head, ducked and stamped on the gas pedal.

'TD BE IN MORGUE'

"If I had stopped there I'd be in the morgue right now," he said later. "I had orders to keep going and that's what I did."

Despite the smashed window, the driver continued through the intersection, got into Montreal on a small panel truck. The driver of the panel truck was taken to one of the Teamsters' head juiries.

The first driver continued to to his destination.

The second truck arrived at its destination without further incident.

However, both trucks were left stranded at their warehouses when a warehousemen in the territory of the Teamsters refused to unload their cargo.

Other vehicles left the city in and out of the depot. Thursday were stopped by the strikers.

All cars driven by office staff were searched before being allowed to drive away.

Eight companies still are tied up in the strike, which began April 14. Three others have reached agreement with the union.

The union is asking a 30-cent increase in the present basic wage of $1.55 an hour.

CNR Firemen Negotiators Hold Meeting

OTTAWA (CP)—Union negotiators for 10,000 CNR firemen ended a two-day meeting here Thursday and announced that whether they will accept or reject a conciliation board's recommendations for a 6½-per-cent wage increase.

A spokesman for the negotiating committee of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen (CLC) said committee members will meet CNR officials in Montreal Monday. The union's decision will be announced then.

The union originally asked for an 18 - per - cent pay increase. There was no counter-proposal from the CNR.

An increase of eight per cent spread over two years was recommended in a minority report by Liberal Senator Arthur Roebuck of Ontario, the union nominee on the federal conciliation board.

The board itself was unable to get the parties to agree on a settlement. They were reported far apart on a long list of rule changes in dispute, most of them concerned with switching.

The majority recommendation was signed by board chairman Hilary J. R. Robinson of Haileybury, Ont., and company nominee T. R. Meighen of Montreal.

Must Improve Standard Of Living

OTTAWA (CP)—Gen. Vanier said Thursday night French-speaking Canadians have to strive to improve their standard of living.

An improvement will not come overnight, without effort, he said at the annual awards banquet of the Canadian Education Association.

The Governor-General said French-language public speaking was instituted by Dr. Robert Gauthier.

Scholarships worth $300 went to Theresa Champagne of Ingersoll and Robert Major of New Liskeard in the secondary school category. Both students in Haileybury. Scholarships of $200 went to Claire Lafrance of Corbell, a student in Sturgeon Falls, and Gerard Desmeres of Ottawa.

At the primary school level Joseph Verreault of Hearst and Timothee Caisse of Kirkland Lake each received $300 scholarships. A scholarship worth $200 went to Paul Millette of North Bay.

Paulette, Quesnel of Sudbury and Bernard Thibodeau of Merrow won $100 scholarships

Program to Subsidize Rent For Low-Income Families Likely to Be Expanded

TORONTO (CP) — A pioneer Ontario program to subsidize rent for low-income families is likely to be expanded later this year, Economics and Development Minister Macaulay indicated Thursday.

Originally designed as a pilot project in metropolitan Toronto, the rent certificate plan has proved such a "tremendous success" that it could be expanded in both dollar volume and number of communities involved, Mr. Macaulay said in an interview.

He said he plans to ask the treasury board to "adjust" the estimates of his department so the plan can be broadened.

In the three weeks since the plan began operating, the metropolitan Toronto housing authority has signed leases with 26 landlords. It is the first stage of negotiation with four more, and has inspected now generally approved almost 100 other housing units. Since Toronto has a long waiting list for public housing, there will be little difficulty filling the approved units.

FIRST OF KIND

The rent certificate project—part of the government's 10-point program in the public housing field—is being described as the first of its kind in Canada.

Under a bill passed at the recent session of the legislature, a municipality can ask the commission to lease homes from private landlords.

Low - income families which would normally qualify for public housing are then put under the homes and pay as much rent as their income allows, with the provincial government paying the landlord the difference from the rent certificate for the building.

"Not only are we able to settle people into homes immediately under the plan," he said, "but we also put them in for a substantially lower cost than would be involved in building separate apartments or other forms of public housing."

For the people involved, there were additional benefits. Since they were spotted throughout the community, instead of being lumped together and identified by their neighborhood as public housing tenants, they "can hold their heads high and develop a real sense of independence and of belonging to the community."

In some cases, Mr. Macaulay said, it also helps the neighborhood. Some of the houses used were deteriorating before landlords could obtain enough rent to make repairs.

DAMAGE $1,000,000

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — A major fire that broke out in a textile-dyer plant on the Charleston waterfront caused an estimated $1,000,000 damage before it was brought under control Thursday night. The blaze destroyed two huge warehouses, one of the warehouses containing nitrate of soda, and for a time threatened nearby, water-front facilities including huge oil storage area.

Catholics' Aim Rejuvenation Of Own Church Step to Unity

OTTAWA (CP) — "Interior rejuvenation of the church" as the first step towards Christian unity is the aim of the forthcoming ecumenical council, Roman Catholic bishops of Canada said Thursday.

A 2,500-word statement on the historic council which opens in Rome next Oct. 11 was issued following the spring meeting of the board of the Canadian Catholic Conference, a voluntary association of the church hierarchy in Canada.

It describes "the reunion of all the churches" as a primary objective of the council, adding:

"Before even attempting reconciliation with another, a serious-minded man will stop to consider what he himself has done, what he should do, and what he will say.

"Because he longs sincerely to be reunited with his brother in the bonds of love, unity and peace, he tries first to render himself more agreeable by freeing himself from anything that could prevent him from finding favor with God and his desires.

"It is this state of meditation and self-criticism that the council hopes to achieve."

ENCYCLICAL

By focussing council attention on "the interior rejuvenation of the church," Holy Father is far from relegating to second place the question of Christian unity, shows his keen concern and takes a first step towards it."

The statement, signed by 10 archbishops, also pinpoints some of the country's two cardinal-archbishops, says the process will be slow and cautious against impatience.

The statement says Catholics have a duty to strive to learn more about the council and submit their suggestions.

"Certain decisions may cause astonishment among more conservative minds; others may disappoint those who desire more radical and fewer cases will must see in all such decisions the higher inspiration of the Holy Spirit.

The statement adds the "eternal truths" do not change and cannot become antiquated, but that language expression and their concrete presentation must be adapted to the language and customs which change over the years.

"The church in itself is unchangeable and immutable in its basic constitution" but there were customs and methods which were out of date "and which it would be better to change."

Trust Firms' Growth Rate Higher in '61

MONTREAL — "The dynamic growth which has been characteristic of the trust business in Canada for the last decade continued at an even higher rate in 1961," W. A. Bean, retiring president of the Trust Companies Association of Canada, told the annual meeting here Thursday.

He said that during 1961 savings and guaranteed funds rose $271 million to $1.68 million; Estates, trust and agency funds rose $748 million to $2,134 million; Total volume included $1,376 million of pension funds assets, $240 million more than last year.

Mr. Bean said total business under administration at the end of 1961 exceeded $9,737 million, an increase of more than $1,100 million during the year.

"Public confidence in the trust companies of Canada has never been greater," he said, "administering as they do more of the savings of Canadians than any other group—and financial institutions with the exception of the chartered banks."

Officers elected at the meeting: W. L. Knowlton, Q.C., Canada Permanent, Toronto General Trusts Corporation; vice-presidents J. M. Wells, The Royal Trust Company, and vice-president W. A. Bean, The Waterloo Trust and Savings Company, past president.

Ten Stations Refuse to Carry TV Drama

NEW YORK (AP)—The Columbia Broadcasting System said Thursday that 10 of its owned-and-operated stations will carry a network television drama about civilization scheduled Saturday night.

The 10 replaced the filmed play, The Benefactor, after viewing it on a closed circuit showing, the network said. It also announced that it will not carry the program.

CBS-owned stations in Chicago and St. Louis elected to drop the show every case in evening hour when, presumably, children would not be watching, the network said.

The play depicts a physician who is on trial for having performed illegal abortions. During his trial he advocates legalizing abortion as a benefit to society.

COINCIDES WITH TEST

STOCKHOLM (AP)—A Swedish professor said today that an examination of the Stockholm Polytechnic University's seismograph showed that an earthquake occurred in the Pacific Wednesday exactly at the time of the U.S. nuclear test there. Professor Arne Bjerhammar said it probably was the first time an atomic explosion and an earthquake coincided.

Industrial Discontent Is Slowing Down Steamrolling Economy of West Germany

LONDON (CP) — A British journalist, reporting from Bonn not so many months ago, wryly observed that there hadn't been a strike in West Germany "since Adenauer was a boy of 70."

But now the 86-year-old chancellor and his able economics minister, Ludwig Erhard, are showing signs of concern that industrial discontent is at last, among other things, to slowing down the steamrolling German economy.

However, British business and finance observers are inclined to interpret what is happening in West Germany as more the end of a boom than the start of a slump.

The bomb that shocked the Germans into the realization that the boom could not go on forever was the recent warning by Bundesbank chief Karl Blessing that to avoid inflation, he did punch in his wartime currency he can ban on the building of luxury office blocks and other such buildings and, sometimes, more extreme measures unless he got WAGE RESTRAINTS

But the workers, having shown remarkable restraint during the last 10 years, apparently are in no mood to cooperate.

Said one of their leaders at a recent meeting: "Industry gets what Erhard says. You take what you can get."

Even in the rolypoly, cigar-smoking economics wizard was, he offered, painting a future darker than need be. Later he conceded, "it was necessary to give the German nation a shock."

The reasons for West Germany's enviable post-war recovery are many.

Gregor Vire, writing in The Daily Mail before the shadow of inflation started to move across Germany, said:

"The Germans have not had a strike worth talking about, sit-down, stand-up, go-slow, work-to-rule, or token, for any other has helped West German output and sales since the days of industry.

NO DEFENCE COSTS

But there is more to it than that. The Germans have not had the defence and foreign-aid costs borne by the British and have enjoyed millions of dollars of the U.S. nuclear test there. Professor Arne Bjerhammar said it probably was the first time an atomic explosion and an earthquake coincided.

UNION EXECUTIVE DIES

BRONXVILLE, N.Y. (AP) — Julius Emspak, former secretary-treasurer for the last 36 years of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America, died Thursday of a heart attack. Emspak was cited for contempt of Congress in 1949 because he refused to answer a congressional committee's questions about alleged Communist affiliations. The U.S. Supreme Court set the conviction aside in 1956.

N.Y. Mets Get Three Players

NEW YORK (AP) — In his first step toward remaking New York Mets of the National League, club president George Weiss acquired three new players Thursday, one by trade and two by purchase. At the same time, the Mets dropped two veterans.

The most important of the acquisitions is Sammy Taylor, a left-handed hitting catcher, a left-handed hitting catcher who came from Chicago Cubs in exchange for outfielder Bobby Gene Smith. The purchased players are catcher Harry Chiti from Cleveland Indians and pitcher Dave Hillman from Cincinnati Reds by way of Syracuse Chiefs of the International League.

The dropped players are veteran relief pitcher Clem Labine and third - string catcher Joe Ginsberg.

Taylor left the Cubs without permission earlier this week to join his family in Woodruff, S.C. He was suspended and then told the Cubs: "Trade me or I will quit baseball."

Taylor, 29, batted .238 last season, his fourth with the Cubs. He was hitting .125 in seven games this year.

Smith, .250 hitter with Philadelphia last year, batted .136 in eight games with the Mets this season. He was acquired for $75,000 in the expansion draft.

The Mets presumably paid $25,000 each for Chiti and Hillman.

Feminine Audience Wants Entertainment in Afternoon

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — The recent decision of CBS to reorganize its daytime schedule by lengthening two of its soap operas and adding an afternoon version of a popular night panel program shows what the feminine audience wants: Entertainment.

When television was young, programmers loaded the daylight hours with "service" programs. They figured women would leap at the chance to pick up cooking hits, see the latest fashions, learn how to arrange flowers, set tables or remodel last year's suit.

The ladies, it was soon obvious from the ratings, didn't want, that at all. The most popular lesson was learned by NBC with its Home Show, which was set up in departments, like a women's magazines, and covered the whole field of woman's interest The program was well done, won critical acclaim — and such small audiences it was finally cancelled.

"I still don't know why," said Arlene Francis, its star. "But I think that perhaps women just want to be entertained—not instructed—on television."

"I think that these shows failed because women want to have something they can refer back to for instruction," commented a network program head. "And, of course, that means magazines and newspapers."

TAUGHT THEM HOCKEY

"They were grateful to us because we showed them how to develop hockey talent and now it goes without saying that we'll be up against, and even need Canadian teams to world and Olympic competitions. They're showing our amateur clubs a thing or two on how to play hockey."

Ballard figures there's a parallel in soccer.

"The international football federation boosts that soccer is a world-wide sport, since it is played in 92 countries, but apparently its success to develop the game in Canada. Pro soccer in our country is a new sport and without help from the U.S. and Europe, they'll never have us as competitors."

The five - team ECPL has clubs in Montreal, Toronto, Hamilton and this year's Buffalo, N.Y. It had such stars as Stanley Mahaffey, Johnny Haynes and Danny Blanchflower at its initial attempt to put the pro game across in 1951.

These, and many more, played the game in Canada during the summer months and returned to their clubs in the fall. This year, European associations have clamped down on the players and they warned them they will not be allowed to return to their own clubs after a campaign in Canada.

MAY KILL SPORT

"They are taking a very narrow-minded attitude," Ballard says. "All of our clubs have minor teams. Players from overseas conducted clinics for more than 300 youngsters and it was conceivable that one or two of these would develop to the point where they could play pro hockey."

Beavers Nielsen Top Rookie

OTTAWA (CP) — Defenceman Jim Nielson of Kitchener Waterloo Beavers has been picked as the Eastern Professional Hockey League's rookie of the year, it was announced today.

Nielson, one of the top prospects in the Boston Bruins' organization, won the honors in a vote taken among sports writers and broadcasters in league cities.

Runner-up was Bill Masterton of Hull-Ottawa Canadiens, four points behind Nielson.

Harold Ballard remembers a few years ago when he took Canadian hockey teams to England and Russia and the people in those countries were happy to take lickings. "They picked our brains to develop talent and we were glad to help them," he says.

Now, Ballard is perturbed. The flow of top-flight professional soccer players to Canada has been stopped and Ballard, as president of the Eastern Canada Professional Soccer League, says the move will end soccer in this country.

More specifically, he means the move will finish the five-team ECPL, the first pro league in Canada.

"Ten and 15 years ago, I took Canadian hockey players to Europe and it was nothing for us to win by big scores, but they were amateurs and now we need Ballard who also is a co-owner of Toronto Maple Leafs in the National Hockey League.

TAUGHT THEM HOCKEY

"They were grateful to us because we showed them how to develop hockey talent and now it goes without saying that we'll be up against, and even need Canadian teams to world and Olympic competitions. They're showing our amateur clubs a thing or two on how to play hockey."

Ballard figures there's a parallel in soccer.

"The international football federation boasts that soccer is a world-wide sport, since it is played in 92 countries, but apparently its success to develop the game in Canada. Pro soccer in our country is a new sport and without help from the U.S. and Europe, they'll never have us as competitors."

The five - team ECPL has clubs in Montreal, Toronto, Hamilton and this year's Buffalo, N.Y. It had such stars as Stanley Mahaffey, Johnny Haynes and Danny Blanchflower at its initial attempt to put the pro game across in 1951.

These, and many more, played the game in Canada during the summer months and returned to their clubs in the fall. This year, European associations have clamped down on the players and they warned them they will not be allowed to return to their own clubs after a campaign in Canada.

MAY KILL SPORT

"They are taking a very narrow-minded attitude," Ballard says. "All of our clubs have minor teams. Players from overseas conducted clinics for more than 300 youngsters and it was conceivable that one or two of these would develop to the point where they could play pro

Pair Tops $30,000 Texas Open

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)— Two fellows who haven't won much lately on the United States touring golf trail — Bill Collins and Bob Shave Jr.—led the $30,000 Texas Open today but the ominous shadow of Arnold Palmer was there to give them the jitters.

Shave, 35-year-old virtual unknown from Willoughby, Ohio, and Collins, a veteran shot five-under-par 66 in the first round Thursday. Palmer had a 67.

Palmer, leading money-winner and seeking his third straight Texas Open title, was only six strokes off some true front-runners. But two holes tying for second place with Shave and Collins.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

It is all over now but the postmortems. The Pepsi's can hang up their gear for another year, arena manager Jack Dickens can park his water-wings, hose and shaver and start thinking of ice removal; "Smitty" can stow his sox going galoshes and heel-and-toe ice-picks, get himself a new Andy Capp and start reading seed catalogues.

It could and should have ended on a happier note for Pepsi manager Jean Paul Lamirande. He was kicked around by Dame Fortune and Lady Luck and when the big break was headed his way both these fickle dames turned their backs.

It was the fortunes of the hockey wars that the Pepsi's could not pull that much-needed victory out of the bag in Collingwood the other night when it was practically in their hockey mitts.

It was too bad because I believe local fandom was beginning to turn its hand and heart-office attention to the Pepsi's. A heartening crowd saw the Lamirande's hand Meaford a decisive defeat here last Monday night on a day's advertising notice.

I believe that had the Pepsi's disposed of the Meaford chaps and entertained Fort Colborne here tonight some 1,000 fans would have turned out to watch the inaugural battle. And it would have continued throughout the series giving Lamirande the financial break he so thoroughly deserved.

But the hockey fates deemed otherwise. With a shrug of the shoulder and a to-hell-with-him gesture they sent him down to seasonal oblivion.

It shouldn't have happened to a guy like Lammy who gave all he had to bring hockey to this city. He was upset with frustration, with a lack of competition and other heart-breaking setbacks. Any other 100 men in his position would have tossed in the sponge long ago.

He deserved a better break and a better fate. So did the fine guys who stuck by him until the obituary was written yesterday.

And Gordie Bell's fine young junior "B" Mc-Farlanes also deserve pats on the back. They came up with a fine brand of hockey to win the Eastern Ontario championship and battle the Waterloo Siskins, their semi-finals conquerors, in a ball-raking series.

Like any other hockey club they had their bad moments but these were more than offset by some brilliant efforts that turned the tide of victory their way.

It is no secret that the McFarland's lacked bench strength and had the proper calibre been available Coach Gordie Bell and his youthful Macs might have been in there battling in the Ontario finals.

Defeated, but not disgraced, the Macs brought hockey lovers here some choice entertainment. Rugged at times, perhaps they, in this reporter's opinion, could give some of the teams they met a few lessons in sportsmanship.

THEY'RE OFF

Today and tonight the biggest exodus from the push-button centres of the district take off for trout infested (?) streams and lakes of the northern haunts. Not a few will wail and give the lady pickerel a try over the weekend.

The trout and pickerel season opens at 12.01 tomorrow morning—the trout general, the pull-eyes hunting restricted to the Bay of Quinte and May Bay.

Reports have it the pickerel lovers have the best of the natural breaks . . . ice is in the northern lakes and water levels are below normal in-the trout streams.

Picton's big Pickerel Derby opens at the same time and closes Sunday afternoon at 2.00 p.m. Plenty of good prizes with a 5½ H.P. outboard tops for non-residents of the county.

You must register at the Picton Bay Marina in Picton and if you want good on-the-spot accommodation try Curly Boulter's fine Quinte Cabins at the head of the Long Reach. Good meals, good beds, good everything.

Entries From Many Centres

'Lifters' Meet Saturday

Top lifters from Ontario and Quebec will be competing in the 1962 Open Weightlifting meet scheduled for the YMCA gym here Saturday.

Thirty entries are in today from Quebec City, Montreal, Ottawa, Kingston, Sudbury, Toronto, Brantford, Woodstock and Belleville. About 25 more entries are expected before the meet gets underway at two o'clock.

Local lifters taking part in the meet include Belleville flyweight champ Brice Morris, Canada's middle heavyweight champ John Lewis, lightweight Joe Lewis, middleweight Bob Lansdowne, heavyweight Bruce Plentiff, featherweight Roger Taylor and middle heavyweight Jerry Vickers.

Several of the competitors in this meet are expected to go on to the British Empire Games in Australia this summer, included among the entries is Mike Lipert of Montreal who was a member of the Canadian Olympic team. Lipert holds the light heavyweight records for the press and total lifts in the local.

Tommy Fedder's records, set in 1958, still stand in the bantamweight class but all other meet records have been established in either 1956 or 1959.

Tom Aaron 'Big Hank' One-Man Show

Leads Braves To 10-4 Win

By MIKE HATHEY
Associated Press Staff Writer

Imagine a king-size Hank Aaron. That's younger brother Tommie.

While Hank continued his efforts to shake a slump, Tommie drilled a single, triple and homer, drove in four runs and scored three himself in a one-man show that led Milwaukee Braves to a 10-4 National League triumph over Philadelphia Phillies Thursday.

It gave Tommie, 22, a 6-for-17 batting record and a .333 average in his bid to grab a regular berth alongside Hank, 28, bogged down at .250 with 11 hits in 44 at-bats. Hank was 1-for-3 against the Phils.

Tommie, who outweighs Hank by about 25 pounds and appears about as heavy from any comparison with his elder brother, two years one of the biggest hitters.

"We're entirely different," Tommie says. "We don't look alike and we don't play alike. Hank's a right hitter and I'm not. We just don't do anything the same, I think that's the best way. If I can, I want to make it on my own, not because my brother did."

In his 32th season in organized baseball, Tommie is trying to move up from the Class AA, where he hit .329 for Austin of the Texas League. He also gave evidence of the Aaron power with 15 homers and 70 runs batted in.

Willie and Tommy Davis—no relation—each clubbed three hits in Los Angeles Dodgers' 13-5 victory over Chicago Cubs. Bob Gibson of St. Louis Cardinals lost his no-hitter in the eighth inning but went on with a two-hitter as the Cards edged Houston Colts 3-2 in the only other game scheduled.

The Braves put it out of reach in the fourth inning, striking for four runs—three on Tommie Aaron's homer. That gave Bob Handley (2-1) all the working room he needed, although Hank Fischer came on to finish up when Handley tired in the eighth. Phils' starter Jack Hamilton (1-4) was the loser.

Willie Davis hit consecutive homers in the sixth and seventh innings and got home run support from Frank Howard and Daryl Spencer as the Dodgers blasted Cub starter Dick Ellsworth (2-1) and four successors for 14 hits. Tommy Davis had a single, double and triple. Ron Fernandez (1-0) picked up the victory in relief.

Gibson had his no-hitter broken when Roman Mejias hit a pinch single in the eighth inning for a homer. One out later Al Heist singled for the only other hit off Gibson, a Cardinal rightslander, who had retired the first batter he faced since this year. Gibson had allowed a run-in the second inning on Frank Bolling's double and walked, moved to third on two infield outs and scored on a wild pitch.

The Cardinals picked up single runs off Ken Johnson (0-3) in the 2nd and 7th innings. Johnson, who had never been tagged out to be the winner in the eighth when Stan Musial singled in Curt Flood.

Smokies Take Allan Cup Opener

TRAIL, B.C. (CP) — Trail Smoke Eaters have launched their Allan Cup final series with a vengeance.

They showed plenty of polish and good positional play before 5,500 fans Thursday night as they belted Montreal Olympics 8-0 in the opener of their best-of-seven series for the Canadian senior hockey title.

The Olympics, who were formed last fall and stormed through their eastern playoffs, face the task of taking all the series games in Trail. The second game is set for Saturday night. Later dates have not yet been set.

The Olympics chose to open the game in bumping fashion and it held Trail to a 3-2 lead in the first period. But the strong - skating former world champions could not be held for long. It was 3-0 after the second period and the Montreal defence gave way for five goals in the third.

Terry Gruenar and Howie Horsley each scored twice. Harry Smith, Don Fletcher, Pinoka McIntyre and Ken Broderick added singles.

The Smokies took five of the eight penalties called by referee Hugh McLean, but it was a pair of back-to-back infractions early in the game that cost the Olympics dearly.

Centre Michel Labrosse and defenceman Claude St. Vincent were given a minute apiece midway in the first period, signalling a power-play drive by Trail. Labrosse left the game turned when Hornby scored the Smokies' first goal.

'Old Warhorse' Retires

Howe Is Adams 'Living Memorial'

By GERRY GREEN

DETROIT (AP) — Jack Adams, builder of one of the National Hockey League's most powerful dynasties in the 1950s, retired Thursday after 35 years as general manager of Detroit Red Wings.

Bruce Norris, owner of the Red Wings, immediately appointed coach Sid Abel to succeed Adams in the dual role of manager-coach.

Adams will remain available to the Red Wings in an advisory capacity.

"It was pretty much my own decision," said the 65-year-old former NHL player and coach who is enshrined in hockey's hall of fame at Toronto.

Adams' retirement after 44 years in the NHL came as a shock.

He is in robust health, and he announced his retirement at a press conference with his typically booming statements.

"My doctor has been after me to quit," said the grizzled, ruddy-faced Adams. "He is a good friend of mine and he was worried I'd keep working in and keep continuing always for one more year, one more year."

His retirement came one month after the Red Wings completed their season on the outside of the Stanley Cup playoffs for only the second time in 24 seasons.

"The failure this year had nothing to do with it," Adams said. "I never quit under fire and I'm not doing it this time."

In the 35 years Adams ran the Red Wings, they won seven Stanley Cup championships and 12 league titles.

The farm system the Red Wings built under Adams' guidance produced the greatest dynasties starting in the 1946-49 season. With such Adams-developed performers leading roles, the Red Wings captured an unprecedented seven straight NHL championships through 1949-55.

Detroit won the Stanley Cup in 1950-52-54-55.

"Our 1951-52 champions that won the playoffs in eight straight games were the greatest hockey club ever assembled," Adams said.

His greatest satisfaction was in the development of Howe, still a player at 34 and now the highest point producer in NHL history.

"Picking him out of a bunch of kids at training camp and watching him develop has been my greatest thrill," Adams said. "He's a living memorial to my career."

Adams came to Detroit in 1927, a year after the city joined the NHL.

He had been a star of the then fledgling Stanley Cup champion Toronto team when he became Detroit's manager-coach.

Adams continued his dodgit ball with the Wings after his coaching duties over to Jack Adams.

Adams said he believes the future is bright for the Red Wings.

"Our farm clubs have done a great job," he said, "and we'll be winning again soon in the NHL. Look, our two top junior teams—Hamilton and Edmonton —are going against each other in the Memorial Cup.

"The Detroit Cup. That shows we have a lot of good hockey players coming up."

Moved From Toronto

Cup Final For Hamilton

HAMILTON (CP)—A dispute over television rights ended Thursday with the Memorial Cup hockey finals being moved out of Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens.

The best-of-seven series between Hamilton Red Wings and Edmonton Oil Kings will open at the Forum here Sunday, with the next three games in Guelph the following Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday. The fifth game, if necessary, goes at Kitchener May 8.

Jack Roxburgh, president of the Canadian Hockey Association, made the announcement of the switch in a telephone call from his Simcoe, Ont., home.

Originally, all games were to have been played at Maple Leaf Gardens with television coverage by station CFTO-TV of Toronto.

Ken Bolhe, owner of the Red Wings and of Hamilton's station CHCH-TV, threatened legal action against the Gardens and the CAHA if CFTO did not share television rights with him.

Today, CFTO announced it would not be televising the series; CHCH-TV said it would cover all games.

RIDERS SIGN BACK

OTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa Rough Riders of the Eastern Football Conference today announced the signing of Canadian college draft choice Larry Shaw of the University of Western Ontario. Second In Two Days

Jets Blast Leafs 14-2

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

At you think Pittsburgh Pirates have been the scourge of the National League this season, consider what their Interna-tional League farmhands, Columbus Jets, have been doing to Toronto Maple Leafs.

The Jets whipped the Leafs 14-2 today against four Leaf hurlers in a 14-2 victory Thursday night. That made 26 runs and 30 hits for Columbus in two days against manager Chuck Dressen's mound staff.

For a team which had a .245 batting average, an exotic in the league crown last year, the Jets have been getting unusual large muscles. And Dressen, making his managerial comeback with the Leafs, must be wondering if there isn't an easier way to make a living.

Shortstop Jerry Buchek's two-run homer in the 10th inning made Atlanta's debut in the league a happy one as the Crackers beat Rochester Red Wings, 3-2. Roy Weatherly, Atlanta's third pitcher, retired Rochester in order in the ninth and 10th innings to pick up his first victory.

Duke Sarver fired a three-hitter and left-fielder Jerry Reuss her had a perfect night at the plate with 6-for-6 as Buffalo Bisons batted Richmond Virginians 18-6. The Bisons knocked out Richmond starter Al Downing with four runs in the first inning and continued the barrage against Jim Roostad, Dick Drumbaud and Paul Erickson.

Jacksonville Suns' 7-4 victory over Syracuse Chiefs was achieved on just six hits. Ken Lehman got help from Art Kay in the eighth as Jacksonville handed Syracuse its second straight loss.

Third Try For Cup

Oil Kings 'Bridesmaids'

By WALTER KREVENCHUK

EDMONTON (CP) — There's no stopping Edmonton Oil Kings when it comes to trying for the Memorial Cup and Canadian junior hockey title.

The Oil Kings are Western Canada's representatives in the Dominion final for a record third straight year. They meet Hamilton Red Wings in a best-of-seven series for the crown starting in Hamilton Sunday.

Edmonton first got to the city finals in 1954 but managed only one tie against St. Catharines Teepees.

In 1960, they lost in six games to St. Catharines and in 1961 they again lost in six games, this time to Toronto St. Michael's College Majors.

This season, the Oil Kings' record-setters are farm teams of Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League.

In becoming the first western team to win a Memorial Cup berth three consecutive times, Edmonton scored at a rate of one every 4.67 shots on goal during 16 playoff games. In this season, Defenceman Bob Dillabough paced the opposition to 34 goals and to a goal in every 11.3 shots on the Edmonton net.

WON 13

Edmonton won 13 of the playoff battles while pushing Calgary Buffaloes, Kamloops Rockets, Moose Jaw Canucks and Brandon Wheat Kings to the sidelines.

The Wheat Kings provided the only threat to Edmonton's march to success, carrying their best-of-seven semi - final series to the limit and handing the Kings their only playoff defeats.

Edmonton has developed strong, good backchecking forwards. Coach Buster Brayshaw stressed this after the tenacious checking that was the highlight of the Majors' victory here last year.

The Oil Kings' scoring punch is centered around Roger Bourbonnais and John Lanyshen, who usually operate on the same line.

Bourbonnais, a native of Edmonton and a veteran of Oil Kings' 1960 club, was the leading point-getter with 12 goals and 15 assists in playoffs this year.

Lanyshen, a Manitoba import who was a star with Oil Kings last year, is the leading goal scorer with 14. He has nine assists and is runnerup to Bourbonnais in points with 23.

DUTFORT NEXT

Phil Dutton, another veteran of the 1960 squad, is next in playoff scoring with 21 goals and 11 assists.

Lanyshen, Bourbonnais, Dutton and Vince Downey are the only forwards remaining from last year's team. Downey has six goals and nine assists in the playoffs.

The remainder of Edmonton's attacking units is filled out by Butch Paish, Harold Fleming and Greg Pilling, last year with Fort William Native Sons, and rookies Doug Fox, Glen Sather, Max Mestinsek, Reg Taschuk, Cliff Goodall and Ron Schwartzky.

Veterans Wayne Mulois, Jim Eagle and Larry Hale and Butch Barbor of Lethbridge make up the Oil Kings' defensive corps. They have provided good protection for goaltender Harrison Gray.

Gray, at one time considered the weak point of the club, has performed well in the playoffs.

Edmonton, without a junior league, gets its experience by playing in the Central Alberta Intermediate League. During the 1961-62 CAHL schedule, the Oil Kings finished fifth in the six-team circuit. They will be given plenty of opposition by the Red Wings, in the Ontario Hockey Association junior A series.

Ace Out For Week

Tigers Win But Lose Lary

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Staff Writer

Detroit Tigers may be in trouble, Frank Lary is not. And Tigers are not their best without Lary in top shape.

"He'll be out a week as far as we can tell right now," Tiger trainer Jack Homel said Thursday after the Detroit pitching ace failed to last two innings as the Tigers beat Kansas City Athletics 11-7.

Lary, who won 23 American League games with the Tigers last season, retired with an inflamed shoulder after allowing the Athletics a run in the first inning and four in the second. The Tigers roared back with a seven-run seventh inning to post their triumph.

Cleveland Indians defeated Los Angeles Angels 6-4, Boston Red Sox edged Washington Senators 8-7 and Minnesota Twins beat Baltimore Orioles 3-2. Chicago White Sox and New York Yankees were not scheduled.

FIVE THUMBS DOWN

Hank Aguirre (1-0), last of three Detroit pitchers, was socked for four consecutive hits rising and slopped the Athletics on one hit over the last four innings. He struck out four, going into the seventh, but sent 11 batters to the plate and seven hit safely. A two-run triple by pinch-hitter Bubba Morton put the Tigers back in stay.

Johnny Jiminez cracked two homers for Kansas City and Bobby Del Greco one. Tookie Gilbreath Gaines, who relieved Lary in the second inning, hit the first homer of his long career in the second.

Cleveland retained first place with its come-from-behind victory over the Angels. Willie Kirkland's two - run single in the seventh inning moved the Indians from behind a 4-3 count. Rookie Sam McDowell (1-0), 12-year-old lefthander, got the victory in relief, while Ryne Duren (1-2) was the loser.

Camilo Pascual (3-1) was tough when he had to be, stranding nine runners and striking out seven to going the distance for the third time this season for the Twins. Pete Runnels, Lenny Green, Boo Ah-Leon, Earl Battey and Pascual put the Twins out in front 3-0 in the second inning and they took it from there. Gus Triandos hit his fourth homer of the year for the Orioles.

Lee Clinton's two-out, pinch-hit single in the eighth inning drove in the winning run for Boston in a wild game with the Senators which produced 30 hits that had existed since the fourth inning. Chuck Cottier's three-run double in the third Carroll Hardy and broke a 7-7 was Washington's big hit.

Teener Cracks Six

Ten Swim Marks Broken

TORONTO (CP)—Don Sherry, 15-year-old member of Hamilton's Aquatic Club, smashed his sixth Canadian swimming record in the Ontario indoor swimming and diving championships Thursday night, then watched one of his marks beaten.

Ten Canadian and Ontario records were broken at the opening of the three-day event.

Sherry lowered the Canadian 440-yard freestyle record for boys 15 and 16 years by more than four seconds. He was timed in four minutes 39 seconds, 26 seconds ahead of second-place finisher Joe McCartney of Galt YMCA.

Then Sherry watched Mike Lachowicz of suburban Etobicoke break his 100-yard Canadian butterfly mark for boys 15 and 16. Lachowicz was timed in 1:03.6 and was trailed in second by Sandy Kennedy of London YMCA who finished in 1:07.0.

Greg Smolenski of the Westfield, N.J., Swim Club smashed the Canadian 200-yard breaststroke record for boys 13 and 14 by 8.7 seconds, winning in 2:36.7. The old mark was 2:43.4.

Louise Kennedy of London YWCA broke two Canadian records for girls 11 and 12, the 100-yard backstroke and the 50-yard butterfly. She was timed in 1:21.1 for the backstroke and 30.2 for the butterfly.

SETS TWO MARKS

Jim Shaw of Toronto set two Canadian records in butterfly and backstroke events for boys 11 and 12—the first coming in a trial heat.

He surpassed the 100-yard backstroke record in an afternoon heat in 1:11.2, winning the event in the evening in 1:14.0. His other record came when he won the final of the 50-yard butterfly in 30.6.

Other Canadian records were set by the London YMCA girls 13 and 14 400-yard freestyle relay team, timed in 4:26.2, and the Etobicoke Aquatic Club's boys 13 and 14 400-yard freestyle relay team, winning in 4:06.2.

An Ontario record was set by the Hamilton Aquatic Club's girls 15 and 16 400-yard freestyle relay teams, winning in 4:34.2.

A border of flowering shrubs and evergreens can provide beauty and privacy for your property. Add a walk or single tree to complete the picture. Your Nurseryman can suggest a succession of flowering plants for all seasons, assuring a continuously beautiful display.

'Show How' Plan Aids in Home Landscaping

When landscaping is considered by the home owner, he has one of three choices. I do all the landscaping himself, 2.
hire a professional landscape nurseryman or 3. try the newly-developed "show-how" plan, which is part professional and part do-it-yourself.
Hiring a professional is, of course, the easiest and best plan although it costs slightly more. Under both professional and labor charges are involved, in the long run, it proves to be economical. "getting the right plants in the right places" and giving the landscaping the most finished and most beautiful appearance at the earliest possible time.
The newly-developed "show-how" plan of landscaping, recently developed, has worked out obviously well for many home owners. Under this arrangement the landscape nurseryman actually will prepare a planting plan "on the spot" or from dimensioned blueprint by the home owner. This will show the proper relationship of plants to the house or area being landscaped. He will demonstrate to the home owner how to plant the trees or shrubs. After the demonstration, the home owner is on his own, usually with printed material having "tips" on landscaping and planting. With this plan the home owner has a sounder idea of what he is trying to accomplish.
In landscaping, the average home owner often lacks the ability to arrange the trees and shrubs in relation to the area being landscaped. He "plunks" the plants at random or to a plan or not, without bothering to stand back and observe the entire setting to see if the plant is in the right place before going on with the planting.
Actually a landscape plan is as much a planting list as it is a guide showing where to put things. A planting plan outlines the basic arrangement of plants to create a desired effect but many times the location of the plants has to be adjusted on the job rather than points strictly by plan. This is the reason for standing back and observing the entire area in relation to the site and to other plants.
Natural artistic ability often do very well in arranging the plants. There are few people who best can use the "do-it-yourself" plan. They merely discuss the problem with their landscape nurseryman first.
Trees and shrubs and other plants are moved about until they suggest what is to the home owner a beautiful picture
— what the landscape designer would have in mind. It's using their own judgment while much like constructing a house, others can't get along without an interior decorator.

The basic techniques of the actual planting process can be learned by any discreet individual by spending a half hour or so with a good nurseryman who will review especial points and recommend suitable planting pamphlets.
The saving for the home owner in partially or wholly planting his property is in labor charges. The professional planter at around four dollars an hour will do in one hour what it takes the average home three hours to accomplish. Many home owners, however, regardless of the time it takes them, get immense pleasure out of planting their own property. The work can be done in stages, first perhaps the foundation planting, then the outdoor living area and backyard scheme, and finally the service area.
Maintenance of the planting can be solved by the average home owner with the assistance of an established professional nurseryman. Added information will be found in the newspaper garden pages, nursery pamphlets, books, mail order nursery catalogues and government publications.
Landscaping is a highly-satisfactory hobby. Thousands of folk Canadian and U.S. have spent four years or more at a university and have had many years of experience. The more artist-ically-inclined home owner can try his hand and often do an excellent job. Perhaps it boils down to this: If you like to plant and arrange things yourself and have been successful at it, then try your hand at landscaping, but if you have no knack in such things either use the "show-how" plan or let a professional do it.

Most Ardent Nationalists Are Inclined to Concede, Grudgingly, Welsh Doomed

By ROD CURRIE

CARDIFF (CP)—The sign at the entrance of the Welsh Folk Museum says: "Dim Ysmygu—No Smoking."

This concession to the Welsh language is more sentimental than practical. Most Welshmen speak only English and even the most ardent nationalists are inclined to concede, grudgingly, that Welsh is doomed.

Despite the fact the language of the land is disappearing there is strong evidence it will survive, particularly as an art form, for many years.

Cardiff's two daily newspapers carry columns of news and comment in Welsh and programs in the language are sprinkled through the mainly English television and radio schedules. Welsh-only churches are common. There are a number of schools where only the native language is spoken and it is taught in others' schools.

WISHFUL THINKING

But all this has a ring of wishful thinking about it. At last count several years ago fewer than 700,000 of the 2,615,000 population said they could speak Welsh and fewer than 40,000 of these spoke Welsh only.

Even more indicative of the future of Welsh is the fact that among the Welsh-speaking the vast majority are middle-aged or older.

In a newspaper contest to find two Welsh-only children for a visit to Cardiff, the hunt went on for weeks and finally officials had to settle for two who spoke some English.

Lord Mayor Edward Fearce doesn't speak Welsh, nor does Lord Brecon, minister of state for Welsh affairs. At a recent Welsh concert the audience was mainly middle - aged; outside the younger set lined up for tickets to the following week's show by English jazzman Acker Bilk.

In industrial South Wales—the two of the 13 counties where two-thirds of the population are located—one seldom hears the language in every-day use. It is in the farming midlands and the mountainous north that pockets of Welsh-only survive.

'KISS OF DEATH'

Professor Brinley Thomas, head of the economics department of Cardiff University College, says the language has suffered partly through the working man's theory, well taken, that the best way for his son to "get ahead" is to learn English. In recent years, he says, Welsh has gained a certain degree of fashionableness and upper middle-class families are anxious that their children learn it.

And this elevation as a sort of status symbol, says the professor wryly, "is the kiss of death."

Language is but one of many conflicts between old and new that have been underlined by the industrial progress of the last 20 years.

Cardiff, a city of wide streets, modern office buildings and stylish shops, has an ancient castle beautifully preserved in one of the many city green areas.

A few miles from the heart of the city there are old thatch-roofed cottages in vivid contrast with high-voltage power lines rising high overhead.

There, too, sheep graze among the pylons of the towering new television transmitter.

NO NATIONALIST MPs

Dedicated members of the Plaid Cymru (Welsh Nationalist) party, who dream of Welsh self-government, see preservation of Welsh culture—particularly the language — as their strongest rallying point. Although it is an argument to touch the heart of most Welshmen, still the nationalists' political influence is diminishing.

In the last general election in 1959 the vote, roughly, was: Labor 800,000, Conservatives 300,000, Liberal and Nationalist about 60,000 each. The Nationalists have no representatives in the House of Commons but maintain some influence in local councils.

Dan Rowlands, youthful editor of The Western Mail of Cardiff, believes the swing from the nationalists has developed because of a greater recognition of Welsh individualism by the government in London.

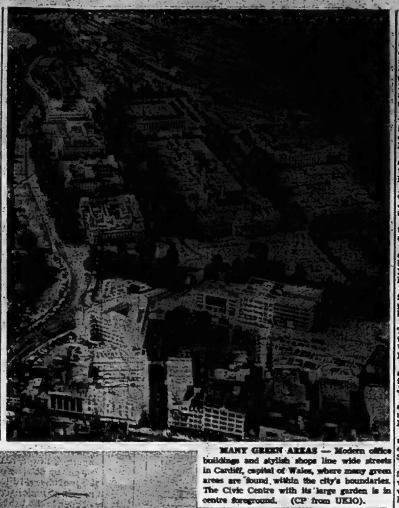
There now is a minister for Welsh affairs and there are several weekly "Welsh days" in the Commons for Welsh affairs. These concessions, coupled with Wales' new prosperity, have boosted the hopes of most Welshmen of maintaining the native personality — as have Scotland and Ireland—while remaining part of Britain.

TEMPERS FLARE

Still there are painful gaps. For instance, no Welsh MP is in the cabinet.

Feelings remain sensitive and tempers flare whenever it appears the English are taking the Welsh for granted.

Several years ago the Welsh became so incensed over a government plan to flood a community here to provide water for an English city that officials had to advise a cabinet minister to call off a visit because of threats to embarrass him. The minister didn't come—but the flood plan went through.



Again, a great outcry arose once when it was erroneously reported the Queen would be asked to speak at the National eisteddfod, a festival of culture. English spoken from the stage—even by an honorary bard of the eisteddfod — so shocked officials that several resigned.

The Queen, however, didn't speak in English, nor attempt Welsh.

Start Shipping Negroes North In Mass Monday

'Many as Want to Go' Will Get Free Tickets

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — One-way "Freedom Bus" rides to the North and West for dissatisfied Negroes will resume on a mass scale Monday, a director of the sponsoring New Orleans Citizens Council said Friday night.

"We're ready to send as many as want to go," added the director, George Singelmann.

Singelmann said Trailways officials had promised to make available as many buses as necessary shortly after noon Monday for points North and California. He said he had deposited $1,400 for batch of two or three buses expected to go.

He said he wouldn't know just how many would leave until they showed up at the bus terminal, but insisted that more than 100 Louisiana Negroes were waiting to make the journey.

Two Negroes left for New York on Friday night. They were Shelby Williams, about 27, and his wife. Singelmann said the Williams couple didn't want to wait until Monday because their rent in New Orleans was up tonight.

LATEST TO LEAVE

The Williams couple were the latest to leave. Singelmann said 114 had already accepted tickets under the program the council calls the "Freedom Bus" plan.

He said those who asked to leave by bus Monday included eight negroes and their 18 children for Los Angeles; a woman with three children for Oakland; and dozens of others for Washington, Philadelphia, New York and Chicago.

Singelmann said he had also reserved seats on the Southern Pacific train Sunset Limited leaving New Orleans for California early tonight.

Meanwhile, opposition to the "Freedom Bus" movement continued in various cities mentioned as destinations.

Mayor John Houlihan of Oakland said: "It is a sad commentary on humanity that these poor Southerners would take this action to get rid of unfortunate citizens."

Mayor Robert Wagner of New York said the sentiments of the Freedom Bus program were

"Beneath and beyond contempt."

"A total disregard for human life and dignity is reflected in this undertaking by the White Citizens Council of New Orleans in transport human beings like cattle as a raw publicity stunt. Their actions are so callous that they are making a tasteless burlesque."

Nonetheless, said Wagner, temporary emergency relief would be made available to these refugees from oppression and discrimination within our own land.

In Philadelphia, Thomas Burgess, executive director of the local branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said:

"These people will come here as strangers, and will walk the streets, when actually job conditions, along with housing conditions, are not as good, if not as bad, as they are in New Orleans."

STARTING GUN CATCH — Ron Kellar and Tom Bentley, both of Belleville, proudly display fine catch of pickerel hooked this morning at the mouth of the Moira River shortly after the fishing season started. The six pickerel ranged down from six pounds. In the background are seen a few of the 45 fishermen's boats which clustered the river mouth, south of the C.P.R. bridge.

Pickerel Fishing Fleet Gathers at Mouth Of Moira at Dawn, Enemy Losses Heavy

Dawn breaking over the Moira in a haze of crystal and mist, shafts exposed the largest armada of fishing boats ever to invade the Bay of Quinte off the Moira river mouth.

At 4.30 this morning as the warm light slowly leaked on the scene some 45 craft of all kinds were in action seeking their elusive pickerel.

The pickerel or walleye season opened for the fishing of Quinte and Hay Bay at 12.01 today. Inland waters including rivers emptying into the bay are not legal pickerel fishing grounds until May 15th.

The bay off the south side of the CPR bridge was a picture at dawn today. It was a hive of activity with boats of assorted sizes and types, from the lowly row boat to the highly motor-powered craft, all intent on one purpose.

Generally speaking the catches were good. The prize catch to fight off this morning was caught by Fred Carruthers of this city who landed a fine ten-pounder a short distance south of the Canadian National Railway Bridge.

The best collective catches up to that time were hauled in by Ron Kellar and Tom Bentley who used an Abu spinner with worm. They had six beauties ranging from six pounds down to eight.

Ted Hurst, Doug Bone and Harry Wardhaugh had four beauties, from six pounds down.

From the shoreline of Victoria Park this reporter saw several individual catches. Some reported no luck. The general situation is good in the bay off the river.

LINE SHORE

Boatless anglers sought the tasty fish-dish from the shoreline of Victoria Park. Youngsters by the dozen were angling with bamboo fishing poles and other paraphernalia, apparent from the cement piers of the bridge facing to the south.

The fairness to fishermen, anglers, it should be noted that not one single fish was seen fishing on the river side of the CPR bridge. This is illegal until May 12th.

The dawn lifted the curtain on the scene, the bay beyond the CPR bridge and as far as the eye could see was a placid as a mirror.

Many anglers had been out since midnight but the pickerel refused any pre-dawn snacks and waited until Nature sounded the breakfast call shortly after the silver haze of daylight flooded the waters. Many an angler had "Breakfast Off the Moira." As the dawn broke the "midnight-ers" broke their fast. But there was not a nibble until daylight illuminated the water.

Two anglers from Bancroft who trekked down to the bay area for the pickerel opening said the trout season which opened this morning brought a horde of out-of-town anglers to the northern haunts.

The Joint was jumping from noon Friday," said one pickerel.

Where they came from I do not know. But from our observations and knowledge of water and other conditions the trout will be conspicuous by its absence. That is why we are down here pickerel-hunting."

P.M. in Home Riding For Nomination Meeting

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

There was a time when the land weather used to be considered a sizable factor in a Canadian election.

In the current campaign it can lead only to confusion.

Take for example Friday. The national weather map charted hurricane - force winds, snow, sleet, rain, cloud, sun and a record - breaking heat wave.

On the hustings around the country politicians matched the vagaries of the elements with equally varied programs of speech-making, hand - shaking and organizing.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker toured familiar Prairie territory, ending up in his home constituency of Prince Albert. Liberal Leader Pearson barnstormed his way by helicopter, car and boat through Newfound-

CRIME INQUIRY CLOSED UNTIL RULING GIVEN

Toronto Lawyer Wins Appeal

TORONTO (CP)—Session of the Ontario royal commission on crime were cut off Friday until the province's Court of Appeal rules on whether three men deeply involved in the inquiry are entitled to full legal representation before the commission.

Toronto lawyer Walton G. Ross won an order from three of the court judges directing the royal commissioner, Mr. Justice W. D. Roach of the same court, to submit the question to the full bench for a ruling.

Until the issue is settled by the province's top judicial court, commission hearings are automatically suspended. First one is called off was a secret session scheduled for Friday afternoon.

It may be about 10 days before resumption of the sittings, which opened March 26. Commission counsel Roland F. Wilson said after a brief court hearing Friday he has been assured the court proceedings will be expedited.

Mr. Rose has sought unsuccessfully before the commission to examine witnesses and call his own counsel to call his own behalf—Lambert Joseph McDermott and Vincent Feeley and an unidentified "Mr. X." who appeared before the commission at a secret session.

TURNS THESE DOWN

Last week Mr. Justice Roach turned down the lawyer on three occasions when he made request for a transcript of the examination of Mr. X—and he also rejected Mr. Rose's request that he send High Court a "stated case" on a ruling. Friday's order directs the commissioner to put these questions before the court.

It took the three-judge panel under Mr. Justice R. M. Laidlaw only 10 minutes to grant Mr. Rose's application in a unanimous decision without any brief argument. No reasons were given.

Liberal party counsel Stanton Begg and New Democratic Party counsel Andrew Brewin opposed Mr. Rose's application, declaring Mr. Justice Roach had acted within the discretion given a royal commissioner. Both parties said they will take right to question commission a step-by Mr. Wilson did not take side.

The court action may mean the end to much actual lost time for the royal commission. For example, Friday, 15 witnesses called only Friday afternoon at the secret session, and next week it had planned to subpoena African republics, all former French colonies. Justice Roach has court commitments home, Niger, the Ivory Coast for the remainder of the week and Upper Volta.

TV DEBATES BY LEADERS WON'T HAPPEN

Pearson's Challenge Starts Argument

OTTAWA (CP) — The first real argument of the young election campaign is embroiling all four party leaders was a surprise one—Liberal Leader Pearson's challenge to Prime Minister Diefenbaker for a face-to-face debate on television and radio of the election issues.

Mr. Diefenbaker's retort that he was "not interested in providing TV audiences for others" ruled out any chance of Canadians seeing debates similar to those between John Kennedy and Richard Nixon during the 1960 U.S. presidential campaign.

As proposed by Mr. Pearson, the debates would be limited to the Conservative and Liberal chieftains—the leaders of the only two parties who have any chance of forming a government."

But T. C. Douglas, New Democratic Party leader, and Robert Thompson, Social Credit leader, lost no time in getting into the picture.

MUST INCLUDE ALL

Mr. Douglas said such debate, to be of value, must involve all four party leaders now seeking country-wide support.

Mr. Thompson took a different tack, wiring Mr. Pearson: "Do not be too unhappy if the prime minister's refusal to debate with you issues us both. I will."

In Canada, where TV got under way in 1952, party leaders have never appeared in joint debate on the airwaves. Their common platform, when they do come into to face, is the floor of the House of Commons.

Mr. Diefenbaker said at a press conference that Mr. Pearson had his chance to debate the election issues in the Commons.

Our system is different from the American system," he said. "We meet in constant debate in the leader of the opposition in the Commons and not out in the country. That's where the debating is done. In the United States that isn't so."

CRITICIZE FM

Mr. Pearson and Mr. Douglas promptly criticized the prime minister for not agreeing to face-to-face TV debates.

The Liberal leader said Mr. Diefenbaker's reply that he wasn't interested in providing TV audiences for others was "conceited and almost arrogant." Mr. Douglas said "this hat the broadcasters are right," adding "we can attract our own audiences."

Rusk met for 90 minutes on Friday with Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin, then refused to say anything afterward about the details of their discussion. The state department would say only "they discussed Germany and Berlin" and covered a wide range of subjects related to those topics.

The tone of the talk was described by U.S. officials variously as "constructive, businesslike, friendly and relaxed. Aides said that Rusk did not make any specific new proposal for a Berlin settlement.

U.S. Rejects Red Proposal To Ban War Propaganda

Violates Constitution On Freedom of Press

GENEVA (Reuters) — The United States turned down a Russian proposal to ban war propaganda on grounds the nine - point plan goes against U.S. constitutional rights of freedom of the press.

American delegate Arthur Dean also charged that the Russian declaration itself "smacked a bit of propaganda."

"We cannot be a party in faith to a declaration which . . . purports to commit us to an unconstitutional procedure," Dean told the plenary session of the 17-nation disarmament conference.

The Russian plan called for governments to condemn all calls for war or the use of force to settle any international disputes and to use information outlets to promote "friendly relations among states."

Russian delegate Valerian Zorin showed the conference a leaflet put out by the American National party calling for war against Russia and said that it was an example of the type of propaganda which should be banned.

Truck Companies Give up Plan to Crash Picket Lines

MONTREAL (CP) — The International Brotherhood of Teamsters (Ind.) appeared to have won at least one round of its truck-driver strike against eight Montreal trucking firms with the announcement Friday that the companies will stop trying to cross union picket lines until Monday.

The announcement came after a violence-filled day that saw northend Cote de Liesse Road in suburban Dorval turned into a minor battle-field. Strikers hurled rocks at police action to control mob activity in the dispute.

The violence spread to new heights when two huge transports tried to run the gauntlet through a union picket line at the Smith Transport Company depot and were met by a surly, angry mob of 200 men hurling rocks, bottles, bombs, bricks and anything else they could lay their hands on.

Police, trying to force Provincial and Dorval police constables assigned to guard the depot, responded with tear-gas shells and volleys of warning shots.

Despite the gas shells, the first truck burst into flames just outside the depot. The second slid to a stop right behind it.

At least two unidentified men were injured, one of them when he tried to jump on the truck's running board.

Police, trying to free the drivers and rescue Imbler from burning truck, pumped tear-gas shells into the roaring mob and fired more than 20 warning shots in the air.

Ironically, the police a few minutes to free the men from the burning truck because the outside door handles had been removed so the mob could not open the doors.

When they were finally opened, police formed a flying wedge to get the men to safety and the tumult calmed down as the mob moved back to the south side of the boulevard where it had been camped.

In Quebec City, Attorney-General Georges Lapalme said he had ordered an immediate investigation into the violence.

Shall never fade away.

Nurses May Seek Legal Bargaining Powers With Hospitals, Other Firms

By DOUG GREYLING

TORONTO (CP) — The Registered Nurses' Association of Ontario was called on Friday to seek legal bargaining powers in disputes with hospitals and other employers.

The male nurses' committee of the association claimed present voluntary methods of negotiation are not effective and "many agencies do not honor the association's standards."

More than 1,000 delegates to the association's annual convention unanimously adopted a resolution calling on a special committee to investigate the situation. It has powers to recommend the association take on legal bargaining powers.

The association's 26,000 members have rejected suggestions that it should seek the right to strike under the Ontario Labor Relations Act. A number of delegates favor a form of compulsory arbitration.

SUPPORT ACTIONS

Delegates Friday also unanimously supported the actions of a special committee responsible for persuading the government to pass a new nurses' act at this session of the legislature.

The bill has still to be proclaimed. It sets up a college of nurses to control nursing education and practice in the same way the college of physicians and surgeons controls doctors.

Members of the college will be drawn from the registered nurses' organization and the Association of Certified Nursing Assistants of Ontario.

Blanche Cunnaston, director of the Nightingale School of Nursing, Toronto, is the association's new president. Jenny W. Weir, director of the School of Nursing, Queen's University, Kingston, is the vice-president and Sister Mary Francis Desales, director of the School of Nursing, St. Michael's Hospital, Toronto, is the second vice-president.

TRY TO CASH IN

At one of numerous study sessions Friday, the nurses were advised to "cash-in on the good work for things needed such as the Ben Carey and Dr. Claire Brown bills."

Harvey W. Adams, director of information for the national health and welfare department, told them:

"Develop the knack of taking your public pulse. Let the community know the part you play in life."

Non - professional staff spend more time with patients than registered nurses in Ontario's chronic and general hospitals, according to a survey conducted in 26 provincial hospitals.

Results of the survey were presented at the convention. It was conducted by four consultants attached to the Ontario Hospital Services Commission.

The report says: Nurses are occupied with other duties that can be carried out by non-professional staff.

Approve Pact For Attendance Counselling

The provision of school attendance counselling services, the pension plan for permanent employees, and the general progress of the Children's Aid Society were amongst the major topics under discussion at the society's monthly meeting held at the Corby Public Library this week. Mrs. James H. Forrester, president of the society, conducted the meeting.

The president commented on the report of a recent three-day inspection of the society's child care department by Mr. R. H. Lumsden, a supervisor in the child welfare branch of the Ontario Department of Public Welfare. The report concluded with the following remarks: "Your board, your local director and staff have been working consistently and successfully in strengthening and refining the services to children in care. You are to be commended on the standards already achieved and on your motivation to provide increasingly effective services."

Mr. Bruce Kerr, the local director, reported that at the end of March there were 167 children in the care of the society, an increase of 17 from the beginning of the year. However, a few children were but temporarily in care and that April should see a substantial reduction. Sixteen children were admitted during March, six from Belleville, four from Hastings County, and six from Trenton. Two parents were charged with leaving children unattended for an unreasonable length of time, convicted in family court and fined. "We will not condone children being left alone," Mr. Kerr said, "and every case brought to our attention is dealt with in this fashion."

The Board gave approval to the signing of agreements with the Bay of Quinte District High School Board and the Belleville Public School Board in respect of the provision of school attendance counselling services with Mr. Kerr, as school attendance officer. The society now provides attendance services to the 1,500 children enrolled in local public and secondary schools.

On the recommendation of Mr. Linton Read, chairman of the personnel committee, Alderman George Wishart introduced a resolution, seconded by Thomas Colden supporting the establishment of a new pension plan and group welfare plan for all full time employees of the society.

In commenting on the proposed plan, Mrs. Forrester, the president, said "This should help us to retain trained staff by offering a greater measure of present and retirement security."

It was announced that the recently founded continuing education trust fund had already received $910, from three donors. This fund is to be used to assist former wards over the age of 18 to continue their educational studies.

Mrs. R. H. G. Cunningham, in the absence of Mrs. E. E. Pollwell, the convener, said that the last meeting in the present series of foster parents meetings was to be held in Education Hall at the Belleville General Hospital on May 7 at 8.00 p.m. The guest speaker will be Dr. Isabel Laird of Queen's University.

Senior Citizens Apt. Block To Be Opened

TRENTON — On May 8th, Trenton will play host to a number of important personages on the occasion of the official opening of the town's first senior citizens' apartment block.

It is expected that the Ontario Minister of Public Welfare, the Hon. Louis P. Cecile, Q.C., will be on hand to witness the cutting of a satin ribbon by one of the elderly tenants.

Invitations have been extended to Lee Grills, M.P.; Elmey Sandercock, M.L.A., and the Ontario Minister of Planning and Development.

Arthur Musgrove, the president of Twin Pines Senior Citizens' Apartments Ltd., under whose patronage the Trenton block was erected, will attend, and Mayor James MacDonald, Rev. J. G. Clancy and a representative of the Trenton Ministerial Association will have a part in the opening ceremonies.

Events will tee off with a luncheon at the Gilbert Hotel. The opening ceremony at the apartment block, (located at the corner of Wragg and Division), will commence at 2:30 p.m. Following speeches, those present will be invited to tour the building. Tours ready installed will welcome visitors into their apartments.

The opening will see a dream come true for Gordon Davis, Trenton's welfare administrator, who has worked day and night for the past two years to make the low-rental apartment a reality. Mr. Davis has overcome almost insurmountable difficulties in his effort to supply the town with this type of accommodation and he hopes that this building will be the forerunner of several such units.

The public has been extended a cordial invitation to be present at the opening ceremonies.

Small Utility Room Burns, $2,500 Damage

TRENTON — Shortly after noon on Friday, fire of undetermined origin swept through a small utility room at the rear of a frame house at 18 Wilson Crescent in Trenton, occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth McLean and their four small children. The house itself is owned by Alec Webb who lives next door.

Only the quick action of the Trenton firemen sent to the scene averted a more serious fire. At one time, the rear section of the roof of the dwelling was ablaze. Neighbors moved the couple's furniture out onto the lawn when it was feared the fire might spread to the front part of the building.

Lost in the fire were an automatic washer, a dryer and a deep freeze.

A tentative estimate of the loss incurred, plus smoke and water damage, was around $2,500.

Mr. McLean, who is a member of the RCAF, his wife and the children, two of whom are of school age, were not in the house when the fire started.

It's All Right to Burn the Bushes Now But Please Don't Scorch the Pies Later

Tame fires produce the best blueberries.

Most people realize that the Ontario Lands and Forests people are quite interested in keeping down forest and brush fires to an absolute minimum, but few, possibly, know that there tame people also set controlled burn, the Lands and Forests people handle the organization and supervision of the project. Careful attention to details and weather conditions ensures that the burn is carried out at a time when it will not harm the soil and the flames do not get out of control. An aircraft patrol is made of the burns to observe the progress of the fire and to advise those on the ground where attention might be required in a "hot spot".

The areas are relatively famous for their blueberries. Fleguel advises and many people depend on this industry as a cash crop for their livelihood.

With the township providing the labor necessary for a controlled burn, the Lands and Forests people are quite willing to burn the bushes for the berry pickers. This past week the Lands and Forests people at Tweed have started off a total of 1,500 acres of land in the townships of Kaladar, Kennebec and Sheffield. There has been a purpose to all this, of course. In this case these fires are set to prune the blueberry bushes of the area. Through this form of pruning the older bushes get burned off and younger, more vigorous and productive plants get a chance to grow.

There are 9,000 acres suitable to blueberry production situated in the townships mentioned, with about 3,000 acres in each. Through an arrangement between the Lands and Forests department and the township authorities, controlled burns are conducted each year about this time so that every acre devoted to the blueberry industry is burned off once every six years.

Such an operation is quite cheap, especially when compared to the cost of the same activity in the event of a wild fire, only 50 cents an acre as against $15. an acre for the latter.

Father Set Fire Which Burned Three Children

SEATTLE (AP) — Three children of James Miller died Friday in a fire at their home and police said the father admitted he set if while ostensibly on a business errip.

David Miller, 3, and Patty, 1½, died in the blaze. Their 14-year-old sister, Jane, was critically burned and died later in a hospital.

Mrs. Miller and two other children escaped through windows. Police did not disclose any motive.

Trenton Wing Elects Pres.

TRENTON — This week, William Menzies was elected to the presidency of 413 Trenton Wing of the RCAF Association. Leonard McGaughey is the retiring president.

Following his election, Mr. Menzies spoke briefly to the Wing members, reiterating his views on Canada's defence policy, stated at an association conference last month. The group passed a resolution at this conference, to the effect that the association be asked to advocate nuclear arms for Canada as a deterrent to war. This resolution was forwarded to the association at provincial level.

This weekend, more than 150 Hi-C club delegates from points in the Bay of Quinte Conference of the United Church of Canada, will attend a Tally Ho King Street United Church.

Paul Hensen, president of the host club, will welcome the delegates.

Rev. Claire Smithrin has fallen the task of billeting this large group of young people in private homes, and Margo Greer has had the equally exacting job of registering the delegates.

Sunday morning, the delegates will attend the King Street Church in a body. Sunday evening, they will be the guests of the Young Peoples group of St. George's Anglican Church.

A Telling Observation

Out in De Borgia, Montana, the Keenans run a combined restaurant, post office and service station.

When company comes to call, they close up the restaurant and service station. "You just can't do two things at once," says Bill Keenan.

The Keenans were not always this leisurely They once lived in New York, where Bill Keenan was a home builder. They know all about hustle and bustle—but they have forsaken it.

It is not surprising that a family with this kind of outlook on everyday living would have a different way of looking at other problems besides their personal ones.

A Keenan made visit we consider an exceptionally penetrating observation during a recent interview.

"Youngsters graduating from high schools today have been under constant cold war talk every year of their lives," he said.

Older people are apt to forget—or to fail to ever realize—that simple fact.

Most of us take some of the cold war talk with a grain of salt. But can we be sure that a similar healthy scepticism will provide the necessary leaven when a member of the younger generation forms his or her judgments? Or perhaps, on the other hand, he may be tempted to dismiss it all as just another quirk of old fogeys.

The almost inescapable conclusion is that it is almost impossible for a member of the older generation, without deliberate and extensive study, to comprehend the mental processes of younger people.

Some may say that this is nothing new. It is not, in the sense that a similar situation was present 40 years ago in Russia where there must have been a deep cleavage between those who had always lived under communism and those who could remember a different economic and political system. The same would hold true of Italy, where Mussolini's Fascism lasted long enough for young people to grow up knowing no other system. Today, in Spain, there will be those who will regard Franco's dictatorship as the normal form of government. The same holds true in Portugal under Salazar.

But all this does not mean that this atmosphere is desirable. It is merely to recognize that it has produced serious myopia amongst the Russians. If the effects are less likely to be serious here, it is only because the propaganda has never been so virulent. But it must have had some effect.

There will be those who will say that each generation has been raised under a different condition from earlier ones. To some extent that is true—but the cold war has now lasted so long that one has to go back several generations —to the time of Napoleon at the least—before one can observe a time when the western world faced the same identical threat for such a lengthy period.

Hopeful Innocent

Hope, which in lesser men merely springs eternal in their breasts, must run rampant throughout every nook and cranny of Hon. Eric Martin, Minister of Health for British Columbia.

How else explain the fact that, on the occasion of the proclamation by the B.C. Government of "Non-Smokers Day," the honorable gentleman should declaim: "It is my hope everyone in B.C. will refuse to smoke?"

If Mr. Martin knows anything about smoking—and perhaps he does not for he is a non-smoker—this hope of his must be as devoid of expectation as a fish is of fleas.

There is as much chance of smokers avoiding smoking on "Non-Smokers Day" as there is of Cancer Society Day curing all cancer sufferers for 24 hours or Retarded Children's Day giving all subnormal children full mental powers for its duration.

Most smokers do not smoke because they want to, but because they have to—they are addicted. The only sensible reason for there enduring a day without the weed would be the hope that they could shake the habit.—but most of them know from bitter experience it is beyond their ability to do so.

The only kind of campaign against smoking which makes sense is a campaign to discourage the young from becoming addicts. The persons best equipped to organize such a campaign are not non-smokers, like the over-hopeful health minister from B.C., but the two-pack-a-day men, who have been waking up every morning for the past two or three decades with their mouths tasting as if they had spent the night chewing dirty socks.

Razzle-Dazzle Election Campaign About to Begin

BY RICHARD JACKSON
(from The Ontario Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA — Well, with the Easter "holidays" over — the political leaders have spent them campaigning, but said it didn't really count — the electioneering show gets on the road next week. For real.

And what a show it's going to be!

With the two original political "in-a-gg boys," John Diefenbaker and Mike Pearson starring, it is going to be a razzle-dazzle spectacular, a contest in color for crowds, a hectic hassle for headliners, a fine, free-wheeling frolic of fun and fireworks.

This time, more than ever before, each party will make its campaign a nationally staged one-man organization.

And what a couple of star-spangled political stunt-men as headliners.

Both are specialists in the fine art of dispensing the charm.

Both have endless energy and determined drive.

Both will run their aides around a merry merry-go-round, a caravan clear into the ground.

And both will finish on the Montreal-before Monday election day—seven long and exhausting weeks away — in a state of grey-faced fatigue.

ENDURANCE CONTEST

Shakers and shakees, the two men will be close to a state of collapse.

For one of the frightening things about these campaigns — and this can be stated as a firm fact from the driver's seat first-person viewpoint of somebody who has been close five of them from close-up in the fast-driving entourage of either the Prime Minister or the Opposition Leader — is that the party leader becomes captive to his managers.

He is like the fighter in the ring, bathed in the limelight, but dependent on his seconds, his managers and a ring-side full of advisers.

He goes where they tell him, speaks where they suggest he speak, skips there, does this and not that, acts as the board of strategy dictates.

In 1957 and even in '58, the Conservative campaign brain-trust all but killed John Diefenbaker before he got off the dead run, day and most of the night, for eight straight weeks.

Mike Pearson had it just a shade better, but only because the Liberal campaign organization was less shattered by "Uncle Louis"—St. Laurent's unexpected announcement — and good the new leader was, John Diefenbaker was driven.

HARDENED NOW

From long, exacting practice, John Diefenbaker can stand now in one day—for the 18 hours and shake 3,000 hands, with a word and a smile for everyone.

People move as if on an assembly line, and the managers and organizers speeding them up so that they clog by the front at the rate of one per 20 seconds.

This is an art.

The hand, even hardened to it, becomes swollen and the arm aches.

But it makes votes, or so they say.

Mike Pearson, too, can put it on the personal basis, moving through the crowds, developing grins and quips on an intimate just-between-you-and-me individual basis.

His greeting takes but a second or two, but it is done with such warmth and sincerity that he singles out each one for special attention.

This is quite a trick, almost a magician's.

So John Diefenbaker and Mike Pearson will be conducting what amounts to an intensely personal one-man campaign on a coast to coast scale.

Both men are masters at the business of winning friends, influencing people and spellbinding voters. You have to be pretty good to win millions of votes. And they are and have.

Each has his own individual style and with it each strives to be the perfectionist.

STYLISTS

John Diefenbaker denounces. Full of fire and sometimes fury, he transforms a campaign into a fighting crusade.

His voice rings with scorn, his accusing forefinger outthrust have become trademarks.

His will be attacking the Liberals, the NDP and the Social Credit—rather than defending the Conservatives.

This is the role in which he is at ease. The role he prefers.

Mike Pearson takes the lofty approach.

Easy and affable, he drifts around a campaign meeting and becomes almost one of the crowd itself.

Although both men in the 1962 campaign warm-up have been in progress since back last September have been undergone a subtle shading of their roots character.

John Diefenbaker has become more relaxed, less of the zealot. There is just a suggestion of a chatty over-the-back fence neighborliness in his style. But it is still just a hint.

And Mike Pearson has hardened up just a bit. You can detect the tightening of the chin in his voice. He is less ready to be the man of sweet reason, more ready to counter-attack. He hasn't yet become the hell-for-leather attack-dog which Diefenbaker has always been — but he is getting the feel of it.

Stand back, folks. Round one is opening.

Ban Burial Of Murderer

Guelph Mercury

One of the darkest periods in a public body was reached at a meeting of the board of trustees of the Bayfield cemetery voted against allowing the body of a convicted murderer to be buried in a family plot beside three children of the family in infancy. Since the decision of the board the Dominion Cabinet has refused to grant clemency to one of life imprisonment and the execution procedures are over for now.

Here was a case where the rights of members of the community plot years to reflect public opinion against the murderer's family. No matter what the situation, should this man be refused burial in the family plot? Death is inevitable. What is the point of the decision of this board be when the inevitable occurs?

Surely there is not so much badness in anyone, that he is not entitled to the prayerful last rites of a civilized society.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

MOOD OF HOPE

In the next to the last chapter of the Book of Revelation the writer, John, declares that he saw, "a new heaven and a new earth: for the first heaven and the first earth were passed away and there was no more sea. And I John saw the holy city, New Jerusalem, coming down from God out of heaven prepared as a bride adorned for her husband. And I heard a great voice out of heaven saying, Behold the tabernacle of God is with men, and he will dwell with them, and they shall be his people, and God himself shall be with them, and be their God."

God's disclosure of Himself ends with the assurance that the greatest of earthly glories is far surpassed by heavenly glories. Furthermore, these heavenly glories are destined to descend at last upon this imperfect order of ours and transform it. The first heaven and the first earth pass away. The holy city, New Jerusalem, comes down from God out of heaven prepared as a bride adorned for her husband. God dwells with men and they with God. Here is the climax — the consummation of all earthly existence.

In these days of nuclear testing and threatened bombing, let us try to look beyond to that climate — that joining together of earth and heaven — which the Bible declares will surely come. And let us always remember that the prevailing and justified mood of a Christian is hope.

Great Thrill To Barn-Born

Windsor Star

There is a phrase still attributed when youth shows its high spirits. We refer to a boy or girl "kicking up his (or her) heels." This phrase, of course has a rural background, the origin of which is apparent in sometimes.

This is the period during which lambs, calves, colts and other some colts appear on the Ontario farms. These often are seen in the stables and at a bowed out until the warm weather comes. Then it is a signal, indeed, to see them.

A monthold calf goes almost crazy when first let out in the field. It will run and jump and kick its heels in the air. The little lamb will do the same, jumping somewhat stiffing on its stocky legs. The colt, perhaps the most graceful of all, will caracole around in great, long leaps, its gaiety let out for the first time, will run around on their little legs.

All of which makes us wonder if animals do not have a greater capacity for the pleasures and its joys than do humans. Children, and even teenagers, have their outdoors games. But do they have the same absolute carefree fun-some play as does a young colt when it kicks up its heels in the freedom of the pasture?

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE PEACE OF DEFEAT

Sir W. Robertson Nicoll was an author and editor. English editor, who died in 1923, J. M. Barrie said of him that "he was a kind of books that I say sure he never saw a lonely one without wanting to put it and give it a sixpence."

I remember one day coming across a little book called "People and Books" by this writer and thinking it would be worth reading, so I took it home and read the first chapter. It was called "The Peace of Defeat."

But now what is the story? With the possible exception of Cowper, what other name in English literature are oftener read? Who wouldn't give up much that he might have a comfortable chair and a copy of "Elia" for his reading?

There are worse things in this world than disappointment and delayed recognition and appreciation.

The large majority of names in the history of art, literature, science, politics, and business are comprised from those who smiled under the pressure of "the peace of defeat."

As our lives lengthen we feel also more and more that we can ever, by the things that have endured, mould the life. There is nothing so fine and strong — full of inspiration and beauty — as a character that has mellowed and ripened under fire.

We find ourselves constantly falling back upon those who have understood us best and most. Those whose backgrounds contain shadows against the light.

The peace of understanding and of defeat go arm in arm.

Bed Board Recommended To Cure Sagging Mattress

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I read an item about whether to sleep on a soft or hard mattress if you have back trouble. The answer was that a firm one is best, and you can make a soft surface firmer by placing boards between the springs and the mattress. I would like information about the size of the boards. — Mrs. P.P.

"Back trouble" includes many different possibilities.

I recognize, however, that a firmer sleeping surface is frequently all that is needed to correct annoying but not critical back pains. And the size I know that thousands of times a doctor says, "Try using a bed board to stiffen the mattress a bit."

And when the patient gets home, suddenly he realizes that he isn't sure just what is meant by a "bed board."

That's just what your question signifies, isn't it?

Anything that keeps the springs from sagging too much, and prevents making you sleep in a saggy curve, is satisfactory for such a bed board. It could be several lengths of ordinary boards, so long as they are sufficient to stiffen the mattress.

But the hardest bed board is just a piece of ordinary 3-in. wood, or similar composition, or plain boards. And they also may extend your dining room table. You could get boards cut to the size of the mattress. Each mattress doesn't sag much at the head or the foot.

So, for practical purposes, a piece as wide as the mattress, and about four feet long is the other direction, is quite adequate.

A bed board is not an answer to "back trouble." What kind of back trouble? A damaged disc? Arthritis of the spine? A severe sprain? Or some other defect?

If there's a serious flaw, better secure competent advice. It should be diagnosed carefully and treated appropriately.

But there are countless people with minor back ailments, or people who wake up with aching backs in the morning because they have slept all night on beds that are too much. For them about two or three dollars worth of bed boards can do more than all the pills or liniments ever invented.

Anyway, that's the answer about the size of a bed board. As wide as the bed and about as long as the length from your head to your hips.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am 66 and bothered with a bit of gas on my stomach. I have had a stomach trouble for years and X-rays showed I have a peptic ulcer of the duodenum, which I have been taking pills for. Do ulcers ever develop into tumors? Is there any way of telling whether an ulcer is malignant, without a biopsy? None of my doctors has advised one. — CDS.

Duodenal ulcers are quite common. Having them become malignant is rare. (Stomach, as contrasted with duodenal, ulcers should be regarded with suspicion.)

If a duodenal ulcer does become malignant, this would be suggested by one or more significant changes: First, a change in the ulcerated area, which X-rays would show; blood in the stool, anemia, loss of weight. Evidently none of these signs has occurred in your case.

The gas may be due to a narrowing of the outlet of the stomach, due to scarring from the ulcer, or from some entirely unrelated factor, as a balky gall bladder, or just unobtrusive habit of air-swallowing.

Note to G.H.J.: No, you are mistaken. The sacroiliac is a joint, almost devoid of motion is rather small.

Fat. My leaflet, "The Lost Secret of Reducing," tells how to get rid of it the easy way. For your copy write to Dr. Molner in care of The Chicago Tribune Syndicate, P.O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill., enclosing a long, self-addressed, unstamped envelope and 10c in coin to cover cost of handling.

Statistics Cost Money

Woodstock Sentinel-Review

Not long ago delegates attending the Ontario Association of Rural Municipalities asked pointed questions regarding statistical reports on the thousands of reports that municipal and educational authorities are required to provide for the various levels of government each year.

What happens to the figures when they are sent in? Who uses them, and what do they serve?

The delegates asked these and many other questions — and well they might.

In recent years it would seem that no branches of government have been developed to such an extent as those devoted to the collection of statistics.

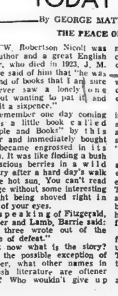
It would be interesting to know the exact dollars to be put the number of man hours devoted to compiling statistical information, and the amount of tax dollars it is costing. On the other hand, to raise such demand could only result in an increase in the army of people now engaged in the statistics business.

We don't suggest that all statistics are of little use. On the contrary statistical information, properly compiled forms the basis of much of our planning.

The questionnaires and statistics we provide about and which led rural municipalities to comment are those which ignore common sense and accepted procedures, and which too often require the assistance of rent in a government office to say to look up information already on file.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK



There was a public interview recently with a scientist who has made a life study of sleep and motion. One of the basic theories underlying this study was one of the major steps towards what we call mass automation. But during the interview, the scientist spoke as if the problem had not escaped from the factory and the mill, and was now a problem of concern in the social and domestic life of our nation.

How to employ our leisure, what new social structures must be conceived and set up so that no time is wasted in our existence: these are the thoughts that occupy the minds of our thinkers.

What is being overlooked, of course, is the fact that a good deal of time is intended to be wasted. Some of it is not only profitable as well as many of the happiest hours of our lives are spent in what we call, deliberately wasted time.

What you've got to grasp, to be able to do," said the wisest man I ever encountered, "is to use a thing absolutely, nothing, not even thinking."

A Lift For Living

Hemmed in by Own Littleness

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

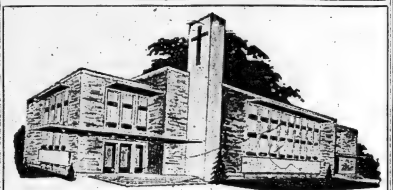
Do we feel hemmed in by our own littleness, by some cramping situation by the sufferings of our bodies? One thing the Lord can do for us is to enlarge the setting of our lives and thoughts.

A second thing He can do to lift us out of our littleness is to enlarge our natures. A large setting does not necessarily cure a little soul. It is most distressing to see a person occupying a prominent position and presenting an imposing front, and then on closer acquaintance to find that he has a little nature.

By a big nature we refer to that largeness of mind which lifts above the slavery of smallness, above pettiness, above pecuniousness, above little criticisms.

The Lord can enlarge our natures by making us magnanimous. William Hazlitt once said that of all the virtues, magnanimity was the rarest, for there are a hundred persons of merit to one who will acknowledge merit in others. It takes a big nature to be magnanimous enough to forgive those who injure us, but a man is below himself who is not above an injury. It was the ambition of Colton Mather to be able to say that he did not know of a man person who had done him an ill office and to whom he had not done a good one in return. The late Will Rogers is reported to have said, "I've never met a man I didn't like."

Perhaps the most difficult exercise of soul-enlargement is to be delivered from jealousy and envy. Jealousy is such a mean little sin. As William Sangster said, jealousy is a sin which does not fill up a gulf but gets into a crack. We are not often jealous of a person who is far ahead of us, but someone in our immediate circle who has outstripped us just a little. That is why jealousy so often gets into the same family, the same profession, the same social circle.



The Lord can lift us out of the littleness of jealousy by showing us how unworthy and petty it is, when there is so much room in the world for worthy effort and satisfying rewards. He enlarges the range of our comparisons so that we look beyond our rivals and take our measurements before God.

When the Lord takes hold of a life, He makes the person sit down with himself enough to know himself. And then He makes a person get out of himself enough to learn that we find ourselves by losing ourselves in something larger than self. The Lord makes a man study himself to learn what he is good for. The Lord makes a man take stock of himself to know what he is worth, portion to our investment and then to invest himself in life, in order to gain interest in life. And when we invest wisely, for our interest in life is in proportion we shall reap abundantly.

New Nursing Act Topic Of Importance at RNAO

The new Nurses' Act 1962, passed on April 17 by the Ontario Legislature represents legislation of widespread interest to the nursing profession in Ontario. The Act combines two previous acts which have been in effect since 1951.

A panel presenting information on the new legislation to set up a College of Nurses was a highlight of the Friday afternoon session of the annual meeting of the Registered Nurses' Association of Ontario, being held in the Royal York Hotel, Toronto.

CONTROLS NURSING EDUCATION

The College of Nurses will have control of nursing education and practice for both registered nurses and registered nursing assistants. The College of Physicians and Surgeons performs the same general functions on behalf of members of the medical profession. Bringing together registered nurses and registered nursing assistants is a step forward.

The legislation places within the power of the College the responsibility for the formulation of regulations for the approval and supervision of schools of nursing throughout Ontario; admission requirements, curricula, examinations, registration and discipline of members of both groups of practitioners.

For the past 11 years, there functions have been divided between the Registered Nurses' Association of Ontario and the Department of the Department of Health.

NOT NEW IDEA

The idea of registered nurses being responsible for their own education and practice standards is not new. This has been the rule rather than the exception in a number of provinces throughout Canada for many years.

Under the new legislation, the approval of schools of nursing will be part of the responsibility of the nurses of the province through the Council of the College. Previously, this responsibility was the only legal aspect of nursing which the nurses did not deal with.

"The RNAO will continue to function as the professional organization of registered nurses in this province", said Ella M. Howard, C.B.E., president. Although the Association will not be responsible for administering the Act, it will continue to provide important service to the public and all its members.

GREATER RESPONSIBILITY

"As the organization pledged to render service in the interests of the people of the province and to concern itself with the social and economic welfare of its members, the RNAO will have an even greater responsibility to formulate the goals and purposes of the profession, it was also given leadership to the College as the body charged with implementing minimum standards of nursing education and practice", Miss Howard added.

The RNAO will continue to be concerned with both the quality and quantity of nursing care available to the people of Ontario. The Association carries on an extensive program of education to improve the quality of nursing care through conferences and institutes for its members.

VOICE OF NURSING

The RNAO is the 'voice' of nursing in Ontario. Through its chapter and district network, nurses make known their ideas and opinions in professional matters. Through it also the nurses of the province join with nurses throughout the world through the Canadian Nurses' Association and the International Council of Nurses to improve the health of all people, no matter where they live or what their culture.

All members are requested to bring to that meeting any articles they have for the bazaar, also their donations to the basket of groceries for the door prize at the euchre.

Japanese Steam Bath Causes Writers Some Embarrassment

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

KYOTO, JAPAN — You're going to have to bear with us on this one. The paper may blush a little, but it's all for the good of the cause, and somebody's responsibility is nothing if not our watchword.

You see, you may well find yourself in the same position we did — back in the hotel after a hard day of looking at cherry blossoms and buying wood-block prints — and decide that a steam bath and massage is just what you need.

Now, the Japanese view on bathing are well enough known not to need much elaboration here. Cleanliness is a veritable mania with them. Like most regular functions, bathing assumes the proportions of a ritual, as in the custom of family style communal bathing.

The steam bath and massage is no less a hot institution in Japan but was adopted from the Chinese. We should have been prepared, we suppose, for the Japanese having adapted it to their own traditions.

But, we weren't as we hied ourselves up to the Miyako Hotel's solarium. Our misgivings began when we noted there was only one entrance for the usual decorous "men" and "women" doors. Inside, a gaggle of wizened old women, the attendants, bowed and giggled us in.

SLIP INTO KIMONOS

We were ushered into a locker room where one of the women motioned us to disrobe and slip into kimonos. Modestly turning our backs on her in the accepted Japanese manner, we managed to pull off this manoeuvre without the loss of — in face.

With great inhibition we clutched our robes about us, trying to make the mental adjustment of two-week-old joint, and were led to the steam cabinets. Here we immersed for eight minutes in the false security of the steel surroundings.

Clutching towels about us, we proceeded to the private bathing room it was an oversized version of a typical Japanese bathroom — a familiar sunken tub made of wood surrounded by a tile floor where stood two tiny stools.

Divesting ourselves of the last shreds of human dignity we awaited the next visitation of the crone and the inevitable back (and front) scrub. But when the door opened, what to our wondering eyes should appear but a teen-age girl. She was greeted by warmth and this was going to happen in a short-sleeved blouse and pink bare-limbed pedal pushers.

As she lathered and tubbed us, we never once, we speculated deeply on this costume. Nothing in our travel experience or in our knowledge of Japanese ways could explain it. Was it traditional? Was it merely the most comfortable dress for the hot room? What would Freud have concluded?

Swathed in towels again and still wondering, we moved on to the massage room where tables and two more women were ready for us. We were preparing for the last blow to our composure when we noticed through the door to the steam cabinet room was open a crack. Through it we could see the perspiring head of one of our travelling companions emerging from one of the steel traps.

REDDENED FACE

"George!" we cried with mingled dismay and embarrassment. The reddened face of George, the dignified editor of a distinguished Latin American magazine, turned white as his hair. He changed the cabinet closed around his neck. We clutched the towels around us tighter.

The attendants seemed delighted. Hurriedly they declaimed — the only English we heard — and prepared to yank him out of the steam cabinet and into our room for a really jolly two-way friendly massage party.

They were crestfallen when we firmly but politely waved them that no, no, things were already semi-private enough, thank you, and we could manage the door closed.

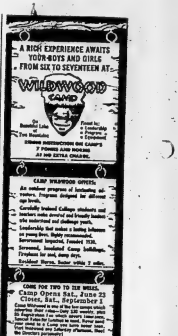
The last we saw of George was the lobby a while later, he employing the classic Latin gambit for avoiding embarrassment. He pretended we'd never even seen each other upstairs.

CALL TENDERS

TORONTO (CP) — Tenders were called Friday for a $75,000 provincial reception centre to operate year-round for tourists on Windsor.

Mrs. Roosevelt Wants Women To Get More

NEW YORK (AP) — Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt Friday urged enactment of a federal law that would require equal pay for women doing the same work as men.



Concepts that most women work for "pin money" and that a woman is worth less money than a man, she said, are "entrenched prejudice" and "utterly indefensible."

She was testifying before the chairman of the select subcommittee on labor of the House of Representatives.

Mrs. Roosevelt, chairman of the president's commission on the status of women, said 38 countries have adopted an international standard for equal pay for women. Yet, proposals for a U.S. federal law had been before Congress every year since 1945.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

George A. — He's had a year of psychoanalysis. It should be enough.

Jane B. — He's coming along, but he's still scared.

George A. — My sister Jane's husband had a breakdown last year and he has been undergoing expensive psychoanalysis ever since. The only reason I feel free to butt in is that I'm chipping in to pay the bills until I get back into his old earning power, which, by the way, was very good.

What I'd like to know, and what no one seems willing to tell me, is how long does this thing keep up? It's not that I begrudge the money. Ed will be glad for it, besides, he and Jane would do the same for me. It's just that Ed seems to be getting nowhere. He's losing weight, has dark circles under his eyes, and he's always talking about his old days in the army. Frankly, okay. He's been holding a sales job for the past six months, and I feel the treatment may be continuing mainly because it's a good excuse for a supply of money in the family.

Jane B. — Ed's psychiatrist explained to me that it takes time to root out the deep fears and worries that have been eating away at Ed since his days in the army. He's just had the last out on a pro-fessional basis, the history department of the college where he's been employed, and I feel the treatment may be continuing mainly because it's giving him a good deal more confidence in himself and his ability to get a job. It had been shaky when he took a time for this.

Our friends and family, as is especially so George, rallied round. We've been very generous with them, paying back our debts, which were considerable, in the days when we were living beyond our means, and we've given George a car. We must trust our doctor as a man, we are told, has plenty of problems but they don't get in the way of him doing his job. He's somewhat worried that Ed may become dependent on him, but he says that Ed's basically sound and he's confident that he'll be able to keep Ed coming on himself up. Now he can't afford to change doctors in the middle of treatment.

The Council: George raises a question often worried about by people who have been advised by their psychoanalysts, or if not in so many words, have implied that they should be in analysis. When will it end? The good of a college, at least on top of himself. George will note the many psychoanalysts, is that it gain.

Nightingale School Director Heads Reg. Nurses' Assoc.

The director of the Nightingale School of Nursing, Mrs. Blanche Duncanson, has been elected president of the Registered Nurses' Association of Ontario.

Mrs. Duncanson is a graduate of Victoria Hospital, London, and holds a Bachelor of Science in nursing degree from the University of Western Ontario.

She has had wide experience in nursing education. She began her teaching career in 1941 as Science Instructor at the Toronto Western Hospital. In this capacity she pioneered the Western Hospital's nursing school curriculum, consisting of two years' extensive academic and clinical training, followed by one year of internship.

Mrs. Arthur Bannon opened her home for the April meeting of the Parkdale W.I., Mrs. G. Priest, past president, welcomed Mrs. R. Robson of Zion's Hill, and her friend, Mrs. Percy Hay. Mrs. Robson is a special friend to Parkdale women as she organized the Women's Institute here nine years ago.

Dues were paid and current events given by Mrs. Bert Lewis.

The secretary and treasurer gave their annual reports with a gratifying amount on hand.

Mrs. Priest thanked the Cub mothers who helped clean the hall and members who made new drapes.

Mrs. Robson gave an interesting history of the Trent Valley W.I., and read parts of a newspaper, held in 1924, as seems the women were just as energetic and clever then, even without the conveniences of today.

OFFICERS INSTALLED

After two delightful poems Mrs. Robson installed the officers for the new year, as follows: president, Mrs. Bill Bowen; 1st vice-president, Mrs. Charles Keeble; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. Harry Miller; secretary, Mrs. Reg. Marry; treasurer, Mrs. Grace McAuley; district director, Mrs. Gord Priest; alternate director, Mrs. N. Mc-Mullin; auditors, Mrs. Bill Bowen and Mrs. Ernie Gray; nominating committee, Mrs. Fred Irwin and Mrs. Lillian Street; public relations, Mrs. Jean Bennett; branch directors, Mrs. L. Coates, Mrs. Gerald Robinson, Mrs. J. Gordon Priest; Mrs. Conner, pick committee, Mrs. Francis Bowen; Mrs. Ernie Stratton; pianist, Mrs. C. Keeble and, assistant pianist, Mrs. Grace McAuley.

Standing committees — home economics branch — Mrs. George Miller, historical research and current events, Mrs. Gord Priest; citizenship and education, Mrs. Neal McMillan; recreation, Mrs. Jack Rosbotte; agriculture and Canadian industries, Mrs. Reg. Marry.

The new president, Mrs. Bowen, thanked Mrs. Robson and paid tribute to Mrs. Priest.

After the meeting everyone had fun dressing some of the members with Easter bonnets and dresses made of bits and pieces of material, and odds and ends saved up for years.

"A book is delivered into our hands, and with the book, its author. In the case of music, however, it is we who are delivered. The music enters into us and acts upon us like a developing fluid and 'brings out' all that it must secret in ourselves, but without any sense of heart break, or, if heartbreak there is, it is sweet."—Francois Maurice in Memories Intérieures.

While watching TV the other evening, a guest, who has just read a new book by Percival Hunt entitled "Fifteenth Century England" pointed out that a wry similarity exists between some current singing commercials and the trade songs of the fifteenth century in England. We were informed and quote: "It was, one might say, the age of song, for song was a great factor in town and country, a part of everyone's day. The selling of goods was accompanied by song. Every trade had its own cry:

The welcome at lodgings or at a friend's house might be a song, and a song left a kiss from the hostess and the host might be goodbye. While it was a part of the scholar's day, from morn 'til night.

English music in the 1400's (there was no Mozart, Beethoven, Brahams, Tchaikovsky or Sibelius and others of equivalent musician of note as yet) was considered the best music of all Europe; an excellence granted by both Germans and French. Even Erasmus wrote that the English may well claim to be the most musical o fall people".

Music plays an important part, especially in the lives of writers. Not only are there singing commercials but the music of "westerns" all have musical backgrounds. But what about song. Does it hold a place in this modern age?

"I well remember," says Mrs. H. W. Hollonby, R.R. 3, who is a music lover and teacher, "when I was a child of how we used to sing. Our family was musically gifted parents as well as five children. With our friends, who would come sometimes, for an evening, we would crowd around the piano and sing—old songs of Sunday evenings. We'd start perhaps, yes always, with a hymn, then on to the old and finally newer current songs, it was a wonderful time to recall, was. Then everybody would just go home. There was no thought of refreshments. For those were in the days of the depression. Nobody could afford to serve a weekly crowd like that, without ruining it. Song, in truth nourished body and soul."

Mrs. Hollonby also remembers clearly the first and last time she played a Steinway grand. It belonged to a friend living in Montreal. "I was only sixteen, and I've never forgotten what a thrill it was for me to still under it one of my greatest."

Speaking of Steinways, one Steinway grand, very much on tour today, once belonged to an old Irish gentleman who "When my son, (Dr. John Rathbun of Quebec City), inherited it from his grandmother, Mrs. W. J. Gibson here in Belleville", relates Mrs. A. B. Rathbun, 248 Bridge Street, E., "he ultimately presented it to pianist Mona Bates' brilliant protege, Mr. Clifford Poole. It has been on tour all over Canada with him, wherever he gives a concert."

This brings to mind a New Yorker May 1960) Profile on the Canadian pianist, Glen Gould, kindly lent us by Miss Leona Riggs, which interestingly describes, among other things, how Mr. Gould came across a nine-foot concert grand Steinway, number One Seventy-four which had the desired and much sought-after "wider gaps between the white keys" believed to ensure better tonal effect. One touring season's freight bill along the Eastern seaboard was nearly $4,000; an amount which Gould considered well-spent.

What a selection of Steinway Grands there are! Looking through a current Steinway catalogue obtaining by courtesy of Mr. W. Oliver of the Belleville T. Eaton Co. Music department, one sees beautiful colored illustrations of a Baby Grand (5 feet 1 inch), Medium Grand, Contemporary, Louis XV, Chippendale, each 6 feet, 7 inches). A living room Grand, Music-Room Grand and Concert Grand (5 feet 10 1-2 inches, 6 feet 11 inches, 8 feet 11 1-4 inches, respectively). All ranging from $4,350 to $8,900 in price, with a reminder that "the world has never known a finer piano".

It seems an age is fortunate that is musically inclined.

" DEVOTION IS A PRIVATE EMOTION

At the world loves a lover — and is not wistful about — an engaged couple. The hearts dims a bit, though, when the handholding gets out-of-hand and the pet names become annoying.

The Golden Years

A Man Earns $180 Weekly Views Retirement as Crisis

By THOMAS COLLINS

Fifteen months from now he'll be retired. He'll be two months beyond the age of 65. His wife will be 64.

He will have a company pension and other income total, ing $235 a month. He will have two paid-up life insurance policies with a total face value of $11,000.

Here are his other assets:

A house that is clear and in joint ownership with his wife; Government Bonds, also in joint ownership, with a face value of $5,400;

A savings account in the bank, also joint, that amounts to $766;

A two-year-old car;

Six rooms of medium-priced furniture with a freezer, range, refrigerator, TV set and a piano.

This man is deeply concerned about his retirement. His salary is $9,360 a year ($180 a week). Taxes and upkeep on his home, which he thinks he could sell for $16,000, are running around $500 a year. Living costs are pushing right up to his salary — he has been able to add only $800 to his bonds in the last two years.

How can he cut down to the $235 a month? This will be about $54 a week. If he can save no money on $180 a week how can he possibly live on $54?

For this man, and for all those others beset with a similar kind of problem, here is some advice:

In the first place a $180-a-week man doesn't make $180. He's more like $135 after income taxes. Then the costs of working — bus fare, lunches, coffee breaks, charity, and what next? — will cut it another $10. Clothes buffeting the $180 a week can cut it another $10. Then incidentals. The $180-a-week man is probably netting about $120 a week. A retirement income of $235 a month is shortball, and a man with a house can manage.

It will be embarrassing if he stays where he is. Because $56 a week, or $8 a day, must come out of his way of living. And the cutback will show. Still he can manage.

But if he cringes from what his neighbors are thinking, that there is an out — Moving — moving to where people don't know, or care, how he used to live.

A house a man thinks is worth $16,000 will probably sell for $14,000. Then the real estate commission and the fiddle-faddle will take another $1,000, so he walks out with $13,000 in his pocket.

In small towns all over the south — but not in the resort areas — a retired couple can buy a little frame house with a plot of garden ground for $3,000. This leaves $4,000, plus the $3,400 in Government bonds. The total of $7,400 in a bank or savings and loan association at 4 per cent would be extra income of about $25 a month, added to the $235 pension.

WEALTH OR POVERTY

This could be wealth in a small community of little money, while it could be near-poverty in a $180-a-week community in the north.

It's not the same dish of life, for sure. But it's not necessarily bad. And a man and his wife can adjust to it, even at age 63 — even with turnip greens and grits.

But the economics of it are only a part of the picture. The man who remains in his neighborhood on his cut-down retirement income usually does little except to pull in and pull in — and pull in some more. He and his wife become introverted and increasingly more isolated as they cut the cloth to fit their income.

Somewhere else, where neighbors don't snicker, there is an atmosphere where a man and his wife can take a deep breath, put on corduroy pants, and go marching into town. To open an art shop. To hire out as gardeners. To do all the magnificent things they might want to do, but wouldn't dare back where they came from.

Retirement can really be more than the-much-you've-got. Especially if how-much-you've-got is enough. It's an adventure into a second life.

Spark Knock Has Several Common Causes

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

Known by many names — spark knock, carbon knock, tinging knock, ping, detonation — it's due to uncontrolled burning of the fuel mixture e.g., abnormally fast combustion. It causes mild to severe cylinder vibration, resulting in a light metallic or heavy knock.

It can be a minor thing or serious enough to kill power, hurt gas economy, crack spark plugs or damage pistons and valves. It can be confined to one cylinder or occur in all.

What causes this spark knock or detonation, as it's commonly known? There are several causes. The most common are: regular gas when premium or higher octane is needed — engine overheating — overadvanced spark timing.

It is a condition which can be quickly pinpointed and corrected. But, like to many car troubles, only prompt attention will minimize maintenance bills and avoid serious engine damage.

L.M. asks: "My tailpipe has banged up so much the muffler dented a bit. Now the engine tends to overheat. Is there significant?

A: A restricted exhaust will cause excessive engine back pressure and definitely encourage overheating.

From R.B.: "Several unsuccessful attempts were made to cure my carburetor flooding. Finally, the fuel pump diaphragm was replaced . . . now everything's OK. I thought a defective diaphragm always caused lower rather than increased pump pressure."

A: It's not common, but a stiff diaphragm — one which doesn't flex properly — can be the reason for excessive pump pressure.

M.M. writes: "I took my car in for front end alignment but the mechanic insisted it needed some extensive repairs were made first. Does this sound like a racket?"

A: Don't leap to rash conclusions. A good mechanic knows it's a waste of time to tackle an alignment job if he must correct excessively worn or defective parts.

C.F. asks: "My manual tells me the kind of grease to use and how often to lubricate the speedometer cable . . . but it doesn't tell me how. Will you?"

A: Disconnect the cable at the speedometer head; pull it out; grease it; replace it, and the job's done.

ASK HENRY ETAOI ETAOI FRIDA

Henry Invites letters from readers, and awards each week a best-selling book for the most interesting letter he receives.

Dear Henry—Please print this letter in your column, I'm desperate. Lately I've been trying to get a job; I'm 11, in grade 7 (I skipped) and I think I'm smart.

I got nine A's in my report card. My father stays up all night worrying about the house, bills, etc. (he needs more money). Where should I go to get a job? How can I get it?—DESPERATE GIRL.

Dear Girl—It is nice of you to try to earn some money for your parents. The best way you can help is by helping around the house and by not asking your parents for any extra treats or anything. When you are older you will help by putting your nine A's to work.—HENRY.

Dear Henry:—I'm 12 years old. My mother wants me to go dancing on Friday nights but I don't want to. This is for two reasons. First, I am afraid of boys, and second, I can't dance very well and don't want to learn how. What should I do?—AFRAID.

Dear Afraid—First, you can stay away from boys all you want now. When you are 13 your automatic pilot will take over. Second, you shouldn't be forced to go dancing. Go when your pilot is flying you high.—HENRY.

Dear Henry:—We have been married for 14 years and have three wonderful children, aged 12, 10 and 6. We have tried to provide for them the necessities of life and to consider their spiritual needs too.

Sometimes I feel that they are ungrateful because they are always telling us how the other kids have this or the other. They seem to think that we should go overboard.

I feel that one of the greatest things they have is the love of a father and mother and we have proved it in lots of ways. But we can't keep up with the Jones's and we certainly can't pass them on the curves.—MRS. D. R.

Dear Mrs. D. R.—Don't care how fast your car is; there are more important things to drive for. And I think that you are going fast enough.—HENRY.

Dear Henry:—The kids in school call me "Herman the mouse." Just because my last name is Hermanis they call me this name. What should I do or tell them?—HERMAN THE MOUSE.

Dear Herman the Mouse:—Come on, either play along with them or ignore them. The kids used to call me "Henhouse" just because my name starts with a Hen. Don't take it serious.—HENRY.

Ideas On What To Talk About

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS:—You should ask me how to carry on a conversation? Now I'm really on the spot.

I put the question to some of the boys at school. They dropped such platitudes as: "Great minds talk of ideas, average minds of events, and small minds of themselves," and "The interested person makes an interesting person."

Some said "Read a news magazine" and "Bone up on the world situation" but somehow I feel that the person who asks "What do you think of the Tibetan affair?" at the Spring Prom is going to feel as necessary as the proverbial screen door in a submarine.

Here at ——— College, we all find that we have such widely differing experiences and opinions that the conversation never lags. When with classmates, we end up talking about literature (we're English majors.)

At the Navy drills, we talk about the Royal Canadian Navy. When with boys, the conversation seems to be about girls; in mixed company, the topics are usually school, professors and more school. In brief, conversation is appropriate, tuned to the theme, place and company.

So far all negative; did manage, however, to glean a few positive "goodies."

(1) Never talk "down" to anyone. Better to discuss the weather again, than be a portrait of pomposity in the eyes of someone who has no interest in what you're lecturing about.

(2) If you find yourself far out of your peer group in a conversation, try to ask an intelligent question. Everybody likes to give his opinion to anyone who asks.

(3) I think the person who is smiling, pleasant and obliging at a social function is going to be thought of as far more charming than he who is ready to haggle all night about the dates of Mozart.

Since very few have the wit of an Oscar Wilde or even the enthusiastic friendliness of my uncle, (whom you know), I guess we're all pretty well in the same conversational boat.

All of us who put our heads together on the question will be watching your column in order to learn all the things that we were unable to think of.—JIM.

DEAR JIM:—Pearls of wisdom! Other teen-agers: please clip and paste up for frequent reference. And thanks to Jim for real help with the art of conversation.

DEAR DORIS:—I wonder if you could tell me if there are jobs for social workers in the United Nations or other overseas service. I love working with children and would be most interested in working to better living standards of children in underprivileged countries.—A. G.

DEAR A. G.:—I am sending you a booklet about the profession of social work.

Yes, there are many Canadians doing social work overseas. But they have to be well experienced first. It's a hard enough profession right here at home, without taking on cultural differences, struggles with language and human problems calling for rare maturity and know-how, before you are ready.

You need an arts course, two years post-graduate study, and some good solid experience in case work or group work, before branching out.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

I see by the papers that the Kingston and Peterborough squads, entries in the senior section of the Lakeshore Baseball League are starting to get the winter wrinkles ironed out and readying for the first senior baseball this part of Ontario has had over a period of years.

The third entry, the Belleville Kenmores, will start activities tomorrow at the Fair Grounds. The three senior squads will play inter-locking games with the Port Hope team, making the senior division, in part, a four-team affair.

Although a complete schedule of senior games has not been released Kenmore manager Ken Soden said last night that the Kenmores open the season at Peterborough on May 21st. After first game at home is slated for Wednesday, June 6, at the Fair Grounds. It will be an afternoon affair.

The Kenmores will get together at the Fair Grounds tomorrow at one o'clock for a general meeting, and a pepper practice session.

Mr. Soden wants to form the strongest aggregation possible to represent the city in senior baseball this summer. Both Kingston and Peterborough squads are rounding up the best diamond talent available and Soden feels that he will need the best material in the city.

"All players, regardless of age are requested to turn out at tomorrow's get-together. People who are willing to assist with the organization and operation of the club are extended a cordial welcome.

The new senior league should be productive of some fine baseball. Kingston and Peterborough have for some years been operating city leagues with more or less success, although Peterborough operated a squad in the Lakeshore Intermediate League at one time or another.

Both cities, it is assumed, have plenty of material to draw from for a senior entry and will likely come up with strong aggregations.

There is good upper bracket diamond talent in Belleville, too, and Manager Soden hopes the boys will turn out to help him form the strongest team possible.

With the opening date set for May 21 in Peterborough, there isn't too much time left to organize, train and whip a squad into competitive condition. As a suggestion, Vern Goyer and Harry Morgan would be great help to the Kenmores, if they would come out.

Vern coached senior clubs here before and was one of the main factors in bringing a title to the city not too many years ago. He knows baseball, is popular, and has a way with people and players. Morgan, too, knows baseball and would be a declared asset.

TOO BAD!

Dynamic "Walt," the Fiery Salt of Picton, won't be billowing his verbal gossamers and spinnakers in Belleville and District Softball League circles this summer.

The nautical scion of the Clan Fraser has announced that he will not enter a team in the city and district circuit but will sponsor an entry in the new Trent Valley Softball League. The loop includes teams from Batawa, Madoc, Frankford, two from Stirling, and the Fraser-sponsored Bloomfield club.

After all the ex-seagoing lucky cannot be blamed. He knew that topflight pitching was necessary in a circuit like the B and D—and apparently it wasn't available. He would have entered if he could have secured the services of Chapman or a barrier of equal ability—but unfortunately it was not to be procured.

The Picton Walts added a lot of color to the city circuit last summer, and one of the most colorful guys on the squad was the Fraser boy'sn. He and his fine club will be missed.

Wins Fourth In Row

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Dick Donovan, who had made at more stops than a local bus, four players the Indians acquired when they dealt fiery Jimmy Piersall to Washington Senators, is one of the principal reasons the Indians are leading the American League race.

He chalked up his fourth victory in an unbeaten season with a six-hit, 7-2 triumph over Minnesota Twins Friday night that kept the Indians a game ahead of the pack.

Detroit Tigers belted Los Angeles Angels 13-4, Chicago White Sox beat Boston Red Sox 7-4 and Kansas City Athletics routed Baltimore Orioles 14-5.

Donovan, who worked with four minor league teams and divided his time in the majors with the old Boston Braves, Detroit and the White Sox before joining the Senators, looms as the key figure in the Piersall trade.

FOUR VICTORIES

His four victories, three of them in relief, are games, not the majors. A pair of five-hit performances in both roles have helped him post an impressive, 1.51 earned-run average.

Donovan, who specializes in "junk" pitches, has a good fastball, but a four-hit shutout going into the ninth inning but some runs in. Jerry Kilbrew and Zoil Versalles spoiled his bid.

By that time, however, his mates had rallied him to a 4-0 lead and the 36-year-old veteran had plenty of working room. A 10-run homer by Harmon Killebrew and Zoil Versalles spoiled his bid.

By that time, however, his mates had rallied him to a 4-0 lead and the 36-year-old veteran had plenty of working room. A 10-run homer by Harmon Killebrew and Zoil Versalles spoiled his bid.

One of the reasons better Detroit-Los Angeles affair, his arm stiffened.

Detroit started when Joe Nuxhall hit Tiger Norm Cash in the back with a pitched ball. Umpire Ed Runge walked to the mound and informed Nuxhall he was fined $50.

Nuxhall threw the ball into the stands. Second base umpire Ed Hurley thumbed him out. Angel manager Bill Rigney began a wild protest. Out he went, too. Before it was over, Chuck Tanner of Los Angeles also got the gate.

BEER SHOWER

Angel outfielders Lee Thomas and Leon Wagner later were subjected to a shower of beer cans and other rubbish from the stands when they took their defensive positions.

A seventeen second inning got the Tigers off and running. Billy Bruton, Al Kaline and Rocky Colavito each drove in three runs. Jim Bunning (2-0) won it and Ken McBride (1-3) was the loser.

New York established a 9-0 lead in the first game of a twin-bill, then spent the rest of the evening fighting off rallies by the Senators, who lost their 10th straight game of the season. Clete Boyer, Roger Maris and Elston Howard had homers for the Yanks. Boyer's with the bases loaded. Bill Stafford (1-2) got the victory and Pete Burnside (1-1) lost.

Nellie Fox, who doubled in the first run for the White Sox, clashed a two-run single in the seventh that knocked in the tying and winning runs off Orlando Pena (0-2). Frank Baumann (2-0) who came on in the third, won with Ed Fisher's help on the final two innings. Gino Cimoli led the Athletics' 18-hit offensive against the Orioles. Jerry Lumpe and three successors with two triples, a pair of doubles and a single. Ed Rakow (3-1) got the victory, leaving in the ninth inning when

Language 'Foul, Filthy Disgraceful'

OHA Censures Siskins Behavior

TORONTO (CP)—Long arguments and "filthy, foul" talk on all parts of Ontario in one of the line in Ontario Hockey Association Junior B playoffs history.

ABITY complaints Friday night at an OHA executive meeting, resulting in a strict letter to referees and coaches to bring players into line.

Jack Harvey of Belleville and OHA participant Tony Gregg faced complaints about conduct of Wexford Siskins in Toronto games against Belleville and St. Thomas.

"Their language was disgraceful, filthy, foul and unbecoming to juniors," said Harvey.

Referring to the Siskins' 10-2 win over Belleville, he said: "One player said things to some of the opponents in the rink which I don't repeat to you."

MUTINOUS NAME

Gregg agreed and the players were reminded of the rule for the rest of the executive, which forbids mutinous names. manager Bill Hanley to order referees to clamp down on arguments, and penalize flagrantly bad language.

The order is to "throw them out" of the game at the first sign of bad language.

Waterloo and St. Thomas play the third game of the Ontario finals in Kitchener tonight and the new order will be in effect.

"You'd think Waterloo would have learned by now," OHA president Lloyd Pollock. "We've given them enough fines and suspensions already this year."

The OHA during the meeting reinstated grants to four members for participation in a league several years due to reduced revenues.

The OHA coffers have been jawelled by playoff money from operating the sole London entry in the successful season, in its history.

WELL AHEAD

"We are $4,000 ahead of last year's playoff revenue and still have two more series to end," said treasurer Frank Buckland of Peterborough.

The Ontario Minor Hockey Association will get $3,250, the Eastern Ontario Hockey Association $300, the Toronto Hockey League $1,000 and the Northern A league.

No decision was made on two applications for Junior B franchises from London, one was in the name of Lou Ball and the other for the Canadian Reserves, a London A team.

Both groups co - operated in

One motion due to come up for discussion today at the annual OHA meeting was one from Devine to abolish the draft, by which Junior players were signed to sponsored players.

Moreover, also will be forwarded on the proposed ruling to prevent all players under 18 years of age being moved from hockey towns and assigned to Junior A teams.

Won Three Of Four

Drysdale Likes Dodgers New Home

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Don Drysdale appears ready to assume the ace-of-the-staff post reserved for him by the patient Los Angeles Dodgers.

The angry young man who nicely stated his distaste for pitching in Los Angeles Coliseum, Drysdale has found a haven in the Dodgers' new stadium, where Friday night he posted his third victory in four starts by beating Pittsburgh Pirates 7-2.

The 25-year-old righthander, never before a winner against the Pirates in Los Angeles, scattered 10 hits in posting his first victory over the National League leaders since July 3, 1960. He had made eight starts against the Pirates and had failed to complete a game.

Drysdale has been touted as a 20-game winner for the Dodgers since he joined the club when it was in Brooklyn in 1956. His best years were in 1957 when he was 17-9 and in 1959 when he was 17-13 in the confining Coliseum.

EXPECTED TO RISE

He was 13-10 last year with a 3.46 earned run average while Dodger stadium was going up. His records is expected to rise now that he feels at ease in the more spacious park. He has won both his starts at home.

San Francisco Giants edged Chicago Cubs 5-4, Milwaukee Braves nipped Houston Colts 2-1 behind Bob Shaw's four-hitter, St. Louis Cardinals blasted Cincinnati Reds 14-3 and Philadelphia Phillies handed New York Mets their 11th setback in 12 games, 11-9.

Frank Howard and Johnny Roseboro collected half the Dodgers' eight hits, each driving in two runs with a pair of singles. Three walks, Howard's two-run single and Roseboro's run-producing hit in the first inning off rookie Bob Veale (1-1) gave Drysdale all he needed. Drysdale walked only one and struck out seven as the Dodgers won their sixth in the last seven games.

The Giants snapped a 4-4 tie in the ninth inning on singles by Jim Davenport and relief pitcher Stu Miller and a sacrifice fly by Chuck Miller. Until then it had been a home run battle with Bobby Gene Smith and George Altman connecting for the Cubs and Orlando Cepeda and Willie McCovey answering for the Giants. Miller (1-0) got the victory, Bob Anderson (0-3) was tagged with the loss.

Shaw's shutout bid was spoiled by Jim Pendleton's home run in the fourth inning, but otherwise the former American League pitcher was in complete control, winning his second in three starts. The Braves wrapped things up in the sixth, getting an unearned run off Colt starter Bobby Shantz (1-1) when Mack Jones reached base on Joey Amalfitano's error and scored on Hank Aaron's triple to snap a 1-1 tie.

Backed by eight- and five-run innings, the Cardinals' Curt Simmons (3-0) had easy going as he limited the Reds to eight hits. Simmons was tagged for homers by Wally Post and Frank Robinson but three runs batted in by Ken Boyer and two driven in by Curt Flood more than offset that. Flood has hit safely in all 13 St. Louis games and is batting .429.

John Callison's 4-for-6 effort at the plate and 3 three RBI performance by Tony Gonzalez led the Phils' 15-hit attack that built an 11-1 edge the Mets were unable to overcome. Don Demeter slammed a two-run triple in a five-run, sixth-inning explosion that settled things for Cal McLish (2-0). Roger Craig (0-3) took the loss.

The Mets called on Ken MacKenzie of Gore Bay, Ont., to pitch to the Phils in the ninth inning. He retired the side in order, chalking up two strikeouts in the process.

Wins, Does't Like Foe Brand

What Did He Expect, Hawks?

TRAIL, B.C. (CP) — Bobby Kromm, coach of Trail Smoke Eaters, doesn't like Montreal Olympics' brand of Allan Cup hockey.

Neither does Montreal coach Maurice Filion.

"I don't like their brand of game," Kromm said Friday after the Smokies took an 8-0 victory over the Olympics in the first game of the best-of-seven Allan Cup series.

"They just sat back and played a defensive game," said Kromm. "We had it all over them."

Filion said he was far from pleased with his players' performance and paced them through a stiff, 50-minute workout as a warmup for the second game here tonight.

The battle for Canada's senior amateur hockey crown will continue here Monday and Wednesday night with the remaining games scheduled, if needed, for Friday, next Saturday and the following Monday.

"We worked on some new plays to try to improve our game," said Filion. "We may have found what we were looking for."

But Kromm thinks his club will take the series easily.

"I guess they will try to bounce back at us," he said. "But the way they played last night they have a long way to bounce."

Maniago Hurt In Brawl

Hull Whips Kingston 3-1

KINGSTON (CP) — A rookie from Peterborough Petes of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A league led Hull-Ottawa Canadiens to a convincing 3-1 win over Kingston Frontenacs here Friday night.

Claude LaRose scored two goals in the third period to give Hull the win and tied their best-of-seven Eastern Professional Hockey League finals 2-2.

But the win may have been costly for Canadiens.

In the final minute of play Hull goaltender Cesare Maniago suffered a possible concussion during a wild brawl with Kingston's Terry Gray.

Maniago was flattened by Gray, who hit him in the face twice before Canadiens' Terry Harper managed to pull him away. The goaltender was apparently struck in the head by Gray's skate. Gray cut his hand in the fight and is a doubtful starter in the game at Hull on Sunday.

A doctors was called to the ice and a stretcher was ordered but Maniago managed to skate off with the help of team-mates.

The brawl started when Kingston's Don Blackburn collided with Maniago and was high-sticked in return.

Rookie Ernie Wakely had to finish the final minute and 10 seconds and had only one shot to stop.

The teams were tied 1-1 going into the period and it remained that way until LaRose scored at the 1-second mark of the third period.

Frontenacs had taken a 1-0 lead on a goal by Randy Miller who tipped in a pass from rookie Billy Knibbs.

Canadiens tied it when Bob Armstrong, Hull's playing coach, fired a harmless-looking shot from the point. Defenceman Bob Gladue of Frontenacs raised his glove to catch the puck but suddenly moved away and goaltender Ed Chadwick was taken by surprise as the puck whirled past him.

LaRose's first goal was scored on a pass from John Rodger.

The second marker was on a defensive lapse. LaRose took the puck behind the Kingston net and skated out in front, unmolested, while the Kingston defencemen waited for a pass-out.

The next game is at Hull Sunday and the teams return here Monday.

Moss suffered head injuries when his left leg, shoulder and one rib. However an orthopedic specialist who examined him Thursday said the bone injuries are not serious.

Moss had just set a lap record of 105.37 miles an hour when the accident occurred. Observers said a jammed throttle apparently was the cause.

MONDAY
FIRST SHOWING
GENTLE PATSY VERSUS RUTHLESS BANDIT

In the modern civilized world we live in, the blacks and whites of life have been blended into varying shades of grey. But in Mexico good still battles starkly with evil. The difference is clear-cut — or is it?

"Danny Dayton of the Gang," opening Monday at the Park on its first Belleville and district showing, paints the gilded story of all time with a refreshing vigor and against the vivid grandeur of a Mexican backcloth.

It is a backward and superstitious mountain village the film portrays. John Mills as the good, honest and simple priest, Father Keogh. Opposing him is the evil Asaciato, played by Dirk Bogarde, vicious bandit leader, who rules by murder and fear.

John Mills wears clerical garb for the first time in his long and varied career. It is a part he has wanted to play for some time, and in fact he once tried to buy the script himself. Few parts have suited him so well, however. The power of the priest.

And between them is Mylene Demongeot, the glamorous French star who has her most important dramatic role to date as the 16-year-old girl in love with the priest. Mylene, who has never a girl to rely on sick sophistication and Paris clothes for her sex appeal, shows that she can be just as appealing with no make-up and the simplest of clothes. Here is a girl who stands bewildered on the threshold of adult life, the simple mind torn by conflicting events.

Producer and director Roy Baker has surpassed his brilliant hand of the making of this film — one of the most important to come out of a British studio this year.

On the same program, the added Belgian comedy, "The French Mistress," stars Agnes Laurent, a delightful French star, with Cecil Parker, James Robertson Justice, Ian Bannen. One complete show Monday starts at 7.30 p.m.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP) — Cliff Bradley, who works on the lake docks during the summer and races a small stable of standard breds at exhibitions, had a wonderful day at Old Woodstone Park while he reportedly was clearing at the track through binoculars from a boat moored nearby Lake Ontario.

Bradley, whose father was a pioneer racing man, had his discovered by Jack Churchill at the $5,000 Grattan Royal Pace Friday night and it came through with a mile of 2:04.4 to take top honors in the stakes event.

The race attracted 11 entries and was split into two divisions, the night's fifth and seventh races.

Bradley drives for Roy Mitchell in the fifth, had one-fifth of a second edge on the winner of the seventh, Henry's Allen, owned by Lyne Manville of Mississauga, Que.

A crowd of 6,580 wagered just under $270,000 on the eight races in which a spring meeting record of 2:04.3 was established in the fifth by the Armstrong Brothers' four - year - old gelding, Armbro Bingo.

The gelding made its record two in a row by shading Attorney's Dart owned by J. K. Thacker of Petrolia and piloted by Ron Feagan.

Raymond Massey Has Great Respect for Television

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Whether he plays Abe Lincoln, Dr. Gillespie or Raymond Massey, he's a man of forceful opinions.

Recently he was doing all three, Toronto - born Massey went directly from playing the elder doctor in the successful Dr. Kildare TV series back to his role as Lincoln in The Hanging Captor. He was performing in a small but important segment for How the West Was Won in cinema.

Then he went right back to the tiny screen, and, as Raymond Massey, he made it clear he has great respect for television. He took issue with Federal Communications Commission boss Newton Minow's unexpected view of U.S. television's "vast wasteland."

"I think it is a misconception that has been promulgated by television columnists," said Massey. "Television is not a wasteland. It is the greatest medium yet devised for entertainment, and it is doing a damn good job of it.

Canadian Soccer

Seeks Diplomatic Aid

LONDON (CP)—Canadian officials said Friday they are seeking diplomatic aid to ease a brawl on British participation in Canadian soccer.

George Cross, secretary of the Eastern Canadian Professional Soccer League, said he has asked High Commissioner George Drew to help iron the matter out by the English Football League or the British players joining Canadian clubs during the summer layoff.

Drew promised it would see whether there is anything he can do.

In a talk with a reporter Friday Cross said he has been against sporting links between Canada and Britain.

He called the league's attitude "unreasonable." Last summer, stars like Stan Matthews and Johnny Haynes had devoted much of their time to coaching at schools in Ontario and Vancouver.

"Even from Britain countries have sent players and coaches to Canada. And we also have sent hockey coaches and teams to Europe."

League secretary Alan Hardaker has said the original ruling came from the Federation of International Football Associations. FIFA said that players can't switch from one country to another without proper transfer proceedings.

Gross said Hardaker is holding behind FIFA's skirts because players from clubs in Peru have already arrived in Canada to play for Toronto Roma.

Hardaker also said British players returned from the three-month trip to Canada tired and overworked. Gross replied that not one complaint of this nature has been received from an English club.

Maniago In Ottawa Hospital

OTTAWA (CP)—Cesare Maniago, starry netminder for Hull-Ottawa Canadiens, was reported in satisfactory condition in hospital here Friday after being injured Friday in a brawl in a playoff game in Kingston.

Maniago was taken to the Ottawa General Hospital with concussion after he tangled with forward Terry Gray of Kingston Frontenacs with only one minute and 10 seconds of play left.

Hospital authorities and club officials said the exact nature of the athlete's injuries is not yet known.

Hull-Ottawa won the game 3-1 to gain the Eastern Professional Hockey League finals at two games each.

Sam Pollock, Canadiens manager, declined to say whether Maniago will be able to play Sunday afternoon when the best-of-seven series resumes at the Hull arena.

Maniago was replaced in the nets by Ernie Wakefield in Friday's game.

No Home But Plenty Willing

Champ Fight An 'Orphan'

By JIM BECKER

NEW YORK (AP) — The Floyd Patterson - Sonny Liston heavyweight title fight is without a home. But there seems to be no shortage of United States cities willing to adopt the multi-millionaire orphan.

The New York State Athletic Commission ran the controversial fight out of town Friday by refusing Liston a licence, citing the 28-year-old challenger's police record and choice of associates. The match had been slated for Yankee Stadium or the Polo Grounds in September.

Liston was characteristically unexcited by the development, but the champion was dismayed.

"The New York decision doesn't concern me," Liston said at his home in Philadelphia. "I'll go on training for the fight as if nothing had happened."

Patterson, training in Highland Mills, N.Y., expressed sympathy for Liston and said: "What's he done? He's already served his time. I feel sorry for him.

Controlling Champion Sports Incorporated began shopping around for other location. A spokesman termed Philadelphia, Chicago, Los Angeles and Seattle, Wash., as possibilities.

The loce dissenting voice came from the substitute locations Douglas Hayden said the state's stand on Liston is "pretty much like New York's."

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Like Aries, excellent day for paying attention to family members, fixing and improving things around home. Not day for wandering or radical changes.

P.M. Hints New Aviation Dept. May Be Formed

By ALAN DONNELLY

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask. (CP)—A thinly-veiled hint that establishment of a new, separate federal department of aviation may be under study was dropped Friday by Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

But the appearance of an Indian delegation, which had been scheduled to meet him, brought postponement of his plane to issue an announcement which he said would interest Indians across Canada.

Mr. Diefenbaker indicated the announcement had to do with Indian treaty rights to hunt in forest preserves, and other similar areas.

The hint concerning an aviation ministry, separate from the transport department, was given by Mr. Pearson at the regular terminal just before the prime minister flew here to spend two days in his home constituency.

Mr. Diefenbaker was shaking hands with people in the lobby and met William Taylor, English-born RAF veteran employed with the Regina Flying Club.

Mr. Taylor asked whether the government might set up a separate department of government to deal with civil aviation.

IS GOOD QUESTION

The prime minister said it was a good question and added that it weren't for the reporters standing around he might have something to tell you."

He agreed with Mr. Taylor that the transport department was "too large" and said a separate department dealing only with space matters as well as civil aviation.

"All I can say is that your question is a very good one and I'll give you an answer later."

With that, the prime minister bowed his interested Canadian Pacific Airlines plane and flew north to Fort Chipewyan.

The plane detoured on the way to give Mr. Diefenbaker and his party a chance for an aerial view of the South Saskatchewan River power-irrigation project being carved out in the dry countryside of southeast Saskatchewan.

STAYS IN CAR

He arrived in his home town just after a rain and found crowds had hit the area, and went to the sports arena and carried on a sliding where he and Mrs. Diefenbaker are staying.

This is a Tory riding delegation which didn't show up, to, after the campaign work of his railway car, kept him from an immediate start on his favorite occupation of visiting Albert visits—"mainstreeting."

This consists of strolling along the business streets, chatting with old friends and dropping in the stores and offices of friends he made during his years as a lawyer here.

Pearson Bids To Sweep All 7 Nfld. Seats

By ARCH MacKENZIE

ST. JOHNS, Nfld (CP)—A determined bid to sweep all seven Newfoundland seats into the Liberal fold June 18 gave Opposition Leader Pearson his biggest political reception of the young election campaign.

About 1,000 persons attended a night rally in this provincial capital, ending Mr. Pearson's first three days in the field. The estimated crowd was smaller than at the opener in Charlottetown Wednesday, but the applause, the speeches and the reception were more high-powered.

Mr. Pearson flew on today to Washington to spend the weekend among Nobel Peace Prize winners from the West, who will spend two days discussing peace.

Monday, Mr. Pearson picks up the trail again in Toronto—then to the Pacific Coast before the June 18 election—and visits the Prairies and Northern Ontario before his own riding of Algoma East.

PREMIER AIDS

Premier Smallwood as his most determined ally in any federal election campaign foundland became a province in 1949.

He sped Mr. Pearson through a hardships Mr. Taylor is that the transport department was "too large" and said a separate department dealing only with space matters as well as civil aviation.

"All I can say is that your question is a very good one and I'll give you an answer later."

NDP Leader Uses Sweden As Example

By SCOTT SCHILL

ROSETOWN, Sask. (CP) — T. C. Douglas, national leader of the New Democratic Party, drew on Sweden's socialist economy Friday as an example of what he—NDP would do as the governing party in Canada.

In a campaign speech for the June 18 federal election, Mr. Douglas said the government of Canada "should represent all those who produce the nation's wealth, not those who for 25 years have owned and controlled the wealth."

He said Sweden related what capital the country had available with what resources it had and what it needed.

"Sweden has increased its production yearly for 25 years," Mr. Douglas told a public meeting of 300 people in this Saskatchewan farm community.

He said Sweden, in the last two years has replaced Canada as the second highest income country in the world, following the United States.

STRIKES ARE RARE

Mr. Douglas said Sweden has not had a strike or other labor dispute for 21 years, "They have tied wages to the economy."

He said Sweden is a good example of democratic economic planning, Canada, with an economy largely controlled by a small "corporate elite" needed similar planning.

"Sweden has said Canada cannot have full productivity or full employment without prosperous farmers.

As a step to improve the farmers' lot, an NDP government would replace members of the present board of farmers' marketing agencies and the government would negotiate yearly in advance with these agencies for a parity price.

An NDP government would provide loans and grants to these agencies to allow them to store, process, package and distribute the producers' goods. It also would provide loans and grants to farm organizations on a co-operative basis to enable them to supply more of the farm-related equipment and production needs.

CNR Trainmen Reject Report, Plan Strike Vote

'Totally Inadequate' Says Spokesman

OTTAWA (CP)—The Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen (CLC) announced today it has rejected a conciliation board's wage recommendations as "totally inadequate" and plans a strike vote involving some 10,000 CNR trainmen.

The 19,000-member union's negotiating committee said it has advised the CNR the board's recommendation for a 6¼-per-cent wage increase to be spread in five stages over three years is unacceptable.

A strike ballot was being spread among CNR conductors, trainmen, baggagemen, yard firemen and helpers, yardmasters, car retarder operators and freight operators.

No date of possible strike action was announced.

A Brotherhood spokesman said in a statement the conciliation board refused to grant working conditions that have become standard in Canadian railroading generally.

OBJECTS TO PROPOSAL

He added that it proposed "drastic changes in working conditions affecting job security could result in the introduction of dangerous crafts represented by the Brotherhood."

The union originally sought an 18-per-cent increase. There was no counter-proposal from the CNR.

The majority report of the conciliation board, which sat for seven months studying the dispute, was filed in public April 18. It was signed by Judge J. B. Robinson of Haileybury, Ont., the chairman, and the company nominee T. R. Meighen of Montreal.

Liberal Senator Arthur Roebuck of Toronto, the union nominee, filed a minority report recommending a wage increase of eight per cent spread over two years.

The report to Labor Minister Starr, which is also binding on either side, proposed a cost-per-hour wage increase retroactive to June 1, 1961; another one per cent retroactive to Dec. 1, 1961; and then a 1½-per cent raise to be paid at the signing of a contract, as of Dec. 1, 1962, and Dec. 1, 1963.

WOULD DROP BREAKEMAN

Among the list of rule changes involved in the dispute, the board recommended removal of the brakeman now required on trains of more than 80 cars going through the Rockies.

The Brotherhood's statement said the union and Starr Senator Roebuck's minority report "in all the essentials was strongly critical" of the CNR and the board chairman.

The union statement repeated the last of the three groups complaining that the conciliation board which the CNR is trying to reach a contract agreement. The engineers and firemen previously agreed to a 6¼-per-cent wage increase over a three-year period.

The CPR, which negotiates separately with the unions,

Icy Baths, Showers in Store For Prince at Gordonstoun

LONDON (AP) — A busload of schoolboys wheeled into Parliament Square a few years ago, and the Gothic silhouette of Westminster Abbey towered into view.

"That," said one of the schoolboys, a lanky, bespectacled chubby eight-year-old named Charles, "is where my mother was corrugated."

Prince Charles meant to say was crowned — or coronated as some people say.

As Prince of Wales, Charles, now 13, is heir to the throne. He would be king — but he will be king will go to Gordonstoun in Scotland, starting next fall. Prince Philip was an above-average student and became captain of the senior year. He also captained the cricket and rugby teams.

Charles is not likely to match his father's record. In his elementary studies at Cheam school his marks were below average. He was best in history and geography, worst in English and mathematics.

Gordonstoun is not as snobbish as Eton or Harrow. Situated in a remote section of Scotland, it has fewer sons of the tiled pentry than other elite private schools.

This is one of the reasons Prince Philip, who is known insisted that his son go to Gordonstoun. The Queen had preferred Eton.

At Eton or Harrow and certain other institutions discrimination includes:

Sleeping in hot baths or showers; Sleeping on rough mattresses;

Studying at old, splintered, ink-stained desks.

Students who misbehave are beaten with wooden sticks.

But Gordonstoun was not too tough for Prince Philip's father. Prince Philip was an above-average student and became captain of the senior year. He also captained the cricket and rugby teams.

QUEBEC POLICE READY TO ACT IN TRUCK STRIKE

Prepare to Meet Any New Violence

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebec Provincial Police prepared to meet force with force if necessary today as reinforcements from Quebec were rushed into Montreal by airplane to prevent a recurrence of violence at a striker-bound north-end trucking depot.

Assistant Director J. P. Desaureau said Sunday night the 36 men will be part of a 115-man force on hand to prevent violence if trucks enter Kodiber attempt to crash a picket line at the depot in suburban Dorval.

"We have no alternative in the matter," said Mr. Desaureau. "The companies have a legal injunction against any interference with the movement of their trucks."

The eight strike-bound companies have observed an uneasy truce with the International Brotherhood of Teamsters (Ind.) since Friday when a group of 300 men turned Cote de Liesse Road into a minor battlefield after two trucks tried to break through a picket at a Smith Transport depot.

POLICE RETALIATE

Police retaliated after a barrage of home-made gasoline bombs and police retaliated with tear gas and warning shots, bringing charges of attempted murder against officials.

Mr. Desaureau emphasized that the police were within their rights and had no alternative but to protect trucks and their drivers.

Inspector Gerard Houle, chief of the criminal investigation division, has asked the companies to keep their trucks inside the depots until this afternoon when traffic will be at its lightest.

"However, we don't force them to comply," he added. "They have the legal right to move their trucks whenever they want."

Insp. Houle said an investigation into the riot is continuing and could lead to criminal prosecution of some of the men involved.

Two gasoline bombs used by the mob were being checked for fingerprints and police were studying photographs taken at the scene.

He said preliminary investigation had shown that a number of unidentified hoodlums might be involved.

MAY MAKE ARRESTS

"We can't say but I think we can expect some arrests shortly," he said.

Sunday companies appealed to Attorney General Georges Lapalme for assurance that court injunctions against the picketing would be enforced in the interests of public safety.

Mr. Lapalme said today he would adopt a permanent vehicle ban.

Leaders Agree Enumeration Makes Campaign Too Long

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Today is the day for counting noses across Canada.

In accordance with tradition at a election's mandatory, some 87,000 enumerators set out this morning on a week - long count to compile the lists of eligible voters in the June 18 federal general election.

The final tabulation is expected to give some 8,000,000 persons, the largest number to go to the polls, the right to election of some of the men to govern.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker, and he says Liberal Leader Pearson agree "it is time" to shorten the enumeration procedure makes the campaign too long.

Under the Election Act, enumeration must start seven weeks before voting day. Because it requires at least eight days to prepare for this, the election date announcement must come no less than 57 days before polling.

The last Parliament was dissolved April 19, allowing a 60-day leeway.

Key to shorten the campaign, Mr. Diefenbaker told reporters this weekend, would be to adopt a permanent voters' list.

Mr. Diefenbaker, conferring with British Prime Minister Macmillan for two days in Ottawa, went to the Commons chart his party's campaign strategy and tactics debates.

Only the New Democratic Party leader T. C. Douglas, has a full day's electioneering schedule. He is to hold a press conference in Edmonton in the morning and speak at afternoon and evening meetings in Calmar and Vegreville, Alta.

Today's activities marked the end of the campaign's second week.

Mr. Diefenbaker, who regards next Saturday's speech in London, Ont., as the official start of his campaign, scouted the electoral situation in home territory. He was nominated by acclamation Saturday night in Prince Albert, the Saskatchewan riding he has represented since 1953.

In his acceptance speech, he unveiled his first campaign promise — establishment of a special commission to hear Indian grievances and propose settlement of long-standing Indian treaty claims.

Mr. Pearson left the campaign heat of Newfoundland Saturday for a visit to Washington, where a Sunday newspaper chatted privately with President Kennedy before being a guest at a presidential dinner given for western hemisphere Nobel Prize winners.

Mr. Douglas finished a weekend in Saskatchewan tour with speeches in Moose Jaw and Swift Current. He said his party's plan economically to pull Canada's unemployed to work in "our vast untapped natural resources."

He then made his first sortie into the B.C. province to neighboring Alberta, where he addressed a party campaign rally and reception in Edmonton.

Social Credit Leader Thompson wound up some organizational meetings in Nova Scotia and Peninsula, then returned to Toronto, his current headquarters.

The weekend also saw at least two Conservative candidates At Espanola, Ont., Alex Berthelot, 36, a Blind River insurance agent chosen as Conservative candidate in Mr. Pearson's riding of Algoma East. So far no candidates have been named to oppose Mr. Diefenbaker.

Bobby Hull Named Winger NHL First All-Star Team

MONTREAL (CP) — Chicago Black Hawks, Montreal Canadiens and Toronto Maple Leafs each have placed two men on the National Hockey League's 1961-62 first all-star team, the league announced today.

The Chicago representatives are left winger Bobby Hull and centre Stan Mikita, neither of whom was on the first or second all-star team after the first of two votes by a committee of hockey writers, broadcasters and telecasters in the six NHL cities.

The Canadiens named to the team are marked goalie Jacques Plante, who polled 137 out of a possible 180 points—the most collected by any player—and defenceman Jean-Guy Talbot with 90.

Player - coach Doug Harvey and right winger Andy Bathgate of the Rangers round out the six-man dream squad. Harvey picked up 89 votes for a defence berth—10th in 11 seasons for the 37-year - old veteran — and Bathgate collected 151. Harvey is the only repeater from last year's first team.

Hull, who came on with a late-season spurt, enabled him to equal the league's famed 50-goal scoring record and win the coveted scoring title, wound up with 116 points, giving him an 11-point edge over Frank Mahovlich of Toronto Maple Leafs.

The Maple Leafs, winners of the Stanley Cup in the league's post-season playoffs, failed to place any men on the first team, but have three represen-

Prime Ministers Plan 'Sensible' Talks On Trade

Macmillan Says Meet Is Really Family Conclave

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Macmillan of Britain and Canada's Prime Minister Diefenbaker scheduled an early meeting today on the vital issue of Britain's proposed entry into the European Common Market.

The British leader, who arrived here last evening from Washington for a two-day visit, was greeted at Uplands Airport by Mr. Diefenbaker, taking time out from electioneering.

Behind the arrival pleasantries exchanged by the two leaders, there appeared to lie on both sides a resolve to speak frankly on the Common Market issue.

Canada has been in the forefront of Commonwealth countries expressing misgivings about the economic and political implications of Britain's possible move closer into the European family.

The tone of Sunday's arrival ceremonies was friendly but business-like.

DOWN TO EARTH

Mr. Macmillan, after being met on the tarmac by the Canadian prime minister, said he does not expect "sensible, down-to-earth talks and consultation."

His talks with Mr. Diefenbaker—at least two meetings were scheduled for today—were not to be taken as negotiations.

They were "the discussions between friends, between men of the spirit of a family conclave."

There has been speculation that Mr. Macmillan will ask Canada to stipulate the minimum economic guarantees she would require before giving her blessing to British membership in the Common Market.

Canada has taken the general position that Britain should not enter the Common Market unless the trading position of her Commonwealth partners is fully protected.

At present, Commonwealth countries occupy a privileged position in the United Kingdom market.

Negotiations between Britain and the European Common Market countries are expected to reach a climax this summer, possibly in August.

Mr. Diefenbaker said in welcoming Mr. Macmillan that the Commonwealth is founded on "great and abiding principles."

"It is maintained through consultation. It is in that spirit that I welcome you again to Ottawa."

Finance Minister Fleming, Defence Minister Harkness and Trade Minister Hees were among others at the airport.

Behind the police crowd of about 300, who gathered to witness Mr. Macmillan's arrival, were a number of peace bearers of the Voice of Women, an organization dedicated to nuclear disarmament. A similar group was at Government House to which Mr. Macmillan arrived there.

The women wore black armbands as a "sign of mourning" for children yet unborn whose lives might be affected by nuclear tests.

The Voice of Women planned a "silent vigil" on Parliament Hill today during Mr. Macmillan's first conference with Mr. Diefenbaker.

Will Test H-Bomb Blasts' Effects Upon Electronic Communications

WASHINGTON (AP) — The exploding of H-bombs at high altitude over the Pacific will give scientists another opportunity to check the effects of such blasts on electronic communications.

There is no clue as to just when such blasts may be set off as part of the current United States nuclear test program, but a warning to navigators and pilots to avoid an area around Johnston Island becomes effective Tuesday.

However, the Federal Aviation Agency has told airliners crossing the Pacific Ocean that they can expect three to four days warning before bomb shots are fired.

High-in-the sky shots touched off in the Pacific in 1958 upset communications in various ways and degrees as far as 1,500 miles from the burst.

Two high-altitude shots were fired in that series, one known

ENUMERATORS START ROUNDS TO COUNT HEADS

Will Complete Work by Saturday

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal enumeration starts today with 67,000 workers counting the heads likely to be eligible to choose the country's next government.

The count will be completed next Saturday and the voting lists will appear soon afterward. They are expected to show about 9,800,000 persons with the right to vote in the federal general election on Monday, June 18.

Whether they use that right is up to them. The last parliament was chosen in 1958 by 79 per cent of the 8,131,200 persons who then had the franchise—biggest turnout since reliable figures were first kept in 1931.

Voting qualifications this time are basically the same as they were in 1958.

The law says an eligible voter is one who on April 18—the day the election writs were issued—was at least 21, and who is a Canadian citizen, or a British subject who has lived in Canada for a year.

SOME MUST RETURN

That means your vote must be cast in the federal constituency where you lived April 19. Anyone who has moved since then has to go back to his former constituency if he wants to vote.

Only exceptions to that rule are teachers and clergymen and — this year for the first time — their wives and dependents. They can vote wherever they are living June 18.

About 83,000 Indians on reservations also will have the vote for the first time in this election.

Preliminary voting lists will start appearing in the week after the enumeration. Printed lists have to be up in post offices in rural ridings and mailed to urban dwellings by May 21.

Deadline for revisions is May 31 in the rural constituencies and June 2 in the urban ones. Except for a few cases, if your name isn't on the list after that you won't be allowed to vote.

Advance polls will be open Saturday, June 9, and Monday, June 11.

They will be open for the first time in any eligible voter who signs an affidavit saying he believes he will be away on Election Day.

Previously, the advance polls were open only for commercial travellers, transportation employees, fishermen and members of the RCMP and reserve forces.

Around mid-morning, however, the city clock was tuned in to "fast time."

Paper Says U.S. Puts Pressure On Britain

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON (CP)—The Beaverbrook newspapers are giving prominence to reports that the United States is putting pressure on Britain to join the European Economic Community.

The Canadian - born Lord Beaverbrook bitterly opposes the Common Market. His papers publish hostile stories nearly every day.

The Daily Express devotes its main feature page today to an article emphasizing "this relentless pressure." The article by Alexander Kenworthy, says:

"Go! Go! Go! Those are America's instructions to Britain this weekend. Stop hesitating, says President Kennedy. Get into the Common Market."

The Sunday Express, also pro the Beaverbrook newspapers, makes a similar point in a front-page story and adds the warning that if it becomes apparent the Kennedy administration is forcing the hand on Britain, it would have a "profound effect" on Canadian opinion.

It could, says the paper, "bring about a sweeping sundering of the Minister John Diefenbaker in next month's elections."

THEMES FOR CARTOON

The Canadian election and the Common Market also are the themes of cartoons by Vicky in the Manchester Guardian.

This shows visiting Prime Minister Macmillan locked in an embrace with an almost prostrate Prime Minister Diefenbaker, and at the same time extending a long arm over Diefenbaker's shoulder toward Liberal Leader Pearson.

In the picture are posters saying "vote for Dief — anti-EEC" and "vote for Pearson — pro-EEC."

The Guardian is the third British publication to take up the theme that Britain would have less difficulty with Pearson than with Diefenbaker over the Common Market. Comments in the same vein came earlier from the Observer and London Economist paper, and the New Statesman, a left-wing weekly.

Mac Smith, barbermaster for the city of Belleville, was re-elected president at the annual meeting of the Belleville Progressive Conservative Association held on Saturday evening at the Kiwanis Centre.

Other officers who have served with Mr. Smith for the past four years, were also re-elected to office.

The following is the slate of officers, which will remain unchanged at least until after the federal election in June:

Past president, John Lennox; president, Mac Smith; first vice-president, Harry Rollins; second vice-president, Ronald Case, QC; third vice-president, Raymond Kidd; secretary, W. J. McCormick; treasurer, John Cox.

Mr. Ben Allmark, MP, Progressive Conservative member for Kingston, was the special speaker and he extolled the benefits of the Diefenbaker government in the past four years and predicted another victory for the Progressive Conservative party at the general election to be held on June 18.

Approximately 50 were in attendance.

"No one that I know," said the speaker, "has the ability to spread a little more joy when and where needed, quite like Lee Grills. He is a credit to a political party with integrity, the Progressive Conservatives—keep him in Ottawa."

KEPT PROMISES

"Mr. Diefenbaker has given the people of Canada a new conception of a political party. The Progressive Conservative party is a party of integrity, a party which believes promises are made to be kept."

No government, said Mr. Allmark, has ever fulfilled its election promises as has the present government. "The Liberals will promise the people of Canada almost anything because they know they will not have to fulfill those promises.

"Compare the dynamic leadership George Drew has given to Canadian business, with the dictatorship which Canadians would receive from the Liberal group who met a few months ago in Ottawa and sang 'We are poor little lambs who have lost our way, we're little black sheep who have gone astray, the Lord have mercy on such as we . . . Ba, ba, ba.'

"Why," said Mr. Allmark, "believe that given the power leadership, Canadian industry will go ahead and manufacture more, and create more jobs.

"I do not believe the Canadian industry should be regimented like the group of bareheaded egg heads. We Conservatives believe sincerely in political unity and freedom for all Canadians, that we practise what we preach."

In closing, Mr. Allmark stated, "Ours is a great party with a great leader."

The speaker was thanked by Gerald Hyde.

Starlings May Have Caused Air Disaster

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — A high - pitched twitter, comparable to the sound of crickets in a field, may have been a factor in the 1960 crash of an airliner in Boston.

The federal aviation agency's Civil Aero - Medical Research Institute here has announced that conclusion after a two - year study of the effect of noise on pilots.

The research team learned that most starlings migrate south in the autumn and grounds in the fall, but a few stick around to take pot luck in the cold. It was learned that starlings associate the sound of crickets with food.

Investigators made tape recordings of cricket sounds and the sounds of various aircraft engines, including the Electra. The sound characteristics were analyzed on oscilloscopes.

The only similar sounds were those of the crickets and the Electra engines," report Mohler and Swearingen.

This is the reason, the researchers say, that the starlings flock behind Electras as they taxi prior to take-off. The sounds of other aircraft engines would disperse them.

Mohler and Swearingen, in their report, suggest that changing the number of revolutions a minute in the Electra's engines during takeoff and taxiing would eliminate the sound frequency that attracts the birds.

Three Toronto Men Rescued, Boat Capsizes

TRENTON — Three Toronto men narrowly escaped death by drowning in the rough waters of Waller's Bay, Sunday.

On a weekend fishing trip to this district, Sam Udin, Ivor Hewitt and Albert Lederman, all of Toronto, rowed out on the bay shortly after 9 a.m. in a small boat. At 10.30 their wives for help were heard on shore by three other Toronto men, and George Richardson, Joseph Beaudoin and Percy Webb set out in Richardson's powered boat. The men were picked up near their overturned craft.

One of them had worn a life jacket and he started to swim for shore.

The rescued men were put to bed in Richardson's home on Trenton firemen, a doctor and the provincial police were sent to the scene, but after the doctor (Dr. W. W. Weaver of Trenton), had examined the three men, it was decided to allow them to remain where they were. By nightfall, they had recovered sufficiently to return to Toronto.

Ed Ketchison, who operates a fishing camp on the bay, told a reporter last night that the men had been in very real danger. He said the boat capsized and they were unable to right it. The boat became overloaded in a small boat. Mr. Ketchison said Brewer capsized. It is a fact that the boat was "not one of my boats."

Prevent Spread Of Fire From Logs to Shed

TRENTON — Around 4.45 p.m. Sunday two fire trucks and men were sent to Harry Lafferty's farm, Smithfield, when the barn started to a large pile of newly-cut logs adjacent to the building. Firemen fought to keep the blaze from spreading to the overhanging barn.

It was necessary to strike the fire hose along a dirt road and through a field to get water from a swamp, approximately a quarter of a mile away. The flames, fanned by the wind, could be seen for a considerable distance from Highway Two to the south.

Owner Harry Lafferty showed dirt from the ploughed field on to the end of the log pile nearest the building shed and the firefighting efforts were also directed at this end of the pile to prevent the fire spreading to the shed and other buildings. When fire is thought to have been started by children burning cards board near the log pile.

CAR HITS HOLE

TRENTON—Saturday night a car driven by Bert Mulder of Oshawa, was damaged to the estimated extent of $300 when it slid into a hole in the road on Dundas Street East in Trenton, skidded, and ended up against a hydro pole at the side of the road. Damage to the pole was estimated at $50. The driver was not injured.

Police say that the hole, four inches deep, is a former storm sewer, covered by a grate.

RUNAWAY CAR

TRENTON — Keith Walsh, of 13 Elizabeth St., Trenton, witnessed an odd occurrence on Water St. Saturday night.

A car parked at the side of the road, suddenly took off, driverless, angled over a lawn at 174½ Water St. and nosed itself into a crevice at the rear of the buildings on the street. The car, owned by Theodore Mikle of Concession, was not damaged to any extent.

Fire Damages Empty House, Blame Wiring

TRENTON—At 10.30 p.m. on Sunday, the department was called to fight a fire in an empty apartment house at 13½ Cedar Street. The large frame building is owned by Miss Marjorie Gothard. Spectators, numbering 100 more or less, stood in teeming rain while the firemen fought to subdue the smoldering fire. Smoke belched from every part of the building. By 12.45 a.m. today it was considered that the fire had been put out and the trucks and men returned to the fire hall. Around 4 a.m., night men on duty at the hall and volunteers were recalled to the scene as the fire had broken out again.

The roof at the rear of the building was partially destroyed and the back portion suffered most of the damage.

Loss is estimated at around $3000.

It is thought that the fire started in the wiring system of the dwelling.

Children Will Be Taken to School by Bus

HARLEYBURY, Ont. (CP) — One of the Roland Merciers' bundle of problems has been taken care of. Starting today, their adopted children will be going to school for the first time since Christmas.

The family had been snowbound through to winter, but the Children's Aid Society here has made arrangements for a school bus to take the children to a separate school in Cobalt.

Now the Merciers' biggest remaining problem is how to care for their children on their meagre income.

The problem became tougher April 4 when Mrs. Mercier, 30, gave birth to her fourth set of twins. The newest twins, baptized Jerry and Joan, brought the number of Mercier children to 11.

News of the new set of twins brought a quick response from all parts of Ontario and the family now is literally swamped with clothing. But while money has come in from individuals and organizations, problems still remain.

Mr. Mercier has to make do with $2,000 a year from mining ... lies for area mines, a $66 monthly family allowance cheque and whatever income he can realize from his small, isolated farm 15 miles from here in Strathcona township.

The 40-year-old former miner has been unable to get steady work and for medical reasons has been turned down several times in bids to return to the pits.

Five European Soldiers Slain As They Slept

ALGIERS (AP)—Five European soldiers were slain as they slept Sunday by Moslem troops of their unit, posted near the Moroccan border, a military source reported today.

After opening fire on their comrades, the three Moslem soldiers fled into mountainous countryside with all their weapons and ammunition they could carry, the informants said.

The incident occurred at a frontier post near Marnia, located about 50 miles west of the Moroccan frontier.

It was not the first time Moslems serving in the French Army have deserted their units in the Algerian war. Sunday's was the most serious incident reported since the Franco-Algerian cease-fire went into effect March 19. Moslems in the French Army have been under increasing pressure to join the rebel army since the cease-fire was signed.

The French Army is still manning electrified barbed wire barriers along the Moroccan and Tunisian frontiers in order to bar entry into Algeria of 40,000 rebel troops in Morocco and Tunisia, authorities say. The rebel forces may not enter Algeria through until a vote is held on Algeria's future.

Meanwhile in Oran, French Army troops returned to the centre of the city after withdrawing from the day. During the brief withdrawal of the army-supported troops, cars and trucks were able to circulate freely.

The troops first occupied the centre of Oran Sunday in a manoeuvre aimed against the Secret Army. They were enforcing a ban against all vehicular traffic and parking. Citizens were warned not to walk along roadways in the area or be shot on sight.

Three Toronto Fishermen Win Top Prizes in Derby Held by Picton C of C

PICTON, Ontario (Special) — A packerel walleye weighing nine pounds four ounces and measuring 26 inches in length, was a five horsepower outboard motor for Toronto carpenter Yrso Kastrinen, 18 Alberta Ave., in the Fishing Derby sponsored by the Prince Edward County Chamber of Commerce, Friday and Saturday. He was one of 24 fishermen who shared one thousand dollars in awards in the first such event ever staged at Picton.

Although strong winds reduced the length of time fishermen were able to try their luck, 550 registered at Picton Bay Marina, while scores of others were out but did not enter. In fact, could not enter got a ten-pound specimen, but was not eligible because he had not registered.

More than one hundred fish were brought to be weighed, only the largest in each catch being entered. Double that number were caught but at least and four pounds were thought too small to enter. Catches of pike were also good but not considered in the contest.

All fish were caught in the Bay of Quinte, all of them in an area of the Quinte called Bagot's Bay, except one off Thompson's Point and one off Big Island. The famed Bay Bar, where 300 boats were congregated on Saturday, did not prove any prize winners but is expected to produce big ones later in the season.

Second prize of a 3 h.p. motor went to John Wren, 2188 Dundas St., Toronto, with a nine pounder, caught an hour before closing time. In consolation for catches but lacked the girth of the winner, third prize was an eight-pound specimen caught by R. A. Cooper of Agincourt, Ont.; 4th, Arnold Leonard, Oshawa; 5th, L. A. Cole, Belleville; 6th, Dr. Frank Williams, Cleeve, M.Y., only top winner aaaaaa 86 U.S. fishermen.

Other prize winners were E. Herrington, Picton; Wesley Green, St. Catharines; Craig Herrington, Leicester, N.Y., E. England, Hamilton; Don Stanton and Gerald Munro, Picton; Gene Haydon, Windsor; Mrs. Fred Greatrix of Picton, the only lady winner, Harold Herrington and Bert Bell, of Picton; W. Pike, Milliken; W. E. Hill, Scarborough; Clayton Dyer, J. F. Dyer, Jack Colden, Harry Walmsley, Dr. R. F. Evans and Donald Thompson, all Picton.

Congratulations to winners were extended by Mayor H. J. McFarland and County Warden John Fox.

The derby marked the early opening of the Bay of Quinte for walleyes, this earlier opening giving an opportunity for catch older and bigger fish, which usually go to deep water, but these eluded the fishermen as they were held up by the wind and waves. Biologists state that the fishing in the Bay of Quinte is expected to be excellent this year.

Chamber of Commerce members were well pleased with the response and plan to make the derby an annual event.

Dept. Answers 108 Alarms In Nine Days

The Belleville fire department has answered 108 alarms within the past nine days, the majority of them being grass fires.

The emergency alarm was sent out Saturday afternoon at Hallowell Jersey, when a grass fire threatened to wipe out a pine plantation and several homes in the vicinity.

The department was called to extinguish a garage fire at the residence of C. L. Roth, situated on the concession of Thurlow, which had been started from a grass fire.

Department officials said this morning that a pile of burning grass near the garage caught fire, setting fire to a garage attached to the Roth home.

Considerable damage resulted as the roof and one end of the garage burned. There was no damage to the house.

Firemen were able to bring the fire under control as it reached the edge of the woods.

An alert was also sent out throughout the district for volunteer firefighters to bring brooms and shovels to prevent the blaze from spreading into the woods.

The fire caused great concern to residents of homes nearby were in danger of being wiped out.

Titov and Wife Tour New York

NEW YORK (AP) — Russian cosmonaut Gherman Titov and his pretty brunette wife, Tamara, 24, met today with National Aeronautics and Space Agency - General U Thant at UN headquarters.

Titov, smiling and in obvious good spirits after a night on the town, was greeted with a burst of applause from several hundred spectators as his motorcade arrived at the UN.

Titov, in Soviet style, appplauded in return.

The Soviet spaceman and his wife wasted little time after their arrival Sunday in hitting the tourist trail. They did the works — Broadway, Empire State Building, Wall Street—and took a look at the statue of liberty from the harbor. They were greeted by crowds everywhere.

Before the tour started, Titov said he was looking forward to meet American astronaut John Glenn Jr.

"We will have quite a lot to talk about," Titov said through an interpreter.

Danger From Nuclear Tests

Valerian Zorin, Russian delegate to the 17-nation disarmament conference at Geneva, Thursday said that the resumption of nuclear testing by the U.S. has brought the world to the abyss of a nuclear war.

This is probably not true.

It would only be true if this series of tests, or other series following it by either Russia or the U.S., should:

Provide one side with such an advantage over the other that it believed it could win a nuclear war without suffering heavy casualties itself, and then only if it were callous enough to murder millions of innocent people to achieve this victory.

Or if such tests should:

So frighten one side at the possibility of the other attaining such an advantage that it would decide to strike first, at a time when both sides would suffer equally — and probably fatally.

Such an advantage might accrue to the side which first developed an anti-missile missile.

Paradoxically enough, therefore, there will be people who will be devoutly hoping that not only their potential enemies, but also their own side, will not be able to develop such a defensive weapon.

Once one side was equipped with such anti-missile missiles, the deterrent of terror would be eliminated. But the major danger of a nuclear war would probably spring not from the possible launching of an attack by a nation so protected, but from the likelihood of the unprotected nation losing its head and launching a "preventive war" before its enemy could develop a stockpile of such defensive missiles.

All of these considerations, though, do not begin to touch one of the main objections to future tests be they by the Russians, the Americans or anyone else.

There is a large body of scientific opinion which holds that thousands, or even millions, of people on this earth have already been doomed to pain, suffering and an earlier death than would otherwise have come to them, as the result of past tests. These scientists are convinced that strontium 90 fallout has already been heavy enough to increase the incidence of leukemia, a form of cancer of the blood for which there is no cure. Since the damage done by radiation is cumulative, if these scientists are correct the number of future leukemia victims will rise at a much more rapid rate than the number of new tests, compared with past tests, would at first suggest.

It is indicative of the state of mind of world statesmen today, on both sides of the Iron Curtain, that this possible damage from the tests themselves is almost never mentioned by them in their apologia for decisions to resume tests.

In one sense they are right. There is something much more important at stake than the possibility of increased suffering and earlier death for a few of the world's teeming millions. This is the whole future of the race—whether, indeed, it is to have a future much exceeding the lifespan of those already on the earth.

It is possible to argue that mankind's hopes for survival are enhanced, rather than diminished, by the new tests—this, of course, is the "terror deterrent" theory.

But every new series of tests, first by one side and then by another, makes this hypothesis appear less and less tenable.

If it is indefinitely upheld, by the reductio ad absurdum process one can foresee the day when mankind will have ceased to fear nuclear war, for the very good reason that everybody on earth will be dying from leukemia.

Discipline Means Death

Last week, in this newspaper, Roy L. Smith in the weekly feature "Sunday School Lesson" compared the discipline of the Communist Party with the lack of discipline amongst Christians, to the favor of the former.

"The issue is discipline or death," wrote Mr. Smith.

He is mistaken. It is a mistake which men have made all down through history. The issue is not discipline or death, but rather discipline and death or growth and life.

"There can be no successful management of life without discipline," Mr. Smith wrote. Again, unless he accepts as discipline that imposed by the individual himself, he is wrong.

Disciplined states, political parties, churches and other organizations may become powerful because of the discipline they impose on their members — but this very discipline prevents change and adaptation, which is essential to continued life. In time, a year, a century or many centuries, death overtakes the disciplined.

Gospel, Amortized Version

By S. McD. in the Ottawa Journal

Last week a number of Ottawa subdivisions made a "help thy neighbor" pact to keep out low-rental housing.

The source of the quotation as used in this sense, has been found in the apocryphal King Farouk Version, or Amortized Version, appointed to be read in the offices of the social register."

Here is the full verse:

Help thy neighbor, lest he blackmail thee at the country club. Do not by thine unkindness him that hath power to do thee greater good.

Ambition IX, 14.

Some other verses from the Amortized Version:

The meek shall inherit the earth. Therefore first not thyself for them but while thou livest keep what thou hast for thyself.

Rationalizations XI, 17.

Go sell all thou hast and make a good payment on an habitation in a more exclusive neighborhood.

Prosperity VI, 23.

Blessed are the rich hereafter-fore they need not thy help.

Independence II, 1.

Fear not to cast thy superfluity on the waters, for pollution flows downstream.

Affluence III, 3A.

The poor ye have always with us. But come out from among them and be ye separate.

Better a barbecued steak on thine own patio than hamburgers at the community centre.

Discriminations XIV, 12 and 13.

Seek ye the zoning laws, for in them thou shalt find prestige.

Yea, thou shalt dwell in a sweet-smelling garden, and by thy window shall pass the well-to-do.

Security VIII, 9 and 10.

Look to thine expense account, that it war fet. Then shalt thy wheelbase be long in the parking lot, and thine horsepower multiply.

Expediency XXIV, 18.

Let the mortgages of the wicked descend to the children, unto the third and fourth generation.

Mankind Lags In Moral Knowledge

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

The biggest problem facing the human race has nothing to do with Communism or the hydrogen bomb or the population explosion — though these are the popular forum topics.

It is a problem that has always been with us — only today its consequences are more threatening than ever before.

We can see it more sharply; but we are no nearer a solution.

And the problem is this: that intellectual knowledge is additive, while moral knowledge is not. What this means is that each generation knows more than the last, but acts no better.

Man is the only learning animal. Man's brain permits him to store and transmit knowledge through history. Any six-year-old boy knows more about space than the wisest man in the world did 500 years ago; whereas no beaver or lion or horse knows more than his grandfather did.

But in terms of moral knowledge — the kind that effectively makes our will turn toward the good — we are not much advanced than men at the dawn of history. The Greeks taught Lao-Tse, or Socrates, is still somewhat beyond our grasp; we have scarcely begun to practice what Jesus preached.

Moral and intellectual knowledge increases at a startling rate, and moral knowledge remains at its ancient level. It is evident that the more control we achieve over nature, the more capable we become of annihilating ourselves. Who would hand a machine gun to a moral idiot?

There is more hate and fear and rivalry in the world today than there were during Biblical days or during the Greek and Roman empires. And why? Is there is a far greater capacity for destruction, which used to be fairly local; now every local war contains the seeds of global disaster.

Can mankind be trusted with its vast intellectual knowledge? The answer would seem to be "no." We have not learned how to control it. We are not exploring the means for doing so. Instead, we are spending most of our time, effort and energy on "defending" ourselves — and pushing fear and suspicion deep both sides gaze ed for imminent war.

If Marx had never existed, if the Incident at Sarajevo would have started the first world war? Or, going back further, who would have believed that Lexington, Concord and Bunker Hill have been the beginning of the war for American independence? Most of the significant events of life happen when humanity as a whole has its face turned the other way. Generations are almost never conscious of the great movements going on within their social framework and history.

Even more to be feared than world war is the silent and hidden decline, mentally, morally, and physically, which people of considerable authority believe is taking place in our life today.

We may not have to fight another world war if we oppose or endure the things which brought on two world wars.

Aims to Halt Car Snobbery

Christian Science Monitor

Snobs in London, England, are already beginning to lay plans to get around the order of Ernest Marples, Minister of Transport, stopping the "prestige number plate transfer" system.

The minister aims to make it almost impossible in future for nobs, or indeed others, to match their cars' registration numbers with their persons' initials.

But snobs are not despondent. Almost is not quite. The move will, of course, make personalized numbers more dear, at least.

The money value, or cost, of personalized registration in the past has been but 5 pounds (or $14).

To get an old, two-letter, one-figure number — JM 1, JM 2, etc. — the owner would have had to find out through a local newspaper that his car had happened to the car originally bearing the initial and figure sought, and that it had been broken up he could then pay a fee and have the registration transferred to his new car.

The comedian Harry Tate even owned a car bearing the figure number — T 8.

The system, though, has always had more appeal than a relatively new one for obvious reasons. It suggests that either the number or the driver has been in the family for generations. (Harry Tate's was genuine — he had been one of the first motorists in England).

If, however, an apt late number could be found driver about, the snob could arrange a transfer, also for a pound fee, when the machine was sold or destroyed. Or he could if he wished, persuade a current owner to sell or destroy it instantly. Many have done so.

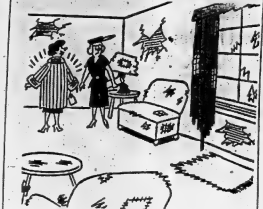
communism had never swept over them there would be some other greed, some other dogma, some other enemy. It is the same old conflict, with different names and slogans.

What is important is not seem to increase from generation to generation. All we learn from the past is to commit the same mistakes in greater and greater volume and with more pernicious consequences. The final question may well be: does man deserve a world?

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

WHAT OF THE FUTURE?



Will there be a third world war? Probably not. The probability would seem to be 51 per cent that we will not have a war and 35 per cent that we will. It may be 50-50. It may even be 90-10 against war.

Why should the communists fight when they are making such tremendous gains without firing a single shot? We must answer, back up, appease, reflect, and while we are so engaged communism moves in and takes over. Furthermore, they realize as well as we do what a war would do to their country. So we can be sure that communism will not fight if it can continue to grow without the pressing necessity of fighting. But there may be crises, and if there are these might start a war.

Mr. A. F. Bruges, Governor of Trenton Moose Lodge, No. 1163, was appointed the first president of the Ontario Moose Association, Eastern Division, as delegates from eight district lodges from Kingston to Cornwall met at the Hotel Quinte on the weekend. In proposing the toast to the Loyal Order of Moose, Mr. Laurie Lewis declared that the cornerstone of the Moose order was founded on "charity and brotherhood," the greater of which was brotherhood. Mr. Norman G. Reid, in response to the toast told his audience that the Moose Order had been founded 37 years ago for the brotherhood of the members of the white race throughout the United States, Canada and Alaska.

Department of Agriculture inspectors said today that any attempt to circumvent the appointment have been caused by the abuse of the use of the tree fruits for growing peaches that some municipalities have passed ordinances prohibiting its use on any kind of fruit offered on public market.

A near-drowning accident occurred in the Bay of Quinte Sunday afternoon when Gordon Wahl, of Leamington and former student at Albert College School for the Deaf, attempted to swim across the bay from C.S.D. Island and became exhausted. Fortunately Miss Fern Belesap, daughter of Manley Belesap of Rossmore, was playing along the Prince Edward County side of the bay there. The girl notified her father, who procured a row boat and hastened to the assistance of the youth, arriving at the scene barely in time to save the exhausted lad who was sinking.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THINKING FOR YOURSELF

It does seem as though the most precious possession we can call our own should be our own thoughts.

The books that have stimulated me the most have been those in which each author has so expressed himself that I have felt a separate individual was talking to me.

We speak of "original" thinkers when there are none. The best that we can hope to be is to put an old thought in a new way, or at least in a manner such that the largest number may be most attracted to it.

Think of us may say, as individual technique. That is, we can put the God-given spark of individual personality back of each one of our thoughts, and thus give the world something full of inspiration and beauty.

Birth gives to each human being a definite stamp — as no two have ever been alike. Is it strange, therefore, that these human beings should all have their own way of looking at things and expressing their feelings for their light? The fact is, however, that few use this God-given inheritance.

Most people prefer to let someone else shape their thoughts.

Thinking for yourself will make you strong. It will also make you more observant, more appreciative, and less easily influenced by those who are really inferior in intelligence.

To read biography and history will give you ideas and an opportunity to live in your self. People have to think for themselves in order to rise and create and make a worthwhile life and happy home.

Another aid in learning to think for yourself is to become a good listener, and not agree with everything you hear. You have a right to believe that you are right in an opinion until someone is able to prove you wrong.

Take pride in your thoughts and your own opinions!

Diet Can Be Important For Heart Condition Case

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

(Editor's Note: This is the first of a series of two articles.)

Dear Dr. Molner: Please tell me the importance of diet in case of a heart condition?

What is cholesterol? — Mrs. D.M.A.

Two short questions — but their answers won't be adequate, so today I'll discuss the first one only, the other tomorrow.

Diet can be important in heart disease, although I doubt whether this is so in the case that Mrs. D.M.A. expects.

There are various types of heart disease, and in some of them diet has no direct effect at all. One of these is trouble with a heart valve resulting from rheumatic fever.

To be sure, if the patient gains weight this causes a needless burden on the heart. Two such a person — and I think we can generalize and say that anyone with any kind of heart disease — getting fat is dangerous. A diet to reduce weight or to keep it down to normal is necessary. The purpose is purely to ease the heart's work.

But the blood pressure is the basic part of the heart condition, weight reduction serves a double purpose. It not only eases the load but it often tends to lower the blood pressure.

Now let's go one step farther: When a heart goes into failure, diet because of sodium is important. Failure does not mean that the heart stops beating, but no longer is able to pump blood efficiently enough to fulfill the body's needs under stress. Vast numbers of patients with known heart disease are not in failure.

Where failure does occur, smaller meals may be necessary because large ones require a relatively heavy flow of blood to the digestive tract. This would spread the effort over several small meals instead of a large one.

In addition, the weakened heart is apt to cause the kidneys working at full efficiency and fluid tends to accumulate in the body tissues. This is being expelled. (Swelling of the ankles or fluid accumulation elsewhere in the body, known as "dropsy" indicates this.)

In many of these cases even with excellent new drugs, restriction of salt is often required, because salt helps retain water in the system. Not only should the table salt be used, but also foods that are highly seasoned with salt. Prepared meats and fish, pickled things, etc.

Still further, the consistency of food may have to be altered to some extent if the heart's digestion and ability to eat.

Obviously we should try to achieve a balanced diet. This may be difficult with a highly restricted diet, as the amount of mixed vitamins is required.

Tomorrow we'll discuss cholesterol.

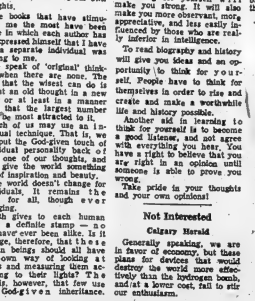
Dear Dr. Molner: What is the meaning of a very light, almost white stool? Is it serious? — G.A.M.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

There appears to be a new cult developing in cities: the dawn worshippers. I was awakened by a slight attack of indigestion the other morning at daybreak. Taking a look at the heavenly silent city out my window, I was struck with a magic two or more hours of fabulous peace. Everywhere, a solitary old can on his head, quietly sneaking out the back door and carrying a deck chair onto the lawn of his garden. He opened the chair, put the pinky grey light of this unearthly hour and then sat down in it with a indescribable air of satisfaction. He appeared to be breathing not only deeply but thankfully.

I got my dressing gown and slippers on and tip-toed out to my own garden to accost him over the hedge.



"Psst!" he said, coming to meet me, "Quiet!"

Between dawn and seven a.m., by which time the racket begins, he likes to have it as magic two or more hours of fabulous peace as possible — which only the birds, the clouds, the wind and the sky are awake.

"Skin out to your front door!" he urgently whispered. "There more in our block are going for walks! You can see them! They think I'm an Indian Rocket! Our doctor tells us it is the greatest cure for what ails us in the world. It beats tranquilizer pills a thousand per cent!"

Quebec Lifters Dominate Meet Here Saturday

The Belleville Y Weightlifting Club played host Saturday evening to twenty-two of Canada's top notch weightlifters from Ontario and Quebec centres. Belleville spectators and lifters were inspired and pleased with the performance, in fact two boys from this town held their own with competitors from Montreal and Quebec City. John Lewis (Ont. chairman) pushed G. Whale of Montreal to an 880 lb. total, placing second at 875 lbs. Price Morris, also of Belleville, in the heavyweight class placed second to Rene Bertrand of Quebec City. He was outweighed by 3½ lbs. body weight. Andy Martis of Brantford was easily pushed into third position in this class and also lost the Ontario heavyweight press record of 270 lbs. to Price Morris who made 280 lbs.

Mike Lipari of Montreal, member of Canada's Olympic team in 1960, overwhelmed his competition in the 181 lb. class. He practically lifted alone, starting after the others had reached their limits. Jim Lilly of Kingston did very attractive lifting but was no match for the Olympic representative. Murray Veno from Sudbury started out well in little-tot but was unable to finish.

In the 165 lb. class the young lifting sensation Pierre St. Jean from Montreal easily took first place with Yvon Chouinard of Quebec City second. The Belleville boys, Bob Langsbeer and Joe Lewis battled tooth and nail, first one in the lead and then the other until the last attempt put Lewis in the lead by 5 lbs. Ken Foley of Ottawa, brought up the rear.

The 148 lb. class showed some nice work, top man being Marcel Perron of Montreal and Joe Roberge of the same club. Perron broke some Belleville open records held by himself since 1958. Bert McEwen of Ottawa and Michel Hennequinn of Quebec brought up 3rd and 4th position.

BEST LIFTER

Top performance of the day's events was when Allen Salter of Ottawa, broke all of Tom Pedder's open records and walked away with the best lifter award. He was pushed in the first lifts by Jolson Hum of Montreal, but took things over in the clean and jerk, finishing well on top. Tom Pedder was present at the time and also received a trophy for holding these records up till now from the Y Lifting Club. Belleville's Roger Taylor (Club) and Bruce Fleming (Apollo) competed in this class.

Saturday's meet was directed by club president Jack Rushnell. Officials were former lifters, Joe Cox, Tom Pedder of Belleville; Pete Bazse of Peterborough, and Captain Robertson, AAU representative from Kingston. Weights were loaded by Y club members, Lorne Deline doing the bulk of this work. The master of ceremonies was weightlifting coach Bill McMurter. Lunch was served by the ladies.

123 lb. class - Allen Salter, Ottawa, Ont. 545 lbs.; Jolson Hum, Montreal 525 lbs.; Bruce Fleming, Belleville 490 lbs.; Roger Taylor, Belleville 460 lbs.

148 lb. class - Marcel Perron, Montreal 695 lbs.; Joseph Roberge, Montreal 690 lbs.; Bert McEwan, Ottawa 390 lbs.; Michel Hennequinn, Quebec City, 545 lbs.

165 lb. class - Pierre St. Jean, Montreal 765 lbs.; Yvon Chouinard, Quebec City 735 lbs.; Joe Lewis, Belleville 685 lbs.; Bob Lansbeer, Belleville 660 lbs.; Ken Foley, Ottawa 615 lbs.

181 lb. class - Michel Lipari, Montreal 870 lbs.; Jim Lilly, Kingston 735 lbs.; Murray Veno, Sudbury (incomplete total)

Middle Heavy Class - Goaford White, Montreal 880 lbs.; John Lewis, Belleville 875 lbs.; Jerry Vickers, Belleville 695 lbs.

Heavyweights - Louis Rene Bertrand, Quebec City 850 lbs.; Price Morris, Belleville 800 lbs.;Andy Martin, Brantford (incomplete total).

Cambodia Seeks Amends For False Viet Nam Charge It Raided Border Village

SAIGON (AP) — South Viet Nam received a stiff note from Cambodia today denying charges that Cambodian troops led an attack on a Vietnamese border village in which 54 persons were killed.

The note demanded that the Vietnamese government "make up morally for the damage suffered by the entire Cambodian nation following this false and cruel accusation."

Viet Nam has formally charged that 200 Cambodians, led by government guards, made the attack April 20 on the village of Vinh Lac, 130 miles west of Saigon.

The Vietnamese National Assembly passed a resolution condemning Cambodia and calling for a "change in policy" toward the neutralist monarchy. This was widely-interpreted as the first move toward a diplomatic break.

The semi-official Cambodian newspaper La Depeche said "if South Viet Nam decides to break relations with our country, it is free to do so and to take full responsibility for the decision."

ANIMOSITY FLARES

The flare-up in the centuries-old animosity between Cambodia and Viet Nam may become a major complication for the world in the area of Indochinese politics.

If diplomatic relations should be severed, the entire Indochinese peninsula would be split down the middle from the 11th parallel of the Gulf of Siam. In the West is pro-Western Thailand. In the centre is Laos southern tongue, controlled by Communist forces, and Cambodia. In the east is South Viet Nam.

One of the effects of a split would be on air travel. Presumably all flights between Bangkok and Saigon would have to detour far to the south over the ocean to avoid Cambodian territory. Flights carrying Cambodian or Thai passengers between Bangkok and the Cambodian capital of Phnom Penh have been discontinued.

In the event of a general conflict in Indochina, anti-Communist forces may find themselves split apart by the central strip. Communist units with their Soviet-operated supply bases in southern Laos probably could make quick work of marching south through Cambodia, completely separating anti - Communist Thailand and South Viet Nam.

But many U.S. military advisers here concur with a common Vietnamese view that the closing of the Viet-Nam - Cambodia frontier would help in the war against Communist guerrillas. South Viet Nam has long claimed the Viet Cong uses bases in Cambodia to launch hit-and-run attacks on Vietnamese government posts.

THROW OUT SYSTEM

ATLANTA (CP)—A century-old vote system permitting rural domination of Georgia politics was thrown out Saturday by a U.S. federal court. The ruling was the first in a federal court test of voting rights since the U.S. Supreme Court held in a case from Tennessee that federal court action could be brought to challenge legislative apportionment.

Excommunicated Father Not Allowed in Church

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Pretty Suzanne Marie Ricau took a long, lonely walk down a Roman Catholic Church aisle Saturday to become an April bride after leaving her excommunicated father at the church door.

Jackson G. Ricau, a top official in the pro-segregation South Louisiana Citizens Council, said church officials would not let him accompany his daughter to the altar railing.

But her father entered the church to witness the ceremony.

Ricau was one of three Catholics excommunicated by Archbishop Joseph Francis Rummel of New Orleans on April 18. The others were Mrs. S. A. Gaillot Jr., and political leader Leander H. Perez Sr. The excommunication edict said they incited the archbishop's "fatherly counsel" by defying his order to desegregate parochial schools next fall.

Ricau and his blonde 20-year-old daughter—the eldest of eight children—drove to St. Francis Xavier church in suburban Metairie and he took her up the steps. He kissed her on the cheek and she then entered the building alone.

SLIPS INTO PEW

Then his daughter walked down the aisle and met her bridegroom, Donald A. Boudreaux, at the altar railing. Ricau entered the church and slipped into a first row pew beside his wife.

"Suzanne wanted it this way," Ricau said. "We talked it over and she told me that if I could get her down the aisle to her groom, she would walk alone."

The refusal to let him accompany his daughter, Ricau said in a typed statement, "clearly reveals how far the hierarchy will go to suppress a Catholic layman" in telling the truth about racial integration.

"The 2 cor mu nication edict," the statement continued, "was obviously an act of desperation. It is, in reality, a spiritual bayonet designed to silence organized resistance to forced integration and to throw fear of further threats into the flock."

Gordon Says Govt. Record 'Dismal One'

PORT ARTHUR (CP) — Liberal economist Walter Gordon says the record of the Progressive Conservative government during the last five years is "a dismal story."

In an address Saturday night at a Liberal convention which chose investment dealer David W. Morgan, 36, to contest the seat held in the last Parliament by Douglas Fisher, CCF-NDP, Mr. Gordon, top financial spokesman for the Liberal party, made five main points:

Unemployment has averaged between six and seven per cent of the working force and "what these people . . . need and want is jobs—not more talk and promises."

"In the last five years, the output of every woman, man and child in Canada has declined . . . very different from the kind of prosperity which has been realized in Western Europe."

"Budget deficits have amounted to well over $2,000,000,000. We could not manage our own houses or our own business in such a way."

"In the last five years we have incurred deficits of over $3,000,000,000 in our transactions with other countries. We have sold for once huge amounts by selling off our natural resources and by going into debt to foreigners."

"The government's attacks on Britain last fall and winter over its heir intention to join the European Common Market were a most serious mistake. We should be supporting, not opposing, the great new developments taking place in Europe."

"The shameful attempt last summer to make a scapegoat of James Coyne for the government's mistaken financial and monetary policies backfired against the government. The minister of finance should have resigned."

Mr. Gordon also said interest rates are too high and that Canadians have lost confidence in the administration of the country's financial affairs.

Quinte Trap, Gun Club

Dick Rosalie shot a 24 to head the pack at the weekly Quinte Trap and Gun Club shoot on Sunday.

High winds kept the scores low and "a big weekend for the fishermen" was credited with keeping attendance low as well.

B. McPherson, George Hammett, C. Hart and Gary Cranston had scores of 20, behind Rosalie's 24.

Regular Wednesday shoots will begin this week at 6.00 p.m.

Friend of the family.
Bring some cars home and they'll take you to the cleaners.
Not a Volkswagen.
A VW takes care of your gas. If you're careful you might even get 45 miles out of a gallon. But day in, day out you can expect to get 28.
It's even stingier with oil. Never needs a drop between changes.
Another thing. Our car is very easy on its tires. You won't be setting any records if yours last 40,000 miles.
When the time comes for maintenance, you'll find that repairs which cost a conventional car owner an arm and a leg hardly disturb your budget.
You can trust a Volkswagen with your money. But how about your wife?
When she discovers the charm of driving a VW, and how easy it is to park, they are likely to run away together.
In spite of appearances to the contrary, there's a lot of room in a Volkswagen.
Mum, dad, three growing kids, the dog and the luggage all fit in comfortably.
If you've got a car that's eating you out of house and home, it's time you met a Volkswagen. (Nothing formal. Just drop in and get acquainted.)
Who knows? Your family might decide to give one of our cars a good home.

Weddings

FIELD — HYDEMAN

White and yellow chrysanthemums formed a lovely setting in Christ Church, Belleville, on Saturday, April 7th, at 2.30 p.m., for a very pretty spring wedding, when Minnie Caroline Hydeman, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Hydeman, became the bride of Roger Wayne Field, also of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard field. The Reverend Everett Smith, assistant rector of the church, officiated.

Traditional wedding music was provided by the church organist, Mr. John Croydon Withers.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charming in her floor-length bridal gown of white Chantilly lace over taffeta, featuring a fitted bodice accented with fluorescent sequins and tiny seeded pearls. The full skirt over net fell in graceful folds. She wore a matching headdress, and carried a bouquet of blush-toned carnations.

Miss Sylvia Alice Rushlow, of Belleville, was her only attendant, attractively attired in a mauve street-length gown with matching accessories and corsage of white and yellow baby 'mums.

Mr. Howard Hydeman, of Belleville, eldest brother of the bride, attended the bridegroom.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Engineers' Hall, Belleville, where the bride's table was daintily appointed with white linen damask, and centred by a three-tiered wedding cake, topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom, and flanked by tall white candles in silver holders. The bridal flowers added a lovely accent.

The guests were received by the bride's mother, wearing a gown of deep turquoise with black accessories, and corsage of pink carnations.

The bridegroom's mother was unable to be present.

For the wedding trip to Guelph and surrounding district, the bride chose a light blue voile over flowered cotton with matching accessories and corsage of pink carnations.

Guests attended from Brampton, Cornwall, Hallowway, Consecon, Madoc and Belleville.

The bride was entertained, prior to her marriage, at a miscellaneous shower held at the Debating Club, with co-hostesses Mrs. Annie Storms, Mrs. Alice Rushlow and daughters.

Mr. and Mrs. Field are residing at 44 Victoria Avenue, Belleville.

Art, Crafts Club Holds Tea, Displays Ceramics, Handicraft

The Belleville Arts and Crafts held their annual tea and handicraft exhibit on Saturday at the Recreation Centre. The president, Mrs. John Grant, greeted the guests at the door.

The tables, each with its attractive miniature garden centrepiece, were arranged about a charming central display. This syiwss grouping consisted of a cascading fountain and a pool of floating water lilies, surrounded by African violets, ferns and other greenery.

Mrs. L. Doran, Mrs. G. Davis, Mrs. J. Lennox Smith and Mrs. H. S. Robbins poured tea.

Serving the guests were: Mesdames Powell, McGee, Peacock, Cornell, Ethier, Brown, Garghan, Summers, Douglas, Helm, Thompson, Gardner and Fralick and the Misses Gelsthorpe and Sulman.

The floral arrangements in the second and the spring bouquet of the daffodils, tulips and Sweetheart roses centering the table were the work of Mrs. L. Jourard.

Mrs. Britton, Mrs. Lock and Mrs. Simpson replenished the plates for the tables.

Many comments were heard regarding the high quality of the work on display. Oil paintings, handicraft in a wide variety of subjects, hung round the room.

Ceramics on exhibition included vases, cups and saucers, ornamental plates, masks, candle stands, ash trays and various-shaped bowls. There were beautiful leather purses, wallets, wallets, key cases, a desk set, bookends, a gun belt and a leather cover for a log. Tables and bookends of decorated tile demonstrated the silk-screening process. Decorated flower pots, wall plaques, trivets, bowls, trays, plates, small tables and a lamp base showed the versatility of mosaic tile work.

Of special interest to the ladies were the small, hand-fitting, colorful hats by 'Joan,' who also had on display attractive trays and mats made by pine needle weaving, a craft not previously exhibited here. The copper enamelling work included jewellry and ornamental plates.

VARIED HANDICRAFTS

It was truly surprising to see the many and varied handicrafts shown at the tea. The Arts and Crafts Club is to be commended on having this display and for providing the courses of instruction in many of these crafts so that more and more people are finding enjoyment and interest in this type of recreation.

Degree of arrangements for the tea and display of work was Mrs. W. Brown, assisted by Mrs. R. Williamson, Mrs. B. Diamond and Mrs. D. McDonald.

Woman at 86 Still Behind The Wheel

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP)—A spill from a horse-drawn carriage and a small mishap involving a skunk are the only accidents marring Mrs. Lois V. Paterson's long driving career.

She is 86 now, and still behind the wheel.

After 50 years of safe driving with never a ticket, Mrs. Paterson was named Della Municipality's Good Citizen of 1955 for 60 years of community services and good neighborliness. She was given an award by the Chamber of Commerce.

Mrs. Paterson, widow of former Delta Reeve and MLA Alex McD. Paterson, recalls her only traffic accident was back in the horse and buggy days. A horse bolted and she was flung from the carriage.

In 1914 when she started to drive she ran over a skunk.

"I never killed anything but a skunk in my life and I was sorry for that for a long time."

Recently she took a test to renew her license and said afterwards: "The instructor said I did just a little bit too fast."

Only restriction on her licence is that she must wear glasses.

Child's Wear Going Native For the Fall

MONTREAL (CP)—Canadian children's native — will provide the inspiration for much of the children's wear available in Canada next fall.

At a preview show in Montreal for the country's Apparel Manufacturers' Association, dresses showed the influence of varied Indian tribes, snowsuits of Eskimos and sportswear of early French settlers and explorers.

A girl's car coat, for example, drew upon the Coureur de Bois for its theme and featured spatulets, a sash and an accompanying toque. Other designers worked in a Canadian motif by means of trim. Many of the girls' bore maple leaves or beavers.

All the 75 garments modelled were in one or a combination of Bacon Brown (dark), caribou copper (rust), maple leaf green (medium dark), or Prairie sunset (vivid orange). Fabrics were all Canadian.

Syd Knapp, chairman of the association's program to develop and promote uniquely Canadian clothing, said the garments would be heavily represented in the styles range of manufacturers for fall. About 85 per cent of Canadian manufacturers are members of the association.

Nurses Not Satisfied With Raise

LONDON (AP)—Seven thousand nurses from all parts of Britain marched across London's West End Saturday to protest what they called too low sufficient pay rates. The nurses recently received from the government a two-per-cent increase in their average weekly salary of $16.

Italian Working Girl Who Gets Wedding Ring Will No Longer Get Boot

ROME (Reuters)—The Italian working girl who gets a wedding ring will no longer get the boot.

The government has stepped in to correct the prevailing situation whereby girls are usually dismissed from their jobs as soon as they marry.

The cabinet has approved a draft law—assured of a clear passage through Parliament—and a practice bitterly attacked by women as "forced spinsterhood" and "encitement to concubinage."

The newspaper La Stampa recently carried a typical workgirl's lament: "The firm where I work has informed me that they will fire me if I get married. All right, then, since my wages are necessary, I am going to live with my fiance without getting married."

The situation was bad enough for the government to have discussions with industrial groups, trade unions and social organizations before drafting its law.

CAN'T BE FIRED

The draft is understood to provide that no one may be dismissed for getting married, and any contract specifying that marriage means automatic termination of employment will be null and void.

Any dismissal within a year of the marriage would be presumed to be because of it, no matter what reason the employer gives — a safeguard against difficulties in proving marriage as the actual reason for dismissal.

An employer found to have acted arbitrarily dismissed a girl because she married would have to re-employ her and pay all arrears of pay, allowances and social security contributions.

The new law isn't all one-sided.

There is currently a compulsory three-months maternity leave, during which employers must keep up the women's pay and allowances.

Under the draft, the state will bear these costs—removing a powerful incentive for employers to get rid of married women.

Garny Gets Results

by Mary Moore

The lion is "Little Albert" and has a comedient posture if you remember.

Garny's postures are the opposite to somnolent. When she wakes she talks. When she talks she gesticulates. When she cooks she improvises. What she produces is superb. When you ask her what she did she says "Oh, I added a little of this and that . . ." But before she left for Scosh Bend I pinned her down and rules subsided patiently and gave me the recipes for the things she had prepared last night for dinner. They were delicious and I know you will want to reproduce them.

MONDAY

Dinner Menu

Panned Baby Beef Liver with Parsley Cream Sauce; Buttered Noodles; Green Beans with Mushrooms; Stewed Mixed Dried Fruits; Blueberry Muffins; Coffee.

GARNY'S LENTIL SOUP

Pick over 1 lb. dried lentils and soak in cold water to submerge them by 1 to 1½". Do this in the morning of the day you are serving them for the evening meal. They require 3 hours soaking. Four hours before serving time add: 6 cups water, 2 small (or 1 large) cloves garlic, chopped, 1 medium onion chopped, 1 carrot chopped and 2 stalks celery chopped with outer coarse fibres removed. To 1 cup cider vinegar add 1 cup sugar, 1½ teaspoons celery seed, 2 teaspoons mustard seed and 1 teaspoon turmeric and bring to boil. Al once pour over prepared raw vegetables. Put in airtight jar and store in refrigerator 3 days before using. Keeps excellently for a week if cover is tight. Serves 10

Mrs. Joan Kay Heads Quintebelles

The Quintebelles Chapter of Sweet Adelines held their installation of officers for the coming year last Tuesday evening.

The impressive candlelight service was conducted by Mrs. Edith Anderson, past president, assisted by Mrs. Phyllis Chambers, retiring president. The new officers presented for the installation was as follows: president — Mrs. Joan Kay; vice-president — Mrs. Nora Barber; secretary — Miss Doris Lloyd; treasurer — Mrs. Edith Chalmers.

Corsages were presented to the newly installed officers and to the chorus director, Miss Muriel Jelson and assistant chorus director, Mrs. Audrene Moorman. The retiring president received a gift from the chapter, the gavel guard pin, a token of her year's office.

Lunch was served by the nominating committee.

During the month of April, the chorus put on a show at Wooler United Church, assisted by the Bell-Villaires a quartet from the men's chapter.

Three members of the Quintebelles: Mrs. Edith Anderson, Mrs. Jean Kay and Mrs. Audrene Moorman attended the Regional convention held in London at which time the Toronto Chapter of Sweet Adelines won the chorus competition. Several of the members accompanied their husbands to attend the Kingston Harmony Night held recently.

First Lady Bank Manager Puts up Mirrors in Bank

VANCOUVER (CP)—Western Canada's first lady bank manager has come new approach to banking—mirrors.

One so she can powder her nose. Another so male customers "can see how good they look."

Apart from that Miss Margaret R. Mulan says she will leave things alone at the Bank of Nova Scotia's University branch in Vancouver.

Miss Mullan's mirror for nonpowdering will be in her office. The mirror for men to admire themselves will be in the front part of the bank.

Besides the mirror she said she might hang some pictures in her office but "it's pretty hard to get things that really go with the mahogany panelling."

Miss Mullan's new position is not only a first in Vancouver but in Western Canada. The same bank has two women managers among its 94 in the east.

The lady manager, in her early 30's is Regina-born and went to work with the bank in 1934 as an $800-a-year stenographer. She progressed to an accountant's desk during the years Scola's University branch in Vancouver.

Miss Mullan says there is no reason why women shouldn't be just as adequate in the job as men.

"When it comes down to hard, cold cash, just put my women's intuition aside for a moment and assess the facts," she says.

Women Get Good Money For Talking Heads Off

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mrs. Renia Nilski and Miss Andree Francoeur got $50 a day and expenses for talking their heads off.

The have to do it, however, in two languages to qualify.

Mrs. Nilski, a Montreal housewife, and Miss Francoeur, professor of languages at the University of Montreal, are interpreters who handle English and French with equal ease.

They shared more than six hours of talking a day here during the national convention of the Canadian Label Congress.

Their job is a demanding one. They must translate every word spoken on the convention floor from English to French or from French to English.

They must cope with shouters and mumblers. And they must deal with those who know what they are trying to say but cannot express themselves clearly.

Separated by half a dozen qualifying phrases, dangling participles and split infinitives.

They are called simultaneous translators although some say simultaneous interpreters is a better description since they often run in paraphrases the words to get the speaker's meaning across.

Mrs. Nilski and Miss Francoeur sit in an isolated booth near the speakers' platform, wearing earphones to hear the delegates. Their translation is broadcast within the convention hall via push-button sets by translator radio sets with earphones for use by the delegates.

Generally they take turns translating, but they sometimes find one speaking about 20 minutes.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

DISCOURTESY CAN BE DANGEROUS

A person who is ill-mannered causes embarrassment, hurts feelings, bad-will and many other emotional mishaps. Frequently such rudeness is the cause of some nasty accidents that are only too familiar.

A thoughtless act can have painful repercussions. Ask anyone who has been socked in the nose by a door or poked in the eye with an umbrella. Accidents such as these are unintentional, of course, but many can be prevented simply by practising common courtesy.

Here is just a partial list of the sloppy manners that not only invites but can injure others.

Jostling in crowds. Trying to hustle others along can lead to serious downfall. This sort of rude behavior is particularly dangerous on stairways, in crowded bus stops and on heavily congested subway and railroad platforms. Pushing and shoving only adds to the melee. With a little patience, everyone can eventually get where he's going in one piece.

Sticking feet into aisles. Setting side-saddle so toes jut out into darkened traffic lanes seems to be a favorite posture for many who grab the end seats in theatres. As a result many a late comer has ended up rolling in the aisle — and there is no lauding matter. The offender usually doesn't realize what a major stumbling block he is. But anyone who has stubbed a toe on this fellow classifies him as one of the most dire threats to the American theatre today.

Failure to look where you're going. This can lead to a head-on collision. Some dangerous accidents have been caused by such carelessness. The person who walks backward before he's giving butts bending into others. Or, on the beach, he leaves his imprint on aching arms and bruised shins. At the worst, he's the object of the fist others are possibly into the path of an oncoming car. A courteous head-up attitude just might help head off a major accident.

Ignoring doors. Any mannerly person, both male and female, always holds the door for the person behind. Being in a hurry is no excuse for not observing this basic courtesy. Letting a door can be a dangerous misdemeanor. Bruises, a black eye or crushed fingers often follow in the wake of such thoughtless acts.

Carelessness with umbrellas. When not in use, the umbrella should be fastened firmly and the point aimed down so it won't jab at the others. When opened, the umbrella should be held above eye level to avoid jamming other pedestrians. Failure to do so can cause injuries that are not only painful but, unfortunately in many cases, permanent.

Chattering in cars. The passenger who keeps up a constant stream of chatter can distract driver to distraction. The driver's observe precautions. It's hard to focus on driving conditions when someone's holding a driving conversation. More courtesy beside the wheel as well as behind it might well help cut down the appalling number of accidents on the nation's highways today.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Mrs. T. Y. — I trusted him and he pulled a fast trick on me.

David Y. — It was the only way to get him to do right by my mother.

Mr. T. Y. — My wife and I have reached our 70's and live in our own home with our unmarried daughter. We have a married son who lives nearby and owns a pharmacy.

In recent years I permitted my son to handle my business affairs, pay my bills and buy and sell my mortgage certificates and stocks. I had complete confidence in him. It was a relief to me not to have to check my bank balance, and to know everything was in order. So when he asked me to sign a blank bank form, I asked no questions and complied.

A few days ago I stopped in at the bank to ask about interest on a savings account, and to my surprise was told the account was closed. Dave used the check to withdraw the total amount, and told me nothing about it.

David Y. — My dad is a funny fellow with money and I had to figure some way to get it around him. It wasn't for myself, but for mother.

Over the years he's been inclined to hold the purse strings tight when it comes to Mom. When she wants a few dollars for herself, she must plead and wheedle. As children, my sister and I knew that my mother would have to resort to tears, arguments and quarrels before she could get a new coat or a piece of furniture.

This never bothered my sister, but I felt very sorry for Mom. But I felt sorry for Mom and I solved the problem at last by getting Dad to sign that form. The money has been redeposited in an interest bearing account.

I'm sorry Dad had to find out about it that way. I planned to break the news when he saw Mom's new dishwasher.

The Council: When a person acts like a child, regardless of his age, he must be treated as a child. If Mr. Y. was using money on his wife the way a boss keeper uses fish on the reels, to make her jump and go into his net, then his act of abasement — he was behaving childishly and David may have been justified in an oblique approach such as one would use on a child to get his way.

David's stunt might be called shock therapy, except for it being more shock than therapy. He has made his point with Mr. Y., and initiated a change in his arrogantly behavior toward Mrs. Y. If he has made his dad resentful, suspicious, and vengeful?

He has not gain here is a more dignified life for Mrs. Y. with her husband having control of money. But it has been achieved at the cost of a wrecked (temporarily, we trust) relationship between this father and son. It was his total confidence in David which made Mr. Y. slip so readily. Even David must have been surprised and touched by the ease with which he obtained the necessary signature. Obviously this won't be possible again, not unless Mr. Y. undergoes an Pauline change of heart as to be glad he was duped into doing something he should have been willing to do of his own accord!

This eggcrisis what would have been the wiser course for David, whose subterfuge was morally and legally wrong. We refer to persuasion via a respected third party — a clergyman, lawyer or friend — who would act as mediator to see that Mrs. Y. received her due and that pete reigned in the elderly couple's home.

But now, how mend the hurt? Since Mr. Y. has no other fault to find with David's management, and since son's digest of the disputed funds is unaccounted for, we believe the father should forgive the son's attempt to play Robin Hood. And, by tendering both his father and mother an olive branch in sign, David should extend the hand of friendship, to present his wife with a proper drawing-account himself.

Staff Nursing Discussed On Panel

TORONTO (CP) — General staff nursing given much personal satisfaction to the nurse but not a great deal of recognition, was the theme of a panel concluded Saturday at the closing session of the Registered Nurses Association of Ontario.

The panel agreed that the general staff nurse, the one who carries the nursing ladder in her hands, is the most important and overworked group, such as the Canadian Nurses Association, the Registered Nurses' Association of Ontario and other provincial bodies.

Girl of Twenty Gets Highest Bid at Auction

SUSTERSZEEL (Reuters)— Raven-haired Rita Meyer, 20, brought the highest bid Sunday at this little Dutch village's traditional "auction" of girls to men too shy to approach them directly for a dance at the May ball.

A 20-year-old mechanic paid over 112 guilders (about $30) for Rita, who was declared queen of the ball.

Of the "girls," 82-year-old Miss Gertrud Peters fetched 10 guilders (about $3).

The auction tradition dates back to the start of the century and is the curtain-raiser for the village's May festivities.

The rules of the auction say that parents must allow the highest bidder to ask their daughter for a dance at the May ball. In some cases, wedding bells result.

Prime Minister Nominated in Home Riding

By ALAN DONNELLY

OTTAWA (CP) — With the election campaign just warming up, Prime Minister Diefenbaker takes time out today from politics for two days of meetings with British Prime Minister Macmillan.

He flew back to the capital early Sunday after a three-day political tour in Saskatchewan that culminated in his nomination Saturday night in his home constituency of Prince Albert.

Election day June 18 is seven weeks off, and Mr. Diefenbaker said Sunday that, in this age of air travel, election campaigns last too long.

The solution he proposed: Maintenance of a permanent voters' list which would make it necessary the enumeration of voters which must start seven weeks before every general election.

The Progressive Conservative leader flies east Wednesday for two days of travels and speeches in Newfoundland. But he has said his campaign won't formally start until his keynote speech next Saturday night at London, Ont.

TO AID INDIANS

In his nomination speech at Prince Albert, Mr. Diefenbaker promised that a special commission to recommend reforms of long-standing treaty grievances of Indians would be set up at the first session of the next Parliament.

He didn't qualify the announcement with any reference to the possibility that his government might not be returned, and he scoffed at what he said were newspaper forecasts that the Conservatives can't win.

An audience of some 800 crowded into Prince Albert's 760-seat Orpheum Theatre to see the man, unopposed, leader of the man who has represented the constituency since 1940.

A banner welcoming the prime minister and Mrs. Diefenbaker—"John and Olive Us"—hung over the stage and Mr. Diefenbaker's speech had little of a strong partisan nature.

Much of his support has come from people who have been Liberal and CCF supporters in the past. No other party has yet fielded a candidate in Prince Albert and Conservative officials indicated there is a slim possibility he may be re-elected by acclamation.

Mr. Diefenbaker's speech emphasized northern development —of great interest in this gateway to northern Saskatchewan —and other local topics such as wildlife conservation.

He said that a total 1,750 miles of northern roads, of 4,500 miles planned, had been built under the federal - provincial roads to resources program. New railways had been built to resources in Alberta, Manitoba and Quebec.

SEES GREAT ADVANCE

By the centenary in 1967, Canada "is going to be tremendously different from the Canada of 1957 when the present government took office."

This is the first general election in which all Indians will have the right to vote, and Mr. Diefenbaker's announcement about an Indian claims commission was greeted with applause. There are several hundred Indian voters in Prince Albert constituency.

The prime minister said his government since 1957 has greatly increased grants and payments to the provinces, increased old age pensions to $65 a month from $46, and increased family income tax exemptions.

Even with all this, he said, 85 per cent of Canadians are paying less income tax than they did in 1956-57 for equal amounts of income.

In nostalgic vein Mr. Diefenbaker referred to his boyhood days on a Saskatchewan homestead after 1900 when railway crews stopped their trains to hunt ducks and the novelty whooping cranes were "everywhere."

He said the government's new program of promoting duck breeding in prairie sloughs and

Douglas Opens 3-Day Drive In Alberta

By BOB TRIMBEE

EDMONTON (CP) — Canada lacks only a government that knows where it is going to become a powerful voice among nations of the world, says T. C. Douglas, national New Democratic Party leader.

Opening a three-day campaign in Alberta, Mr. Douglas told 130 party candidates, workers and supporters at a reception here Sunday night that action now is needed to rid Canada of what he termed the misery of indecision in its government.

Never before were Canadians so ready for "the kind of leadership we have to offer."

Mr. Douglas said he was more than casually optimistic about the way the idea of the NDP had taken root throughout Canada. Support was coming from agriculture, labor and professional and white-collar workers.

NEEDS PLANNING

There was an immediate need for a planned economic society. The present "dog-eat-dog" society of ours has just about played itself out."

Society had created many things it could not control, among them automation and agricultural food surpluses. It had created insecurity for all, not only for the poor.

Above all, "our so-called affluent society has lost all sense of proportion."

It spent more money on advertising than on education; more money on horse racing than on recreation and more money on tobacco and alcohol than on health and security.

"This is a queer sense of values."

HAS THE RESOURCES

Canada had the manpower, resources and capital more than to match the great strides Sweden had made in the last 20 years under its Social Democratic government.

Mr. Douglas repeated some of the facts and figures on Sweden that he quoted in an address Friday night in Rosetown, Sask.:

It had planned its economy so well that it had overtaken Canada and now ranked second only to the United States in its standard of living. It had no unemployment and hadn't had a strike in 21 years.

During that time more and more of Sweden's industry had come within the control of its citizens. But in Canada more and more industry had fallen into the control of U.S. interests which today, Mr. Douglas said, controlled 63 per cent of Canada's industry.

waterholes will bring many more tourists to the west and help conserve wildlife resources.

On a national issue, the prime minister defended his government's series of budget deficits and said they wouldn't have occurred if it hadn't been for a big increase in federal grants and payments to the provinces.

Mr. Diefenbaker spent most of Saturday working and receiving callers in his private railway car, and did a half-hour of "main - streeting," strolling along Central Avenue, shaking hands with old friends and getting thumped on the back.

Party Message Of Liberals Already Plain

By ARCH MacKENZIE

OTTAWA (CP) — The first three days of the Liberal party's election campaign—while low-keyed—show a pattern likely to last until June 18.

The tempo will quicken. Hammering at the government record will be stepped up. The final days will see the byways abandoned for a quick series of final meetings in major centres.

But the party message—already is plain. So is the image being projected by National Leader Lester B. Pearson after one day in Prince Edward Island and two in Premier Joey Smallwood's Newfoundland.

Today, following a weekend in Washington, Mr. Pearson is back on the road—Toronto first and then the West Coast. Then he heads eastward across the Prairies and into the vital arena of Ontario.

Few surprises are expected in the party platform. It is just about complete except for the final details of the party stand on defence—nuclear arms or no nuclear arms for Canadians.

Mr. Pearson speech so far has said that no decisions are being handed out wholesale. What the party offers is the product of four years of study and research, he says.

The campaign takeoff at Charlottetown last week was aided in with the decision to begin rolling in Newfoundland which remained staunchly Liberal when the dam broke in 1958.

All four P.E.I. seats were Conservative in the last Parliament, Mr. Smallwood's reading as he has never worked before federally, says he can deliver all seven Newfoundland seats.

In the two days he devoted to directing the tours of Mr. Pearson, he marshalled enthusiastic crowds and displayed an organizational ability a hard professional look.

The Pearson message is a simply-stated one. The Progressive Conservative government of John Diefenbaker has failed, Canada's stature at home and abroad has been damaged.

Liberals, working as a team, believe they have the answers. Mr. Pearson's buttoned-up manner smacks somewhat of the Presidency Kennedy election campaign in the United States—restrained progress will need hard work and few things that government provides are wholly free, despite what may be said.

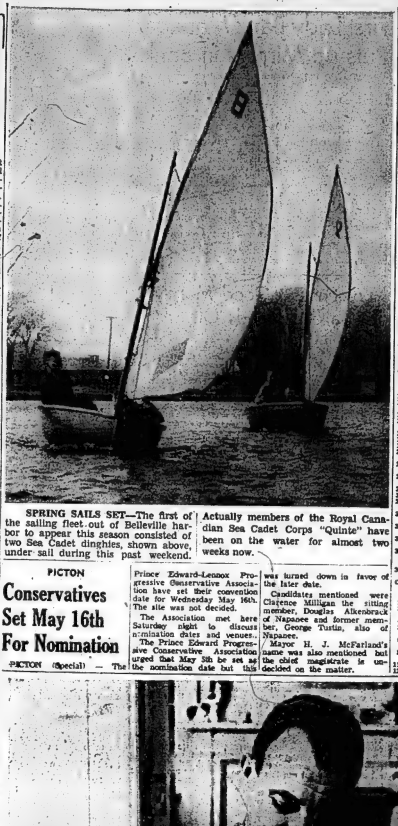
As for Pearson himself, he is a figure honed, tempered and refined by the hard knocks of the 1958 campaign and the heavy slugging of the last Parliament.

Contrasted with the Pearson of 1958, heavily sauched with the academic air of the former history professor and diplomat, he is urbane, quick to grasp a voting hand, facile with the homely anecdote of a small town boyhood and his father's manse.

He can turn a phrase in sporting lingo to show his interest in hockey, baseball and football —and mention of the fact that centre Red Kelly of Toronto Maple Leafs a Liberal candidate rarely failed to draw applause.

Mr. Pearson also, much more than in 1958, has mastered regional issues such as potatoes, fish and butter.

Conservatives Set May 16th For Nomination

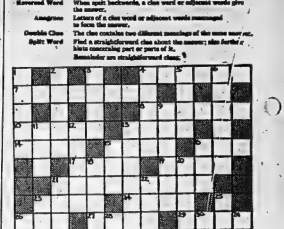


PICTON (Special) — The Prince Edward-Lennox Progressive Conservative Association have set their convention date for Wednesday May 16th. The site was not decided.

The Association met here Saturday night to discuss nomination dates and venues.

The Prince Edward Progressive Conservative Association urged that May 5th be set as the nomination date but this was turned down in favor of the later date.

Candidates mentioned were Clarence Milligan the sitting member, Douglas Alkenbrack of Napanee and former member, George Hall also of Napanee.



Mayor H. J. McFarland's name was also mentioned but the chief magistrate is undecided on the matter.

SPRING SAILS SET—The first of the sailing fleet out of Belleville harbor to appear this season consisted of two Sea Cadet dinghies, shown above, under sail during this past weekend. Actually members of the Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps "Quinte" have been on the water for almost two weeks now.

How long since you counted up the savings in your Life Insurance?

You probably know the exact amount of family protection that your life insurance represents. But how about the savings in your life and endowment policies?

How much do these total right now? How much will they build up to in the next five years? In ten years? How much by the time you reach age 55, or 60, or 65?

A good many people find, when they look up their cash values, that the amount to their credit—present and prospective—is considerably higher than they expected.

In your permanent life insurance, you have an unexcelled form of savings for the future. Your money is safe—completely safe. You can provide that, even though you should be disabled, your savings will continue to build up, your premiums will be waived, and you will have an income besides. At retirement, you can arrange for paid up protection for life—or you can use all, or part, of your accumulation to provide you with an income that you can never outlive. And at every step of the way, you have guarantees of the amounts at your credit.

You can't have too much of this excellent combination of protection and savings. Are you sure you have enough for both purposes—right now?

Church Home Her In

DORIS CLARE

DEAR DORIS:—Whenever I attend church, a feeling of claustrophobia or "I've got to get out of here" sweeps over me.

Five years ago when I was at my brother's funeral (a heart attack victim, aged 40), I experienced a nervous spell with palpitating heart, breathlessness, etc. and was afraid of making a scene right there in the church.

I want to continue to go to church for the sake of our son and daughter, aged eight and six.—HEMMED IN.

* * *

DEAR HEMMED IN: — Church may mean "Funeral" or "Heart attack" to you. I would guess that you sympathized greatly with your brother and suffered his ills keenly. Think over the connections between these ideas.

Phobias are common. You root them out by finding what started them, and remedying that.

So: consult your family doctor and have a reassuring physical examination. Then decide whether church is only important to you for setting an example; perhaps there could be peace for you in some spiritual thinking.

Could be the daily round leaves a good deal to be desired and you feel hemmed in by life itself. Is there something outside of your home that you are dying to do and just never get around to?

DEAR DORIS:—We are having trouble at our school. Three big boys push everybody around. I am so tired of getting pushed around and hit by them I could shoot them. Kids get hurt and the teacher doesn't do a thing about it. They swear and my brother is getting that way, too.

They keep wanting to fight anybody. One child got a sprained wrist, but, oh, do they care? No! They think they can do anything. Can you help us, Doris. Please! — TROUBLED TESSIE.

DEAR TROUBLED:—Is teacher unconscious? This is a job for grown-ups—teacher, principal, a school trustee. Your own parents, especially if your brother is getting in the act.

Get a pal or two and present a solid front to someone in authority. Bullying boys must be stopped.

DEAR DORIS:—I am interested in becoming an elocutionist. Please advise me as to where material may be obtained for this and also if you know of a class in elocution anywhere near where I live.—M. S.

* * *

DEAR M. S.—Your best source of material is your public library. Plays, poems, prose; literature on the art of elocution and speech—it is all there.

To find instructors, consult your conservatory of music and your nearest little theatre group. If you will write again, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope, I will give you the names of speech teachers near you.

* * *

TO S. H.:—For information about becoming a steward, write to me again, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

* * *

(Have you written to Doris about what's bothering you? A letter to this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope, will be forwarded.)

Use of Unpasteurized Eggs To Be Controlled by Govt.

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal health department has ordered a crackdown against the use of unpasteurized egg products in manufactured food preparations to prevent food poisoning.

A spokesman for the department's food and drug directorate said federal health inspectors have been studying for the last two or three years a reported increase in Canada of "salmonella" poisoning.

Investigations had shown that the use of unpasteurized egg products in "convenience" foods such as cake mixes and frozen dessert pies, usually contaminates the foods with "salmonella."

Health Minister Monteith said that products of four cake - mix manufacturers containing suspected salmonella - contaminated foodstuffs have been removed from store shelves. Federal officials declined to identify the companies.

Mr. Monteith said he expects new regulations to combat salmonella will be completed this weekend.

Health department inspectors now plan to intensify their search to trace possibly - contaminated foods by making random purchases in shops.

NEW METHOD

Suspicion that salmonella results from the use of unpasteurized egg products resulted from a new method of laboratory testing which was able to isolate salmonella from foods.

The health department, however, says there is no danger from such products as cake mixes when cooked at ordinary temperatures. Possible harm might arise if children were allowed to get at the pre-cooked product as a result of kitchen carelessness.

(General improvement in the bacteriological quality of pre-cooked frozen foods has reduced food poisoning hazards to a low level.

Meanwhile, in Kitchener, Ont., an official of the Ontario Egg Producers' Association expressed alarm at a report that 10,000 cases of Grade B eggs were being shipped to Canada from Poland. Gordon Hunsberger said there would be no way of knowing whether these eggs are salmonella-free.

Federal officials said they had no knowledge of the reported Polish egg shipments.

Princess Sophie's Dowry Brings Storm of Protest

By EUGENE LEVIN

ATHENS (AP)—Pretty, blue-eyed Princess Sophie will be married May 14 to the crown prince who some day may rule Spain, Don Juan Carlos.

In the midst of the preparations, the Greek royal family is coming under more public criticism than at any time since King Paul assumed the throne 15 years ago.

The king is a constitutional monarch theoretically above the political fray. But Premier Constantine Caramanlis attack the crown along with the government.

Caramanlis, a handsome, shrewd, 55-year-old politician, has been premier six years. He has guided Greece toward economic recovery and his rightist party, the National Radical Union, easily won elections last October.

The two big opposition parties, the anti - Communist Centre Union, led by George Papandreou, and the pro - Communist Pame—lead the attacks.

QUEEN'S FUND

A favorite target is the "Queen's Fund." This fund, administered by the royal palace, was set up in 1953 as a relief measure for victims of earthquakes. The fund gets its revenue from taxes on new automobiles and tickets for theatres, movies, sports and night club floor shows. The fund has continued as a charity agency. It gives no public accounting.

The attack on royalty has taken other forms, not sparing the royal bride - to - be, King Paul's 23-year-old daughter Sophie's $30,000 dowry.

Caramanlis wanted a $300,000 dowry. Parliament, with the premier's party holding a big majority of seats, approved.

But the debate was anything but sweet for Princess Sophie. The Communist - oriented Pame said Greece was too poor to provide such a dowry. Although 1961 was a record economic year, the average wage of a Greek working man remained low, less than $60 a month. Unemployment continued high—100,000-200,000 unemployed and 500,000 underemployed in a country with fewer than 9,000,00 inhabitants.

CRITICIZE DOWRY

Papandreou's party said Princess Sophie would lower herself by marrying without a dowry. There was no sign the royal family would turn down Soi-lo save.

Spain, too, has criticized the royal family for accepting the dowry. Spain's $30,000. In Greek villages a girl without a dowry is likely to remain without a husband, and the royal family has recognized this fact of Greek life.

One of its charities is "dowry savings deposit books" for the poor. The royal family opens a savings account for a little girl, making an initial deposit of $50. After that it's up to the parents.

Fashion Model, Nightclub Star, Once a Man, Plans To Marry Into Aristocracy

By PATRICIA CLOUGH

LONDON (Reuters) — April Ashley, fashion model and nightclub star who was once a man, Sunday confirmed reports she planned to marry into the British aristocracy as she poured champagne for reporters on her 27th birthday.

April, who was celebrating her birthday at a friend's apartment here, named as her future husband Arthur Corbett, 45-year-old son of Lord Rowallan, former Chief Boy Scout of England and now governor of Tasmania.

Corbett owns Jacaranda, a luxury nightclub in Marabella, Spain, frequented by international celebrities and aristocracy. He was previously married to Eleanor Mackie, granddaughter of whisky king Sir Peter Mackie. They have four children.

Mrs. Corbett was granted a decree nisi last month on grounds of her husband's misconduct with a Sandra Barsham. The divorce becomes final June 27.

POSES FOR PHOTOS

April, tall and "graceful, was heavily made-up and sported a turquoise turban, jangling jade earrings, an oatmeal suit and frilled pink blouse as she posed for photographers.

April, who was born in Liberpool as George Jamieson, son of a sailor, said: "I have been hiding from the press for six years, but now I have decided to talk and then maybe they will leave me alone."

Miss Ashley, who has already been offered a contract with a contract with a London nightspot, said she "hesitated for a long time before I agreed to marry Arthur and I am already freightened about what people will say and what it will be like to be Lady Rowallan with a background like mine."

During the last six months April has lived in a villa Corbett gave her near Marbella. She said: "I do not know when we will get engaged but certainly not until the divorce is absolute.

MUST BE SURE

"I want to have a long engagement because I must be quite sure about it and I want it to be my only marriage."

She said she would give up work after her marriage and "probably adopt some children."

At George Jamieson, April ran away to sea at the age of 13 and became a cabin boy. Later as a woman she sang and danced in nightclubs throughout Europe and then took up modelling with tip fashion houses until the secret of her sex-change leaked out and put an end to her career.

In 1960 she underwent an operation in Casablanca which finally completed the sex-change.

Long-distance telephone interviews with Corbett in Spain were reported in London papers, which quoted him as saying: "Any talk of marrying Miss April Ashley is premature, but we are in love."

A space scientist suggests putting a small asteroid into permanent orbit around the earth "as a lasting mark of human achievement.

So-Shu Hunsaker of the Goddard Space Flight Centre at Greenbelt, Md., writes about it in an astronomical journal.

He says some small asteroids — tiny planets which form part of the solar system —come so close to earth that their orbits would have to be changed only slightly to make them prisoners of earths gravity. He proposes using a rocket to alter the orbit of a selected asteroid, and push it closer to earth.

Sunlight reflected from such a nearby asteroid would make it look as brilliant as the brightest stars in the sky. At present, asteroids cannot be seen by the naked eye.

DEEP SEA BEACON

Navy ships will get a new navigational fix of precise position above the restless sea waves.

It will be a beacon, dropped to the Atlantic Ocean bottom, powered by radiation from strontium-90. Heat from the radioactive atoms will be converted directly into electricity to send out the beacon sound signals.

Ships doing oceanographic research then can return to the exact same spot in the ocean repeatedly, and fan out from there.

MALE MYSTERY

Marauding army ants which trek off on raids through the jungle have apparently persisted for 80,000,000 years. But entomologists rarely find any males in these great ant colonies. Males are produced in broods of about 3,000 by colony queens early in each dry season, but then seem soon to be eliminated.

Dr. T. C. Schneirla of the American Museum of Natural History thinks he has at least a partial answer from studies on Barro Colorado Island in the Canal Zone.

Soon after they emerge from cocoons, he says, the winged males fly off on independent courses. Most apparently perish, but a few reach a colony of their species, with a chance of mating. The wide dispersion prevents inbreeding which might otherwise seriously weaken the species, Dr. Sheirla says.

LANDMARK BURNED — The century-old Cannifton grist and sawmill built by a pioneer Cannifton family, is but a pile of rubble today following Saturday night's blaze. Spectators are seen viewing the wreckage of one of the few remaining water powered mills in the district.

RIDING CANDIDATE — Mr. John Paige (centre), Norwood district farmer, poses with Mrs. Paige, and J. Jones, riding association president, after being named as New Democratic Party candidate for Hastings-Frontenac at Marmora on Sat. day.

Holgate Mill at Cannifton, Landmark in Quinte Area, Destroyed by Fire Sat.

A century-old riverside landmark north of Belleville and one of the few remaining mills still using waterpower exclusively, the Cannifton grist mill and sawmill was destroyed by fire Saturday night.

Flames from the burning structure, fed by loose dry timbers, were seen as far as 10 miles away and attracted hundreds of homeward-bound spectators. Belleville firemen were on the scene until eight o'clock Sunday morning.

The Cannifton mill, dating back to the pioneer days of Cannifton village, was owned by Roy Pound who purchased the business from Arthur Holgate in 1953. It was estimated at close to $20,000.

The blaze was spotted by a Cannifton housewife who happened to look out her window directly before 10.30 to discover the whole mill ablaze.

When firemen arrived the flames were already rolling out through the roof and nothing could be done to save the structure.

Firemen had to work hard to keep the fire from spreading to nearby buildings and electric power lines, pouring hundreds of stones and houses to guard against flying embers.

The roof of the barn three blocks away from the blaze caught afire.

Firemen said the old mill caused some of the hottest fires they had attended in recent years.

CAUSE UNKNOWN

Cause of the blaze which destroyed the century-old mill was unknown. Mr. Pound had walked through the mill-yard about half an hour before the blaze was discovered and noticed nothing amiss.

The old mill which employed up to four men during the lumber sawing season, was built by the Cannifton family, after whom the village of Cannifton was named.

Until it was purchased by Mr. Pound about nine years ago, the mill had been operated by Arthur Holgate, who had run it for many years. It is said Mr. Holgate who replaced the original dam at Cannifton, was a concrete structure in the early 1920's.

At that time an up-to-date water turbine was installed and this was used exclusively to run the grist mill as well as the sawmill.

Besides the mill structure and machinery, Mr. Pound said a quantity of prepared feed and grain was lost in the blaze. A load of 20 tons had been delivered to the mill Saturday.

DOESN'T LIKE TWIST

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Igor Moiseyev, whose folk dancing troupe has held North American audiences spellbound, says the twist and rock 'n' roll are "dirty" and intellectually dead. In an interview published in the government newspaper Sunday Saturday, Moiseyev called for creation of new Russian dances expressing "communist spirit and kindness."

Liberal Leader Attends Dinner In U.S. Capital

WASHINGTON (CP) — Liberal Leader Lester B. Pearson says that as prime minister of Canada he would support establishment of an independent nuclear deterrent force for the North Atlantic Alliance.

Ending early confidence of a June 18 election victory Pearson also said Saturday he would renegotiate the controversial Columbia River power treaty with the United States. But he gave no indication of going as far as Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton in condemning the Libby dam in Montana, a vital part of treaty arrangements.

Shifting from the snows of Newfoundland to the 85-degree heat of this capital, Pearson dropped in for the weekend to attend President Kennedy's Sunday night dinner for 49 western hemisphere Nobel Prize winners. Pearson won the peace prize in 1957.

Pearson told reporters he "regrets very much" that Kennedy found it necessary to resume nuclear testing in the atmosphere. But he felt the decision was made necessary by the Soviet tests last fall and by the inability of the 17-country Geneva conference to come to any agreement on a test ban.

As for Britain's negotiations to enter the Common Market, Pearson said Canada should not adopt a sterile and negative attitude but should support the idea of an expanded Common Market and express sympathy and understanding for the British view.

He said he realizes British entry into the European market arrangement probably would bring economic problems for Canada and any Canadian government in power would have to make the necessary adjustments to protect Canada's interests.

Man Is Found Hanged in Cell

TORONTO (CP) — A man charged with being drunk was found hanged by his shirt Saturday night in a jail cell.

About half an hour after he was brought to a police station in the north-central part of the city, he was discovered hanging from the bars of his cell.

An inquest will be held.

Dean is survived by his wife, Gale, 18, and a six-month-old son, James.

Pearson Talked Privately With President at Dinner For Nobel Prize Winners

WASHINGTON (CP) — Liberal Leader Lester Pearson, winner outside of the U.S. attending was Pearson, who was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize in 1957.

Kennedy, in welcoming the winners at the largest function ever held in the White House, estimated that more than 40 per cent of the Nobel prizes in the last 30 years went to the western hemisphere.

"And of particular pleasure today is the fact that 13 Nobel prizes for peace have gone to those who live in this hemisphere," he said.

Among the guests was Dr. Linus Pauling, 1954 chemistry winner, who had spent the last two days picketing near the White House against the resumption by the U.S. of nuclear tests in the atmosphere.

In opening his speech, Kennedy referred specifically to Pearson by name with this light-hearted reference:

"Mr. Lester Pearson informed me that a Canadian newspaper man said yesterday that this is the president's Easter egg-head roll on the White House lawn. I want to deny that."

It was a reference to a description which Pearson said was passed to him in a letter he had received from Tom Creery, Washington correspondent of Southam News Service. He had mentioned it to the president earlier in the day.

Berlin Settlement May Cause Some Disagreement

BONN (AP)—West Germany admits a settlement of the Berlin crisis with Washington be how to work toward a Berlin settlement without recognizing the East German Communist regime.

The main difference appears to lie in a U.S. proposal to create an international body to supervise access routes to West Berlin. Sitting in would be East Germans as well as West Germans.

This proposal was singled out by Foreign Minister Gerhard Schroeder in an interview Saturday as a possible cause of trouble.

U.S. Gen. Lucius D. Clay, who is winding up an eight-month stay in Berlin as President Kennedy's personal envoy, appeared to follow the same general line in a television interview Friday night.

Schroeder insists that despite these differences, there is full agreement between Bonn and Washington on basic points in most Western diplomats here agree there is no serious rift. Indeed, some see West German Chancellor Adenauer as relaxing his rigid position somewhat.

SETS UP CONTROL

The U.S. plan prepared for Soviet consideration would set up a control authority of the Big Four powers—the United States, Britain, France and the Soviet Union—to assure access by the so-called Three East and West Germany would participate.

Schroeder hinted West Germany is prepared to accept this formula provided there is an implied recognition of the East German regime and provided Germans could not be forced to fere with access routes.

Schroeder and Clay say they are convinced the United States has no intention of granting diplomatic recognition to the Soviet satellite.

Three Fishermen Feared Drowned In Round Lake

SOUTH RIVER, Ont. (CP)— Three fishermen were presumed drowned Sunday in Round Lake, about 12 miles east of this Parry Sound district village, and a fourth man was rescued by two schoolboys.

The missing men, all members of the RCAF, are WO George Noble, 45, Pilot Officer Harold Harris, 43, both of Centralia RCAF Station, and Cpl. William MacGregor, 47, of nearby Frymount Station.

Civilian Archie C. MacLellan, 32, of Frymount was rescued by two boys in their early teens, Wayne Edwards and John Adriel of South River, who heard his shouts as he clung to his overturned boat.

The four men ventured on to the lake Saturday morning in stormy weather, Noble and Harris in one boat and MacGregor and MacLellan in the other. MacLellan told provincial police they tried to return to shore when the weather worsened and both small boats overturned.

MacLellan said he caught hold of MacGregor, a non-swimmer, while clutching the overturned boat with the other hand. He said he held on for 1½ hours until his friend lost consciousness and went under.

The two boys who were staying in a cottage on the shore, heard MacLellan shouting after he had been in the 33-degree water for two hours.

The boys paddled out to MacLellan in a boat without oars-locks and pulled him aboard. At the shore they dragged the exhausted man ashore in the boat but were unable to carry him.

They got a wheelbarrow, trundled MacLellan to the cottage, put him in bed with a fire and then left to call police.

Search and rescue operations are due to be continued today.

Farmers Urged To Grow Every Bushel They Can

OTTAWA (CP) — Agriculture Minister Alvin Hamilton urged grain producers Sunday to grow every bushel of wheat, oats and barley they can to meet requirements of 1,100,000,000 bushels this year.

"Employ every proven technique to conserve moisture and increase your production with complete confidence that there will be hungry markets, good prices and more space available for your grain in country elevators than at any other time in the past 10 years," he told farmers in a statement released by his office.

He said the record demand consists of 500,000,000 bushels of wheat, 350,000,000 of oats and 250,000,000 of barley. This is the high average production of 994,000,000 in the 1951-60 period.

With last year's crops only half their normal size because of drought and with foreign exports at a high level, all grain on farms will have been delivered at the end of the crop year and elevators will be only half full, he said.

J. Paige, Norwood Farmer, Is Chosen NDP Candidate For Hastings-Frontenac

Mr. John Paige, 57-year-old Norwood district farmer will carry the New Democratic Party standard as Hastings-Frontenac candidate in the June 18th election.

The outspoken Norwood farmer was chosen as party candidate over Grand Bruce of Bancroft at the party's nomination convention held Saturday at the Marmora Town Hall. Approximately 60 party supporters attended the meeting.

"The speaker for the convention was Mr. Walter Pitman, of Peterborough, 1st N.D.P. member elected to the House of Commons.

Mr. J. Jones, president of the party riding organization, was in charge of the meeting. New Democratic Party slogans along with large pictures of party leader Thomas Douglas decorated the hall.

DOCTORS FAWNS

Mr. Pitman said that doctors in Saskatchewan are being made political pawns by the Liberals.

"I don't know whether the medical profession realizes this," said Mr. Pitman, "but I think they have allowed themselves to become involved in a very nasty business. Unfortunately, all the doctors across the country are allowing themselves to be brought into this."

He said the Liberals are the most vociferous opponents of Saskatchewan medical care plan, yet have included a medical care plan in their federal election program.

"This is what I call an excellent example of Liberal schizophrenia," said Mr. Pitman.

In his acceptance speech, Mr. Paige was bluntly critical of Mr. Diefenbaker and Mr. Pearstrition and told a cheering audience that its action has made a mockery of government and democracy.

GOVERNMENT BY FEEBLE

He said the Diefenbaker administration had not been concerned for the welfare of the people, for the people, but was "government of the feeble, for the feeble, by the feeble."

"It has been said that Hastings-Frontenac is a Conservative riding. Just what does that mean?" Mr. Paige asked.

"Does it mean that the people here will support action or inaction of that party, irrespective of what they do to us?"

"Let me ask you Mr. Farmer, Mr. Miner, Mr. Factory Worker, where has it got you? Are you satisfied? How about the young men and women of the next years out of school who have never had the privilege of a paying job. Are you satisfied?

Mr. Paige said he had spoken to many residents of the area and said they were not satisfied.

He said they would like the health scheme they have so often been promised, rewards for their labor and a fair share of profits which they have helped to earn.

Mr. Paige said the Hastings Frontenac riding had been virtually written off as an improbable Conservative stronghold—somewhere they can run and elect anyone whether or not he belongs to the community, provided he is a "yes" man.

RIDING NEGLECTED

The result had been that the riding had been neglected as possibly no other part of Canada.

Mr. Paige ousted for promotion of the area's missing resources which he felt could one day be among the most valuable in Canada.

He referred to the lack of hospitals in the area and declared that hospital insurance without hospitals was crazy as automobile insurance without repair shops.

Norwegian Ship Rests Aground After Collision

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — The Norwegian ship Fernbank her right side ripped from water line to deck in a Chesapeake Bay collision Sunday, rested aground today while men from two U.S. navy salvage vessels battled to keep her from settling deeper.

The bodies of two passengers killed when the Tarantel was rammed just about amidship by the Greek freighter Hellenic Splendor remained aboard the stricken vessel. The Greek ship, although heavily-damaged, continued under her own power to Philadelphia.

One of the dead was Mrs. Augusta Fabrizi, about 55, of Montreal, wife of an Italian foreign service officer. The other was Richard Berry, about 40, of Westfield, N.J.

Berry's wife and Mrs. Fabrizi's husband were treated at a hospital here and discharged.

Mrs. Fabrizi's husband was said to be en route to Malaya for a new diplomatic assignment.

Heavy fog shrouded the bay when her ships collided about 2:20 a.m. Water poured through the gash in the Tarantel's side and she wallowed stern down. A tug and a navy salvage vessel had lines aboard and were towing her toward a shipyard when she scraped aground, four miles northeast of Cape Henry near the mouth of the Chesapeake Bay.

Fish Hook Lands in Lip

BOWMANVILLE, Ont. (CP) — A seven-year-old boy who found a fish hook snagged to a wire fence and tried to bite it free spent 20 minutes with the hook through his lower lip Sunday—the second day of the trout season.

John Colwell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Colwell, was freed by Dr. Grant Ball, a neighbor, who got the hook with a pair of pliers. A doctor later removed the hook.

"Why, sure I remember Miss Bell. She taught me every thing I know about spelling back in grade school."

Changed Tactics Pay Off

Montreal Whips Trail 5-2

TRAIL, B.C. (CP)—Montreal Olympics are on even terms with Trail Smoke Eaters in the Allan Cup championships after 4-2 victory Saturday night.

Pilous called his players together and told them to get aggressive. They meant abandoning tactics they had used for victories on their way to the east-ern championship. Today, in festive style, the Olympics had played it "heads up," waiting for breaks.

"The first game we didn't know what to expect," Pilous said Sunday. "But now we have the game pretty well in hand and we should see good hockey from now on."

Jacques Gagne, Connie Madeals, Jean-Guy Charbonneau, Claude Richard and Roger Pi-card scored for Montreal. Cal Hockley and Gerry Penner got the Trail goals.

HOLD IN CHECK

The two clubs battled to a 2-2 tie in the first period. The Olympics then held Trail scoreless while they pumped in three more goals in the second and third sessions.

If the Smokies were off stride, they had some excuse. With just 17 seconds gone in the game, something appeared to go wrong with the Trail arena's time clock, a couple of whistles blew and the Smokies stopped play.

Gagne gambled that the puck was still alive, swept past defenceman Ron Fletcher and beat goaltender Seth Martin. Referee Hugh McLean upheld the goal despite Trail's protests.

Hockey tied things 1-1 at 12:32 but the Olympics replied a minute later when Randolph outskated the Trail forward line and picked an opening in the net from 10 feet.

Penner quickly tied it up again on a scramble.

Then Charbonneau scored at 7:11 of the second period and Richard — younger brother of National Hockey League stars Maurice and Henri—made it 4-2 on a 35-foot drive. Martin let Charbonneau's slip through his pads early in the third period for the game's last score.

Toronto Splits With Vees

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Jacksonville Suns and Atlanta Crackers, newest members of the International League, maintained their one-two spots in the standings with victories Sunday.

Jacksonville clipped Rochester Red Wings 5-0 on the four-hit pitching of Ruben Gomez and Ted Abernathy, while Atlanta swept by the winless Syracuse Chiefs 5-1 and 10-6.

Buffalo Bisons beat Columbus Jets 5-3 and 9-2 as Jim Frey drove in four runs. Toronto Maple Leafs split a doubleheader. The Vees edged the Leafs 6-5 after dropping the opener 5-2.

The Suns and Red Wings split a doubleheader Saturday, Rochester won the first game 5-3 and Los Angeles the second 5-4. Atlanta beat Syracuse 3-1, Richmond defeated Toronto 5-3 and Buffalo belted Columbus 7-1.

INJURIES

Gomez allowed the Red Wings their four hits before retiring in the seventh inning Sunday when he injured his hand fielding a bunt.

Abernathy came up with two men on base and one out, fed a double-play ball to Bob Meyers on his first pitch and put away the final six men in order. The Suns got only five hits against John Miller and Alex Castro, including an inside-the-park homer by Vic Davalillo.

Mike Shannon's final - inning homer gave Atlanta its doubleheader sweep for the Crackers, who had at one time trailed Syracuse 7-1 in the second game. Leftfielder Leroy Gregory pitched a four-hitter for Atlanta in the opener, while Joe Morgan, Alfredo Griffin and Crackers' first three games, rapped a double and two singles, Jerry Buchek homered at Richmond for Atlanta and Dutch Dotterer had a four-hitter for Syracuse.

Frey collected four doubles, two singles and a pair of walks in Buffalo's two victories. Leftfielder John Herrnstein and Bob Wine homered for the Bisons, with pitcher Ray Herbert getting wins going to Dennis Bennett and Dwight Siebler.

Charlie Archer's double followed by Pedro Gonzales' two-out, pinch-hit single in the last of the eighth inning handed Richmond to split with Toronto and gave Cory Skaylock his ninth straight victory as a reliever. Big Skaylock for the Leafs in winning the first game were Steve Demeter's homer and singles by Lou Johnson and Sparky Anderson.

Sets World Pole Vault Record

WALNUT, Calif. (AP) — A world record of 16 feet, two inches by Don Cooper will be on the way toward official recognition and the owner, Dave York, has his sights loftier target.

"I hope to hit 17 feet," he said Saturday.

Relatively unknown until recently in track and field circles, the 24-year-old Cooper is the prize lieutenant eclipsed all official and unofficial marks in the annual Mount San Antonio relays Saturday.

Just the hooks and looking rather insignificant is the 15-9¼ height at which Brazil of the United States in 1960. George Davies of the U.S. did 15-10¼ in 1956 and Cooper stepped higher.

And last March 31 at Santa Barbara, Calif., John Uelesbeame broke the first man to break 16-foot ceiling outdoors—he'd already done it indoors—with a mark of 16 feet ¾ inch. This is pending, too.

Touchy Program Handled In Good Taste, and Style

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—CBS' The Defenders on Saturday night moved into a touchy area with a story about the trial of a dedicated doctor charged with performing abortions.

The program was dropped like a hot potato by its three regular sponsors, and was delivered at time on a number of CBS "affiliates in the United States and by the CBC in Canada. But whether one enjoyed the program, or whether one believed of the doctor, the story certainly raised an issue or two.

The drama asked whether an unmarried girl should have only a choice between bearing an unwanted child or of submitting to an operation that is against the law. To make its point, the program had as one of the doctor's patients a girl who went to him for help after being criminally assaulted by a stranger.

Unfortunately, also in an effort to make its point, the story line took some pretty sudsy turns. For instance, the success, by physician, of a surreptitious helping unfortunate girls did so because his own daughter died of a botched job performed illegally.

But it was, all in all, a most interesting program, and a very good taste and a quiet manner.

Sixty Hours to the Moon' was an ABC briefing Sunday night on some of the study and preparation to put men on the moon and, after that, on to other planets. Despite the practical subject matter, the experts and a down-to-earth commentary by astronaut John Glenn (it's still hard for the post-teen-age viewer to believe it's real and not science fiction.

Lady Driver Guides Top Trotter

TORONTO (CP) — The fine gelding, Wee Irish, with Miss Bobbe Hustrass driving, proved the big leader during Old Woodbine Raceway's 18-night spring meeting which concluded before a crowd of 9,933 Saturday night.

For the second successive week, Miss Hustrass, the only big black speedster owned by George McLear of Hammond, N.Y., won the $4,000 Invitational Trot, this time coming from fifth position in the stretch to win by 1¾ lengths over Armstrong Stable's Tonis Hanover.

In the closing night's competition feature, the $4,000 Invitation Pace, Jack Gordon won the Carling Cup Trophy as the meeting's driving champion by steering an upset victory with the gelding Lint, owned by Lawrence Hoey of Bronx, Ont. It was Gordon's third win of the night and his ninth of the meeting. Lint returned a winning $43.40 for his unexpected victory over such public choices as Hanover Alton Frosty and Laird.

The 18-night attendance totals showed 94,280 patrons wagering $3,545,943.

The mutuel total on Saturday's nine-race card was the largest in harness racing history in Ontario—$251,787.

Ottawa Clobbers Kingston

HULL, Que. (CP) — Hull-Ottawa Canadiens romped to an 8-2 win over Kingston Frontenacs here Sunday to take a 3-2 lead in the best-of-seven Eastern Professional Hockey League series.

The series shifts to Kingston tonight with the Habs needing only one more win to retain the league title.

Billy Carter, a smooth centre who flunked his NHL test with Boston last year and was returned to the Habs, got his club off on a winning note by scoring two of the first three goals and picking up two assists.

He was used only sparingly in the first game but Habs' boss Hap Emms sewed up the outcome with a five-goal burst. In that wide-open first NHL test, the Frontenacs got their only two goals, both scored by Don Cherry.

Other Hull - Ottawa scorers were Keith McCreary, Wayne Boddy and Gaetan Gauthier. Jim Roberts, Fred Hills and Bob Elliott, Canadiens' next - year rookies, and Cesare Maniago. He received a head injury in a brawl during the Friday night game in Kingston and was replaced by Ernie Wakely in the final minute.

Taken to hospital in Ottawa, he was released early Sunday and took his place with the Canadiens' net. He turned back 36 drives while at the other end of the ice, Ed Chadwick stopped 23.

Maniago Long-Range Winner

KINGSTON (CP) — Although Terry Gray of Kingston Frontenacs appeared the unanimous victor in a spectacular fight with Hull - Ottawa Canadiens' goalie Cesare Maniago in the closing minutes of an Eastern Professional Hockey League playoff game last Friday, the long-range winner was Maniago.

Gray knocked the acrobatic Canadiens goalie unconscious with two punches when tempers flared in the game Hull-Ottawa won 3-1 to even the best-of-seven final series 2-2.

But as the action was still hot and heavy, Canadiens defenceman Terry Harper rushed to his fallen teammate's aid and in doing so, it is believed, cut Gray's head with the blade of his skate.

Another theory put forth explaining the deep cut between Gray's thumb and forefinger is that he was cut by flying glass from a bottle tossed on the ice after the fistic participants had been cleared from the scene.

Maniago and Gray were removed to their respective dressing rooms where Maniago was believed the more seriously injured, suffering a slight concussion.

Maniago, still groggy and unable to remember what had happened on the ice, was taken to the hospital where he was kept under observation Friday and Saturday nights. However, he was released from hospital Sunday and played in Sunday's game, which Hull won.

But when Gray was taken to hospital it was also expected to be routine repairs on his hand, doctors found the cut had severed several tendons which had to be tied.

Gray will be sidelined for the rest of the playoff and also will have to undergo special hand exercises during the summer to prepare for next season.

First To Win Three In Row
Palmer Wins Texas Open

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—Arnold Palmer slammed seven-over 170 yards to within 18 inches of the cup on the 18th hole Sunday, then sank the tiddle putt and became the first man to win the $30,000 Texas Open three years in a row.

It was Palmer's third birdie on the four closing holes and it gave him a four-under-par 67 and 272 for 72 holes for a one-stroke triumph.

Palmer, the man who wins his greatest victories by coming from behind, had done it again and the huge crowd on the 18th green seized he had won although two contenders for the title—Gene Littler and Joe Campbell — were yet to come in and could have tied Palmer if they also banged birdies.

Palmer was winning his fourth tournament of the year and running his earnings to $41,-308.33. He has won $61,000 in months and with 38 more tournaments to go in the season Palmer can better the record of $75,262.85 he set in 1960.

LEADERS TIED CITY

Palmer, who has won three of his tournaments this year by coming from behind, was two strokes back before the final 18 holes.

Littler, the U.S. Open champion who had taken a two-stroke lead for 63 holes, faded on the incoming nine and wound up in a tie for second at 274 with Campbell, Doug Sanders and Mason Rudolph.

Palmer took down first money of $4,500 while Rudolph, Sanders, Campbell and Littler each won $2,050.

At Johnston of Montreal, the only Canadian to last the 72 holes, finished out of the money with a last-round score of 40-40—80. His total was 291. Al Balding of Toronto withdrew Saturday despite having qualified for the final 36 holes.

Looks Like Hot Series

Oil Kings Drop Opener

HAMILTON (CP) — Edmonton's travel-weary Oil Kings today find themselves in a familiar position—trailing in a Memorial Cup series.

The Edmonton club, after a gruelling Western Canada semi-final that went seven games, a travel schedule that allowed no time to unpack their bags and two sleepless nights, wilted under the pressure applied by Hamilton Red Wings to drop the opening game of the national junior hockey final 5-3 before 3,275 spectators Sunday.

Original plans called for the Oil Kings to make their quarters in Galt—about of the next three games of the best-of-seven series. But after a sleepless night because of a noisy party in the hotel, manager Leo Lemire and coach Buster Brayshaw moved their charges to larger and more comfortable quarters in Hamilton.

The accommodation wasn't the only thing that put the Edmonton contingent in a battling mood for Tuesday night's second game.

DERIDED BY BUSH

One of their high-scoring forwards, Phil Dutton, missed the third period of the opener after being high-sticked by Hamilton's Ron Harris. And, to add insult to injury, Hamilton coach Eddie Bush charged that the personal appearance of the Western champions was a disgrace to junior hockey.

"We're trying to promote junior hockey and they come here with holes in their sweaters and stockings," Bush said. "I'd be ashamed to let my players play anywhere with uniforms like that."

Harris drew a major when his stick broke Dutton's nose and opened a cut over his eye that required eight stitches to close. As a result, the busy Hamilton defenceman could be the target for the western challengers throughout the balance of the series.

SAYS HE WAS BOARDED

Harris claimed that Dutton, a former team-mate of Harris in Edmonton two years ago, cross-checked him into the boards.

"I chased him and I'll admit my stick was out of his pocket a mean to injure him," the 19-year-old native of Verdun, Que., declared.

The troublemaker Oil Kings, who travelled to Edmonton and then here after eliminating Brandon, West Kings in the seventh game of the western final last Wednesday, held their own for most of the first period.

But they fell behind, 1-0, by the end of the period and 4-1 before heading into the final 20 minutes.

Nineteen - year - old Lowell MacDonald, a right-winger from Thorburn, N.S., and top scorer in the Ontario Hockey Association's junior A series this season, paced the Wings with three goals. Earl Heiskala and Bob Wall shared the others.

Petes Win Hockey Title

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP)—Peterborough became a grand champions of the international novice hockey tournament here by defeating Leamington 5-4 Saturday.

On the way to the final game Peterborough took the A series title and Leamington won the B series.

Kent Gilmour was high scorer for Peterborough with two goals, followed by George Gordon, Jim Wasson and Philip Grady. Michael Kyrn scored a pair for the losers while Rodney Demers got a single.

Goderich won the C division with a narrow 4-3 win over Ingersoll, while the D series went to New Hamburg after a 9-1 win over Wingham.

Peterborough won the A title with a 5-4 win over Winnipeg and Leamington defeated New Hamburg 6-3.

PICKET CHURCHES

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Signs carrying segregation pickets paraded in front of two Roman Catholic Churches Sunday, protesting the integration of Catholic schools next fall. There were no incidents.

Flyers Win Western Title

EDMONTON (CP) — Edmonton Flyers won the Western Hockey League title for a record third time Saturday night with a 4-3 victory over Spokane Comets in the seventh game of a best-of-seven series.

The Leader Patrick Trophy, emblem of the championship was presented to Flyer captain Chuck Holmes by WHL president Al Leader immediately after the game. Flyers won previous league championships in 1953 and 1955.

Edmonton lost the first two games of the series 3-1 and 9-4 in Spokane. Flyers then won three straight games in Edmonton 11-2, 7-5 and 5-3. Spokane forced the deciding game with a 7-4 victory in Edmonton Friday night.

Veteran Don Pollie scored the winning goal at 11:06 of the third period while Flyers were playing a man short. Len Lunde hit the empty net when Spokane pulled its goalie in the final minute.

Ed Joyal and Roger DeJordy scored the other Edmonton markers. Comets' goals were by Colin Kilburn and Yves Locas.

Beaver River Prolific

Trout Fishing Said Slow

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Within two hours of the opening of the Ontario trout season at midnight Friday more than 30 rainbows had been taken from the Beaver River near Thornbury.

By morning anglers fishing the quarter-mile of stream between Thornbury Dam and Georgian Bay had landed more than 100 rainbows. The first was taken just five minutes after midnight.

Last spring five and six-pounders were common on opening night, but this year the rainbows so far have been averaging around 3½ pounds.

The biggest reported so far was a 9½-pounder caught by Allan Sawyers of Newmarket. Doug Livingston of Kitchener had a five-pounder.

Most of the fish were taken on salmon eggs and worms.

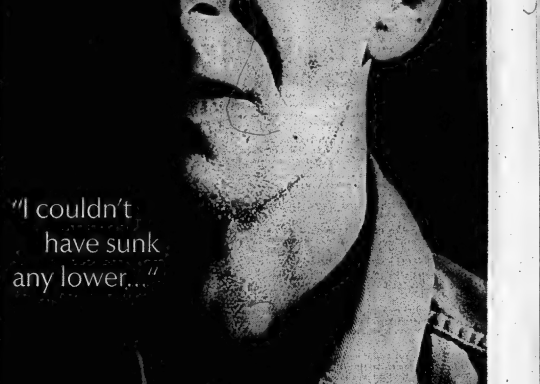
Shortly before midnight, a boy netting smelts in the stream caught seven rainbows in his net. He carefully returned them to the water as watching fishermen turned green.

The Beaver River, long a favorite rainbow spot, was probably the most crowded stream in Southern Ontario Saturday.

Elsewhere, anglers were not so lucky.

Two Toronto men who went to fish in the Mount Pleasant area west of Peterborough didn't get a line.

A farmer, suspecting they might be thieves, sent a hail of birdshot into the trees above them and then sicked his dog on them.



The pond at Eugenia only attracted about a dozen fishermen. Hornings Mills and Tottenham were also almost deserted.

The Alliston - Mansfield area was fairly popular, but catches there were reported slow.

Highways 33 and 41 towards Perth were jammed with cars heading for the Prince Edward County fishing derby. First reports said lines were few.

About 50 fishermen tried their luck along the Credit Forks, but with little success.

Creel limits for rainbows and browns are five fish a day. For speckled trout it's one plus 14 weighing not more than 10 pounds, except in Elgin, Middlesex and Norfolk counties, where the limit is one plus nine weighing not more than five pounds.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The little fellow looked at the fish he had just hooked offshore in Victoria Park yesterday afternoon —then looked at his dad.

"It's a nice one, sonny," the father replied, "but I'm afraid it is out of season. Better throw it back before it is too late."

The youngster looked wistfully at the 1¼ pound smallmouth bass then reluctantly tossed it back in the water.

That was the only bite I saw yesterday during a stroll along the park waterfront. I contacted some thirty or forty fishermen and they had nary a nibble up to four o'clock.

They were angling off the rivermouth and on the harbor side of the park. They were there from nine to ninety and one four-year-old I spotted was tossing in her line like a veteran.

I counted at least thirty-craft of all sizes fishing in the bay off the rivermouth. I didn't see the fish that waterfront scuttle-butt had it that one angler hooked a nine-pounder while another had two six-pounders.

I did see three youngsters who were lugging home a dozen or so fat perch that ranged from eight to ten inches. A freckle-faced young man hurried along with a half dozen.

Veteran waterfronters told me the water level in the bay is the lowest in years. Islands are now beginning to show in the river a few yards north of the Canadian Pacific Railway bridge. The smelt have been running but in much less quantities than previous springs.

Fisher Joe Geyer, who should know, told me the level in the bay here is nearly six inches lower than last of a year ago. It is not the lowest in Geyer's memory. He said when a boy his father rowed him beneath the ravenswood dock. Dave Batchelor subsantiated the statement.

A consensus of waterfront men here is that the reason for the low water level is the lack of spring flowout from northern streams which feed the Moira.

"There has been little or no spring freshet," one said. "The snow has soaked into the land which is near the saturation point. What is needed is two or three days' good rain to bring the bay level back to somewhere near normal."

The pre-season tip that the pickerel were in the deep water seems to have been a good one. Yesterday, like Saturday morning's opening, was little or non-productive of walleyes for shoreline fishermen.

The cement piers of the CPR bridge had their quotas yesterday again, but I did not hear of any results from the boys.

The greater majority of the lunkers caught in the bay over the weekend were hauled from the deeper water. Very few, if any, were located in the shallow offshore water.

This was not totally unexpected, except perhaps to those unaware of the pickerel habits at this time of the year. It must be remembered that the water opened two weeks ahead of those of previous years. The pickerel did not change its natural habits because there were more water "room season" as least a fortnight ahead of other seasons.

Softball Body Needs Entry

The Belleville Commercial Softball League meets tonight at 7.30 p.m., the finalize entries for the season. The league at present consists of five teams but a sixth is urgently needed.

Anyone desirous of forming and entering a club is requested to attend the meeting or get in touch with league president Don Smith.

The meeting takes place at the YMCA.

All Eyes On Young Puck Star

GODERICH, Ont. (CP)—All the scouts, officials and coaches at the annual Young Canada Week hockey tournament are gazing longingly tonight at a four-foot-nine, 82-pound ball of fury who plays every position except goal.

But it's hands off Rich MacLeish because his parents insist his education comes first. He is 13 years old and plays for Cannington, Ont., 16 miles east of Lindsay.

Earl Graham, president of the Toronto Hockey League, calls him "the best pee wee hockey player in Ontario."

He poured in five goals Friday as Cannington whipped a Chippewa Indian reserve team from Corunna 8-1.

He got even better later in the day, showering in 11 goals out of the 21 Cannington scored in shutting out Erie.

Coach Bill Courtney says "he's been doing that all season."

"That 13 goals brings his total for this season to three hundred and 13 games."

"He has been scouted by every professional organization in hockey. But his parents aren't interested in a professional hockey career for Rich. To them, education comes first."

On Saturday, when Canning-ton won the D series 8-3 over Belmont to the north, MacLeish collected four goals against Belmont and all five in Cannington's 5-3 semi - final win over Paisley. He had 27 goals in the four games he played in the tournament.

Gordon Sidbury-area team won the C title by defeating Point Edward 4-2 in the final. Goderich-Exeter won the B title with a 3-0 shutout over Walkerton.

Twins Get Six Solos

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Staff Writer

A record-tying 27 homers were belted by 23 players in American League action during the weekend.

The figure included six solo home runs in one game by Minnesota Twins, which equalled another league record.

Including the 22 homers walloped by the National League, the majors had a total of 49, one short of the record set by the two leagues May 30, 1956. The American League mark of 27 originally was set May 2, 1961.

Three home runs—by Roger Maris, Cletis Boyer and Bob Skowron — helped New York Yankees sweep a doubleheader from Washington Senators 3-2 and 11-6 and boosted them into first place, half a game in front of Chicago White Sox.

The White Sox got only one homer in their 2-1 and 3-1 wins over Boston Red Sox but that blast, belted by Don Mincher-berger, accounted for the winning run in the opener.

TWINS HAVE BINGE

Minnesota Twins, held homerless in their 5-4 league-opening victory over Cleveland Indians, went on a six-homer binge, two by Jim Lemon, to defeat Los Angeles Angels 7-3. The Twin debut in Bloomington was the third place from first, a game behind the leaders.

Detroit Tigers defeated Los Angeles Angels 13-8 in a slugfest that featured six home runs, four by the Tigers. Baltimore Orioles also had four homers in the opener, Kansas City Athletics 8-3.

In the Cleveland-Minnesota game Saturday, Cleveland homered up a 7-3 lead before the Twins came booming back on Don Mincher's grand slam homer in the eighth. Mincher also had a homer in the second. The Angels made it 8-7 in the same inning on Albie Pearson's double scoring Tito Francona.

Ron Taylor of Leaside, Ont., got up Mincher's third homer. He was pulled in the seventh by Jim Perry, Steve Duren finishing the game by fanning two Tigers in each of the last of the game.

Kenmors Hold Workout

Soden 'Surprised, Delighted'

"I was both surprised and delighted at the turnout and I believe Belleville will have a good senior baseball club this summer."

That was the reaction of Manager Ken Soden of the Belleville Kenmors senior baseball team after the inaugural workout yesterday.

Some twenty-five players of various ages appeared at the Fair Grounds at one o'clock and after a get-together workout for nearly two hours, ending the session with a brief game.

Soden said he had appointed Sid Forster coach of the new senior squad. Forster plays first base and is also a right-handed pitcher. He has played in the Windsor-Detroit area and is associated with the National Cash Register Co. branch here.

Other hurlers who turned out yesterday were Steve Smith, Lincoln Parker and player who throws "en righthanded, Gerry Hill. Simmonsville lefty who has starred with the South Hastings League and Belleville Senior "A" team, who tosses them from the starboard side.

There are four good catchers were on hand as well as an assortment of infielders and outfielders.

"I believe we have the nucleus of a good club," Manager Soden said, "and from here in we are going to drive hard to get everybody into shape."

The Kenmors will play all their home games on Wednesday nights starting 8.15 with the exception of June 20 when it is slated a harness meet is being held at the Fair Grounds. They open their season June 6 against Peterborough.

A full practice has been ordered for tomorrow night and Tuesday evening starting at six o'clock and all baseball minded athletes are invited to attend.

B and D Finalizes Plans

Softball League Poised

Looking forward to a compact, well-balanced loop, the Belleville and District softball league cleaned up most of its pre-season business yesterday and announced plans for the schedule opener on the May 21rt holiday.

The loop will operate with four teams this season but hopes to make up for the low number of entries by combining keen competition and strong organization throughout.

The league will consist of the RCAF Flyers and three Belleville teams, the Bobcats, Joyce Real Estate and Rollins Construction Juniors. Picton Wolfe and Trenton Merchants are missing from last season.

Joyces and Rollins held their initial practices this past week and both managements expressed confidence of fielding strong clubs. The Bobcats will get under way on Wednesday and Thursday of this week.

Joyces, last year's champions, chose Wolfe Merchants as opposition for the league opener. The game will be playing at the Fair Grounds Monday May 21st at the Fairgrounds at 6.30 p.m.

The Belleville teams will play at the Fairgrounds on Monday, Tuesday and Thursday night. All games will be under the lights at 6.15 p.m. except after June 1st, but will be 6.15 after June 15th. It was felt that the eight o'clock starting time will appeal to the fans and the players as it is constructed to get all games started early in June.

The teams will play an 18-game schedule over a nine-week period, ending July 21st. Only the top three teams will participate in the league playoffs with the fourth-place team eliminated. The top three club will play a round-robin and the two top finishers at that series will play the best league championship. With just three teams making the playoffs, every game will be a key one.

A motion was passed that each club will be allowed just 18 players' certificates this year and will be allowed to have only 15 players signed at any one time. Every player must be signed before taking part in any ball game. These rules will force the club managers to sign only top-flight talent. Joyce Real Estate will be certificates on border-line players, which will be better brand of ball for the fans.

Harold Bawden, one of seven members of the board of directors, was appointed assistant secretary-treasurer at yesterday's meeting. Bawden will handle any meetings that Commissioner Cliff Shute is unable to attend.

All clubs were represented yesterday except the RCAF Flyers but the Flyers along with the other three clubs have paid their entry fee and are definite starters.

The teams are expected to get down to serious training within the next week. Joyces will practice at the Fairgrounds Tuesday and likely Thursday, at 6.15, Bobcats will workout at the CNRA Park on Wednesday and Thursday of this week and on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday next week, at 6.00 p.m., while Rollins Juniors will practice at the CNRA tonight at 6.00 and next Sunday at 1.00 p.m. Positions are open on all four and new players will be welcomed.

The Bay of Quinte Umpires' Association which will handle all league games, has another meeting scheduled for Monday, May 7 at Club Canara at 6.30 p.m.

Industrial Loop Holds Banquet

Hockey Champs Honored

The Belleville Industrial Hockey League honored team and individual champions at its annual presentation dinner and dance at the ANAF Hall Saturday night.

Over 100 persons attended the banquet, enjoyed the delicious dinner prepared and served by the ladies of the ANAF auxiliary, cheered the champions and danced to the music of Bill Phylips' orchestra.

Chairman for the evening was league Commissioner, Russ Soule, who congratulated the teams on a very successful season. He also thanked the referees, the pt'ers, timekeepers and doormen for their help.

"I am sure that with the spirit and good sportsmanship shown this year, the league will operate on a larger and even better scale next winter," Soule said.

The Joyce Real Estate team walked off with most of the hockey trophies, winning the schedule and playoff titles as well as several individual awards.

Each member of the Joyce team received a league championship crest presented by Garry Alexander, and a replica of the Booth TV trophy. Gord Booth presented the Booth TV trophy to Joyces, for their playoff title, on behalf of himself and brother Howard Booth. Ross Gesh handed out the individual trophies.

Hyde Bryant received the Most Valuable Player trophy, the Dow Award, presented by Armand Duffy, and the Jones Motors Trophy, presented by Don "Bruno" McCurdy, as the league's top scorer. Bryant was a member of the Joyce Real Estate team. He won the scoring title with 39 points in 23 games.

Claude Carr, of the runner-up Booth TV team, received the LaBatt's Trophy as the league's best goaltender. A standout throughout the season, Carr compiled a 2.78 average in 12 games. Bobby Green, winner of the two previous years, was also nominated.

The Joyce players, with coach Doug Bone and manager Pat Shannon, presented sponsor Jerry Joyce and Mrs. Joyce with a beautiful gift of appreciation. The players also honored Bone and Shannon with individual gifts.

All five league teams, walked off with most of the Bobby Joyces, Vagden Mills, Rollins Construction and Napanee Pringles, as well and referees and other officials and guests, were well represented.

'Two Men On Third'-Both Safe

Phils, Mets Stage 'Dodger' Tussle

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Baseball just wouldn't be baseball without some daffy incidents. Like Sunday's National League weirdy between New York Mets and Philadelphia Phillies.

The Phillies were trailing 14-6 when the Mets went to bat in the bottom of the fourth inning at New York.

Then New York got seven runs in four hits, two bases on errors, a wild pitch, two errors, a sacrifice fly and an incredible Philadelphia play on the field.

The Mets got two runners on third base at the same time. All hands were safe and a run scored when Philadelphia catcher Sammy White tagged the wrong man and another player eventually threw the ball away.

Frank Thomas of the Mets twice was hit by a pitched ball and once by a thrown ball while running the base paths—all in the same inning.

The victim of the crazy goings-on was Philadelphia hurler Art Mahaffey, who was charged with the 8-6 loss. Mahaffey was responsible for the runs, including the seven off five hits in the fourth inning.

The collapse gave the Mets a record of two straight triumphs. The streak was halted in the eighth-game by Vada Pinson and Gordy Coleman of the Reds socked home games from Chicago Cubs 7-0 and 6-0. Pittsburgh Pirates regained the top spot in the National League by defeating against the Dodgers 6-1 and 1-0. Roman Mejias hit ninth inning homer gave Houston Colts a 4-3 decision over Milwaukee Braves.

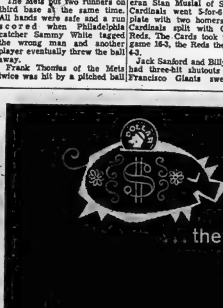
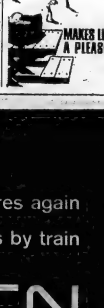
In Saturday action New York beat Philadelphia 8-4, San Francisco whipped Chicago 11-2, St. Louis edged Cincinnati 4-3, Los Angeles defeated Pittsburgh 2-1 and Milwaukee defeated Houston 4-3.

At New York Sunday Mets' Roger Jackson, who spaced eight hits, recorded his first victory in the opener.

Home runs by Tony Gonzalez, Don Demeter and Wes Covington featured the Phils' 14-hit attack off four New York pitchers in the second game. Bobby Locke, who allowed only one hit over 4-3 innings, got the victory in relief.



Sailors Nip Meaford 6-4



PORT COLBORNE, Ont. (CP) — Port Colborne Sailors defeated Meaford 6-4 in overtime Sunday to level their best-of-three Ontario Hockey Association Intermediate A finals at one game each.

Chester Warchol, Tom Buck, Eric Unger, Jim Robertson, Jack Dover and Bill Kitchen scored for the Sailors.

Don Hamilton and Charlie MacDonald each fired two for Meaford.

The deciding game will be in Collingwood Wednesday.

Belleville Y Wins Hoop Tournament

The host Belleville squad walked off with top honors in the Ontario YMCA midget basketball tournament played at the BCVS gym Saturday.

Playing head-up basketball all the way, the Belleville team coached by Teddy Batchelor, whipped Ottawa by a 39-31 score in the championship contest.

The champs reached the finals by topping Midland A. in their first game, 43-31 and by defeating Cornwall 39-24 in the second of their three games.

Ottawa ousted Midland B. and Toronto High Park on the way to the finals but was no match for Belleville's high-powered attack and strong defence in the titular contest.

Belleville trailed by a 17-11 score at half time in their opening game against Midland A. Batchelor's boys started to move in the second half and once ahead, never fell behind again in the tournament.

Murray Swan sparked the Belleville club in scoring but YMCA officials called it a "strong two-way team effort" in which every member of the team played his best.

Swan hooped 19 points in the win over Midland while Ron Faulkner bagged 14. Chester Graham was best for Midland with 11 points.

Jack Rawlyk led Belleville scorers in the Cornwall fixture with 14 points while Swan had 11 and Faulkner nine. Peter Kerr hit for ten points for Cornwall.

In the final, Swan again starred on the attack with a 16-point performance. Faulkner was next in line with seven points. David Ellis was high man for Ottawa with four points.

Mr. Jack Sisson, who refereed a number of games in the tournament and is a member of the Physical Education committee of the YMCA, presented the championship trophy to the Belleville team. Midland W. captured the consolation trophy.

Teams entered were: Belleville, Midland A. and Midland B., Cornwall, Brockville, Stratford, Ottawa and High Park.

Lineups for the championship game were:

BELLEVILLE (32) — M. Swan 16, R. Faulkner 7, J. Rawlyk 4, D. Hurst 2, B. Leslie 2, B. Dunmore 1.

OTTAWA (11) — D. Ellis 4, B. Allen 3, D. Webb 2, L. Swyete 1, D. Vivian 1.

Will Stop 'Wild Bidding'

OHA Throws Out Draft Ruling

By GEORGE McNEVIN

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario Hockey Association threw out its draft rule Saturday.

The draft rule, inaugurated 14 years ago, allows a junior A teams to call up a maximum three players from lower categories at the start of each season. Draft choices are given to teams in order of their standing in the previous season.

Consensus of the group's annual meeting was that the association does not have the right to tell boys where they may play hockey.

President Lloyd Pollock of Windsor explained that the draft was instituted to put an end to "wild bidding" of teams for players' services.

Closely tied in with the draft discussion was another motion deferred for further consideration, aimed at preventing teams from moving players under 18 away from home.

TRAINING RESTRICTED

Among other things, it provided that OHA clubs holding training camps may not invite players under 16 unless they are held in the boys' home area and that such a player may register for junior play only if there is a team in his home area.

The meeting passed the motion to the junior council of the OHA for study and possible presentation to the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association. If the CAHA adopts it, it will automatically become binding on the OHA.

The association also went on record as supporting a proposed new publishing venture by the CAHA—a slick-paper, four-color magazine devoted to amateur hockey.

Chief point of controversy was a proposal to levy fees ranging from 25 cents to $1 on players, depending on their category, to help make up the circulation necessary to ensure adequate advertising revenue. This is to be studied by the executive.

Leonard Taylor, sports editor of the Kitchener-Waterloo Record, who will edit the magazine said a minimum of 140,000 circulation is required.

Five officers of the OHA were returned by acclamation, including Pollock; vice-presidents Matthew Leyden of Oshawa and C. G. Patterson of Guelph; secretary W. J. Hewitt of Toronto, and treasurer Frank Buckland of Peterborough.

Executive members elected were Jack Devine of Belleville, Frank Doherty of Gilberton and Jack Oakes of Strathroy.

King of the Hill

In the Best Your Average Tournament at the Bowl-o-Drome Saturday, Jack Finden rolled 823 for 4 games, beating his 176 average by 55 pts per game to emerge as the new challenger. Finden beat his average by 19 pts. per game in the challenge match with last week's champ Shirley Rochon, but wasn't good enough as Rochon beat her 163 average by 43 points per game to retain her title.

In King of the Hill A1 Dever had a tremendous 1373 for 5 games to become the new challenger against last week's King, Cec. Hardwick.

Other good scores were Ken Peacock, 1333; Ron Saylor, 1333 and Horace Ormshaw, 1353 for 5 games. Hardwick retained his title by rolling 776 for 3 games in the challenge match while Dever had 753.

Alpine plants appeal because a good showing can be collected in a small space, they are long lived; they look well, even handsome with little care for most of the year and they fit well into hot dry places.

Many believe that they can be grown only among rocks in a special garden. This is an ideal place, but they are equally at home in a dry wall, in a hot sunny corner near a house or a walk. They do well in pots on a patio and as edgings for planters or a shrub border.

Alpines are usually compact, fine for nestling among rocks and in crevices others make a carpet and spread a mat of color over sandy soil or flat rocks. Then there are those that trail gracefully down banks or stones or even planters.

Drainage must be good. Use loam, peat and sand together to get a loose friable soil through which water will run quickly. Add more sand or peat to suit the individual plants as they are being set in place.

Plants from the high alps like chippings mixed with the fine stone which prevents water from collecting around the crown, or neck of the plant.

USE TOP DRESSING

When the plants are in place a top dressing of stone or stone chippings should be scattered over the soil. This adds to the appearance but it also conserves moisture, keeps the weeds down and insures a cool root run.

In planting a dry wall the soil should be worked in as you build. If this is done right the plants will grow and weather even in dry weather. The roots will penetrate the soil behind the wall. They will need shearing back when blooms die and they should be given an occasional feed. Liquid fertilizer at mid summer will give a second round of blooms.

Grow the plants in pots until they have a good round ball of roots. If a plant should die or prove unsuitable replace with a similar plant which has grown roots.

Dwarf early bulbs make good companions for the alpines. Choose colors that will complement and not clash. Plant in drifts. The aim of a gardener should be to grow his plants as if they grew there naturally. Groups, clumps, drifts but never straight lines.

DWARF EVERGREENS

Where space will permit dwarf conifers do well with alpines, lending, as they do color and tenderness. Choose carefully. Some grow to natural size shrubs will soon grow too large. Others have to dig them out which will spoil your whole plan. In the dwarf evergreenes you can find spreading forms, dense type and upright columns. Use them to give shape in the upper sections of the rock garden and reserve the uprights for the lower areas.

With a little advice from your nurseryman or catalogues you can pick groups of plants that will bloom at different times, making a continuous display of color even in winter. Every shade of color is obtainable in some plant from milk white to deep purple, almost black.

Look for these families: Saxifragae, Sedum, Sempervivum, (House Leeks) Campanulas, Arenaria, Arabis and Echiveria. These are all a few. Keep looking for new plants to tuck in the bare places. Go slow and seek out the treasures. Many of the spires are just that, real treasures that will live for years.

11 Companies Will Tender for Service Areas

TORONTO (CP)—Officials of the Ontario department of highways are expected to open tenders May 8 from 11 oil companies for establishing eight service areas along Highway 401.

Highways Minister William Goodfellow said Friday it is hoped the successful bidders will have temporary pumps and services in position by July 1. They will be located both sides of the highway at Newcastle, Trenton, Guelph and Ingersoll.

The department cancelled all further calling of tenders last month after the oil companies indicated lack of interest in the original terms. At that time the department required the companies to provide deceleration and acceleration lanes in and out of the service areas and were proposed to charge them rental on a percentage basis of the gross take.

When little interest was shown the department revised the terms which now allow for a flat ground rental which, over a period of 25 years, will provide capital cost of levelling the land and construction of feeder lanes by the department.

Patients learn about themselves and about alcoholism in groups

Alcoholism

By Matthew B. Dymond, M.D., Health Minister for Ontario (Third in a series)

What does it feel like to be an alcoholic man or woman undergoing treatment for alcohol addiction in the modern hospital operated by the Alcoholism and Drug Addiction Research Foundation of Ontario in Toronto? That's the question with which we concluded our last column on alcoholism in Ontario and what our Government is doing about it.

The answer varies with individuals of course; but by and large it is safe to say that most such patients approach the clinic with tremendous anxiety and fear of what may be done to them there. And after a stay of two or three or more weeks (as long as the doctors feel is required), most of them return to their homes and their jobs feeling generally less fearful, more secure, and more confident of their ability to cope with life without depending upon the anaesthetic effects of alcoholic beverages.

There is no miraculous change wrought in people at the clinic; but they are helped by skilful counselling sessions and in group discussion with other patients, to understand better their own strengths and weaknesses and how to manage these to fashion their own set of circumstances.

(There is a little prayer used by members of Alcoholics Anonymous that seems appropriate in this connection "God grant me the serenity to accept the things I cannot change, the courage to change the things I can, and the wisdom to know the difference").

Treatment at the ARF Toronto clinic is provided by a team consisting of physician, psychiatrist, internist, social worker, occupational therapist, recreation specialist, and spiritual counsellor. The purpose of this many-sided approach is to treat the whole human being in his parts. The Foundation also provides its patients with an opportunity to become acquainted with the fellowship of Alcoholics Anonymous.

Therapists at the clinic lay heavy stress on the fact that a period of hospitalization for alcoholism does not necessarily produce a 100 per cent permanent "cure". It is the experience of most Foundation patients, however, that with the physical help and psychological insight gained in hospital they do get along better with their family and at work. This treatment is most effective and long-lasting when a patient looks at his period in hospital as merely the beginning of his recovery, and when he will voluntarily carry on treatment as an out - patient and-or an active member of Alcoholics Anonymous.

No discussion of the treatment of alcoholism would be complete without special reference to A.A.; and it is on that note that we will conclude this short series of columns next week.
